LULU: "Just listen to this in 'The Clarion' 'Owing to the continued hard luck of Mr. Leander, necessitating the weekly postponement of his marriage with Miss Lulu Peachtree, it is now the current opinion that this marriage will never take place.' Oh, isn't that outrageous?"
LEANDER: "Ye gods! I'll go right down and make that measly ink-slinging editor retract every word of that."

2. LEANDER: "Now, Lulu, dear, you wait right here. I'll settle this fellow's hash in short order. Now don't be alarmed if you hear any noise, for it is often necessary to deal harshly with these pen-pushing shrimps."
LULU: "Oh, Leander, for my sake don't treat the man TOO roughly. He may have a family depending on him."

3. LEANDER (fiercely): "Is this the editor of 'The Clarion'? Well, my name is LEANDER. Now, you moss-grown, beetle-pated, sap-headed, undergrown blackmailer, I want you to retract—and in big type, too—that absolutely untruthful report printed in your paper this morning in reference to my marriage with Miss Lulu Peachtree. DO YOU UNDERSTAND?"

4. EDITOR OF "THE CLARION": "WHAT! Talk to ME in THAT manner? I'll retract nothing—23 for yours."

5. LULU: Oh, Leander, NOW what have you done? Did you see the editor?"
LEANDER (faintly): "I DID!"

6. LULU: "And now our marriage will have to be postponed again. I really believe that what that editor said was TRUE"
LEANDER: "Ye gods! And once AGAIN!"

PRINCESS GOWNS WITH EMPIRE TOPS; LACES AND EMBROIDERY EFFECTS FOR SPRING

BY MRS. OSBORN, CREATOR OF FASHIONS FOR FASHIONABLE AMERICA.

THE illustrations on this page show just what we have come to in dress. Were the Empress Josephine to enter New York this Spring she would find her accustomed dress quite in the mode, even to the jaunty, beribboned Empire cane often carried with it. We will wear the Empire gown and the princess gown in Empire or short-waisted effect.

The dominant colors of Spring are shown and the most fashionable fabric. The first are puree de pois and American Beauty rose color and leaf green—which is shown in the decoration back of the figures—while the last is cloth, a very light weight cloth with a beautiful finish. Gray will prove one of the leading colors for Spring, and some new blues are among the popular tints which we will wear in the months to come.

Later in the Spring pongee silks will dominate Spring materials, and from now on new effects in stripes, checks and plaids, in shadow patterns and new weaves of fine wool fabrics, will replace old materials to which Winter has accustomed us.

The style which Paquin brought out has prevailed just as Paquin always does prevail in the world of fashion, no matter what stand is taken against his innovations in the beginning. He announced that we must wear Empire gowns. We said we would not. We modistes, for the most part, said it very emphatically, too. But we are all beginning to make them. At first they were loose, in the accepted Empire type; now they are being fitted in princess lines from the bust down. This style has been brought about by the American distaste to loose, flowing lines in a garment. This evolution of the Empire gown is what we will all wear this Spring and for some months after.

The new Spring gown will have a short-waisted effect, brought about either by a bolero or in some other fashion. It will hang from an embroidered piece on the shoulders or, in the case of evening gowns, from a strip of lace across the bust.

The princess lines will be either fitted to below the hips and falling in box pleats from that point, or else curved outward from the fitted lines to give fulness to the skirt.

The two gowns selected for this page show admirably the methods in which the new princess gowns will be made. One of these is in the new yellowish tint known as puree de pois. The top of the gown is in rich embroidery with a gold thread in it, and is finished in front with three little black velvet bows with rhinestone buckles in the

"Are you looking for an Angel?"

"She was my husband's first wife."

"Socrates laughed."

By the Rev. MADISON C. PETERS,
Pastor Baptist Church of the Epiphany, New York.

A LECTURER dramatically inquired: "Can any one in this room tell me of a perfect man?" There was dead silence.

"Has any one?" he continued, "heard of a perfect woman?"

Then a patient-looking little woman rose in the back part of the house and said: "There was one, I have often heard of her, but she's dead now. She was my husband's first wife."

Be prepared for imperfections. Nobody is always combined. The man or woman who never made a mistake is a myth.

Man, are you looking for an angel? How would you look alongside of an angel?

When real life comes to the best and happiest pair, with its trouble and its care, the tower of romance will fall, leaving us in the mud-hut of every-day reality.

Man and woman are like two shells of the oyster—they were made for each other.

The man who avoids matrimony on account of the cares of wedded life rivals the wiseacre who secured himself against corns by having his legs amputated.

Some one has said that it is life as it is with a kite, it will get very high unless it has a string tying it down, and so the man who is tied down to a half a dozen responsibilities and mother will make a higher and stronger flight than the bachelor who, having nothing to keep him steady, is always floundering in the mud.

If you want to succeed in the world, tie yourself to somebody.

A crusty old bachelor, hearing that his friend had gone blind, said: "Let him marry, and if that does not open his eyes, nothing else will."

But that sneer has been combated by the experience of many blind scholars like Hood, famous authority on bees, and Fawcett, political economist of Cambridge and England's most famous Postmaster General, whose highly qualified wives were more than indeed to their husbands.

Marriage remodels character, brightens prospects, gives faces to clouds, meaning to words, will and wings to birds sing more sweetly, the sun shine more brightly, elevate your hopes, arouse ambition and give purpose to life. It will double joys and divide sorrows.

Our social chariots should be attached to the stars of love.

All history and experience have proven that marriage is the world's civilizer, the safety-valve of business life, the cabinet room where is devised most of the great things of life.

The only permanent builder in the social arrangements is love between man and woman.

A wise marriage leads to the truest and happiest life. Many men think themselves self-made who are really marriage-made.

Napoleon's son-like greatest victories while Josephine was his wife, and while he loved her. When our country's interest demanded a divorce, Washington hastened to her George, and urged him up and on to victory. Historians and Darnell, who for thirty years in marriage depends altogether upon his choice of a partner.

Solomon, whose matrimonial ventures were rather multitudinous, says: "A prudent wife is from the Lord," leaving us to infer where an imprudent one must come from.

Wordsworth paints the woman you want: "A creature not too bright or good
For human nature's daily food.
The reason firm, the temperate will,
Endurance, foresight, strength and skill;
A perfect woman nobly planned,
To warm, to comfort and command,
And yet a spirit still and bright,
With something of an angel light."

Don't marry for beauty alone. Socrates called beauty "a short-lived tyranny," and Theophrastus pronounced it "a silent cheat."

The man who marries for beauty alone is as silly as the man who would buy a house because it had fine flowers in the front yard.

It takes more than a fair skin, bright eyes, beautiful form and delicate hands to make a really beautiful woman. The highest type of beauty is never merely physical; it is in the outgleamings of internal virtues and graces and of character.

The beauty that lasts shines in the virtuous life, sweetens the voice of sympathy, sparkles on the tongue of wisdom and flashes in the eye of love.

A lovely soul will glow in the face.

The really beautiful woman has a beauty which emerges not with years, and this is the only beauty that can be relied upon for a permanent influence with men.

The violet will perfume even when its leaves must fade. The love that has nothing but beauty to rest upon in song withers away.

A beautiful woman pleases the eye, a good woman holds the heart. The one is a jewel, the other is a treasure.

Socrates Had Bitter Experience.

Look well to the temper of the woman you think of marrying. Socrates said he "married Xantippe and endured her for self-discipline."

The story is told of him that when his wife gave him a lecture he walked outside the house, sat down and laughed. This angered her the more; she rushed upstairs and poured down a bucket of water on him. He walked away and smilingly said: "That is all that you can expect, a shower after a thunderstorm."

But the men who look at the matter in this light are like the philosopher himself —dead.

I am rather inclined to take Solomon's view of the matter. "It is better to dwell in the corner of a housetop than with a brawling woman in a wide house."

John Wesley's wife used to sit in the middle aisle in City Road Chapel and, it is said, made a mouth at him while he preached. One day he was telling his congregation how he had been assailed by his enemies and declaring that he had been accused of doubting every commandment except drunkenness. Whereupon his wife arose and said: "Mr. Wesley, you know you were drunk."

Wesley threw up his hands and exclaimed: "Thank God, the catalogue is complete."

Wesley's experience, therefore, enabled him to give good counsel, and when one of his young preachers went to him for advice on marriage, saying that he was hesitating between two women—one was a professing Christian, but had a terrible temper, while the other made no religious profession, but had a sweet disposition—Wesley immediately sent back word: "Marry the woman with the sweet disposition."

Marry a good housekeeper.

The story is told of a teacher of Indiana who was reading them the parable of the Ten Virgins by the aid of an interpreter. As she read she noticed a smile on the faces of her usually sober-visaged pupils, and, stopping to inquire the cause, discovered that, owing to the limited vocabulary of the Indian dialect, which made the same word serve for virgin and old maid, the parable as it read through the interpreter was to the effect that "ten old maids lighted their lanterns and went out to look for husbands."

Woman's education one hundred years ago was the lighting of a lantern to enable the girl to better look for a husband. And her education was in the arts of the kitchen and the parlor, and the object of education was merely to make a useful housewife. Now the pendulum has swung to the other extreme.

When we select women for wives in lieu of domestic graces prefer the fiery of the world will sink into the obscurity of those who serve her, to fill it with beautiful influences of cleanliness, good order and neatness, so that everything may minister to the comfort and enjoyment of those she loves.

The most fascinating women are those who can enrich the every-day moments of life and companions, considered their interests identical and did not hold them as so much fair game for graft. They made their houses homes and not mere passage places for vanity to go through.

Give us women content to be what God and nature meant them to be; but no, the ideal life set up by the girl of the period is plenty of fun and luxury. Dress dwarfs her intelligence, while virtue gives up the ghost at her nod; fed to order, she must be nursed like a baby and kept from a hysterical fit by a sugar plum.

It may be a scandalous thing to say, but the scandal of the fact is so much greater than the scandal of confessing it that I will risk criticism for the statement of the fact—the domestic life of this country is in an appalling condition.

Many a man has given up all high ambition for study, for self-denying service of his fellowmen, stifled the voice of his conscience when it demanded sacrifice and devoted himself to the one object of gaining the wherewithal to keep sunshine in his home by the unlimited indulgence of a fashion-pampered woman's fancies.

The fault lies with the parents; unless they can give their daughter a fortune when she marries, they perpetuate a fraud upon the young man, if by lack of domestic training they make her unfit for the position of wife in the home of the young man who has to make his way in the world.

Why Parents Are to Blame.

Just as it is a man's duty to provide for his family, so it is the woman's duty to adorn the home with all the excellences of grace and good taste, and either by her own inbuilt or the well-directed industry of those who serve her, to fill it with beautiful influences of cleanliness,

New Princess Gowns, with Empire Tops, for Spring.

By Mrs. Osborn.

A large buckle clasps the belt of embroidery. This may be of yellow velvet, if one pleases, with the same sort of velvet in bands upon the sleeves.

The cuff is trimmed with folds, which may be of the material embroidered, or of velvet or cloth of gold. In any case they are trimmed at the top with a little upstanding ruffle of lace.

The stock and chemisette are of lace embellished at the neck with a little velvet bow in much those upon the back of the vest.

As will be seen a box-pleated effect is made in one of the princess gowns, the edges of the gores being turned under in pleats that are wide below the hips. The other is made upon simple gored lines.

In the gown of American beauty not a short Eton bolero gives the short-waisted effect desired. The bolero is finished around the edges with scallops and is made very elaborate with heavy hand embroidery in several tints of the color of the gown. The neck is filled in with lace.

Lace stocks with yokes or chemisettes or vests attached will appear in most of the Spring gowns. The becomingness of these to the face, and the dainty finish which it give to a gown have made it popular as a suitable article of neckwear. It will be made up in small yokes without sleeves in many of the dresses and in high stocks in others. Both styles will be worn and a woman may choose the kind most becoming to her.

While Empire and Princess gowns, with Empire tops, will undoubtedly prevail among Spring and Summer fashions, there are enough women who will not, or can not becomingly wear these styles to make it necessary for modistes to have a make-shift for them. A good many skirts are being made with wide, fitted girdles, appearing a continuation of the skirt, and these have their tops concealed in the edges of short jackets of various styles. Some of the little jackets are pleated and some are plain. All are fastened with stitched folds and pieces of the same or contrasting materials, and with braid or lace or embroidery, according to the nature of the goods.

In every case the sleeves are three-quarter in length and are made like those coat sleeves gathered or pleated under a fitted cuff. Much artistic skill is put into the finish of these cuffs. They are so cut and trimmed as to give exactly the effect of the whole sleeve. Some of the more elaborate costumes have the sleeves trimmed with embroidery or silk bands and folds applied in some irregular design.

Princess and Empire skirts are made both trimmed and untrimmed. Velvet folds and shirred pieces and braids are used as well as embroidery done in coarse silk for trimmings upon skirts, the designs carrying out a general irregularity of outline, although some skirts are simply trimmed with parallel rows of bias folds put on double, like tucks.

I think, however, that these gowns are pretty, more graceful when the skirts are untrimmed and all the decoration put upon the bodices and sleeves.

JOSEFA NEILSON OSBORN.

Many skirts are being made with the wide fitted girdle.

RED TAPE VERSUS DUMB ANIMALS

BY CLARA MORRIS

How Surprise, Disappointment and Indignation at the Neglect of Suffering Animals Have Stirred New York Society Women and Philanthropists to Demand a Reorganization of the Society Founded by Henry Bergh.

By Clara Morris.

ALL other friends of dumb creatures and the members and supporters of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will be deeply interested in the following article, by Miss Clara Morris, America's greatest emotional actress. Miss Morris was the life-long friend of Henry Bergh, the founder and former president of the society, and has been thoroughly acquainted with the affairs of the organization since its inception.

Comparing the two presidents and the present society with what it was, she shows the causes which led to the recent stormy meeting in New York, when President Haines escaped investigation by only one vote.

OH, lost the sleep of the blessed dead to heaven calm and ocean deep! Else had the moans of tortured beasts here at our own stockyards have thrilled chilled veins and brought from the very grave indignant, great-hearted Henry Bergh.

Yet imagine his grief and shame could he see to what the society he founded has fallen.

Those who knew and loved the man must be thankful for his unmoved rest and turn hopeful eyes toward the group of brave women who are striving to bring back the old principles, the old purposes, the old frank and open ways, where under God and a working president it formerly did such splendid and heart-moving work. After watching the course of this society since its great founder's death, to a man of great undertakings the dread of his successor must add a new terror to death.

Few things have cost the society so dear as Mr. Haines's very evident good looks. In the earliest days of his presidency the Spartan simplicity of his surroundings jarred upon him.

He had visions of himself in palatial offices, the head and front of everything. Handsome, suave, dignified, finding bells, pressing buttons and issuing commands to bent backs and lowered eyes; and as money rolled in upon him he turned a little giddy and resolved to realize his imaginings, and so began to build up to himself, as it were. And though there are people who feel that $500,000 is too much to pay for the proper setting of any man's physical beauty, no one denies that his courtly manner and handsome eyes become his expensive surroundings.

Still, the painful fact remains that the suffering animals are sometimes considerably neglected. The public knew quite well that the society was no longer able to respond to the calls made upon it, and surprise, disappointment and indignation followed one another. Sensitive women, often sorely pressed for time, had to do rescue work in barbarous cases because the society had not agents enough to properly patrol the streets.

Wept Over Pres. Haines.

Yet, safe in the elegant refinement of his offices, Mr. President had strange imaginings, which he mistook for memories, and finally he allowed himself to speak of the triumphs of the society, which came through "this untiring energy." Through an interview Mr. Haines graciously granted the friends of Mr. Bergh learned to their utter amazement that Mr. H. had been "a very Don Quixote in aim and principle—was cranky, and that his very enthusiasm even worked against the end he would reach."

An old soldier friend wept over that interview. Oh, there was plenty more of it. I didn't weep, but, oh, I did want to say some of the things one may when they are mad clear through—nice, short, easy words, not exactly pretty, but comforting in the extreme. For, you see, it's mean to raise yourself by dragging down another, and, aside from that, the summing up was childishly untrue. Mr. Bergh was physically the very counterpart of Don Quixote, but he fought no windmills, and he was never enthusiastic. He was calm and practical, but with the tenacity and the grip of a whole regiment of bulldogs.

Now let me tell you something: One Winter evening—snow, generously sprinkled with sooty flecks, had suggested a clip in half mourning. At some street corners the soiled, mud-stained mass had been heaped into banks. With insolent disregard of the law, salt had been lavishly inwrought on the car tracks. The great arteries of the city were congested, traffic was delayed by dangerous footing and narrowed roadways.

As Mr. Bergh came from his office his heart sank low, for he knew his city well; knew it was hungry now and hurrying to its dinner, and he was sure he'd soon find what he was looking for—trouble. Like a well-dressed, sombre boat he went striding down Broadway to the junction of University place, and there he found what he had expected.

A car packed inside and [illegible] to suffocation, and both platforms packed, with men clinging like big burrs to the bottom steps. Two ill-fed, bony horses, with heaving sides and straining backs, and scrambling feet, strove in vain to start again. The driver's whip was raised ready for the setting blow, when suddenly through the thick air there loomed up before them a tall, dark form, with hand upraised commanding-ly, and calm and distinct two laconic words reached all ears: "Stop! Unload!"

"Who the d— are you?" furiously demanded the driver.

"And where's your authority for interfering?"

Mr. Bergh turned back the lapel of his coat to show his badge, and repeated: "Unload!" Then, being tired and hungry and mad, the passengers' wrath burst forth. Abuse, satirical comment, threats filled the air. The conductor was especially ugly and became unpleasantly demonstrative. His example worked like leaven on the rest, and a spirit of riot began to show distinctly in the crowd closing about the tall, calm, self-possessed man; when a scurrilous, great brute came close up to him, and with an unspeakable epithet, shook a dirty fist directly in his face.

Without the flash of an eye, the quiver of a muscle in his quiet face, Mr. Bergh caught the ruffian by the shoulder, whirled him round, grabbed the seat of his breeches and the nape of his neck, and with a splendid now-all-together sort of swing he dired him straight across the street, headon, into the snow bank. A silence of utter amazement was suddenly broken by one great swelling laugh, and they followed, the always thrilling sound, three glorious-ly hearty American cheers—and, best of all, many of the passengers came forward and shook Mr. Bergh heartily by the hand.

The horses then started with a lightened car, and my friend, who had witnessed this, joined him, walking silently by his side, until at last, in a low, moved tone, Mr. Bergh said: "It's coming—yes, I have faith to believe now, that it is coming; the public recognition and endorsement of our efforts. Those people finally understood I was not interfering from mere love of meddling." And beneath his mustache the nervous quiver of his lips betrayed his agitation.

Yes, indeed, this man had courage and the physical strength to back it and make it interesting, and who could yet half had a report reached him that cows and calves were tortured at the city's stock yards? Does any one suppose he would have sat still and sent a mere contradiction, as Mr. Haines has done three times in passing through Fulton Market, receive over, though the notice and evidence as fair in the face the uncleansed lights of well came to him from an established slaughtered animal, flung deliberately branch of the society at Gaining? That by one of the furious butchers, the act re- was one of the evils Mr. Bergh fought, ceiving guffaws of laughter from the other tooth and nail, and for which he was butchers looking on. And Mr. Bergh wiped most ridiculed. He would, at the first the face, which was immovable as a gray- hint of such suffering, have been on the en image, and passed on, calm and cold way to personally direct such agents as and silent. Sometimes a visit to the he had. But Mr. Bergh is dead. Mr. Gaining shop was needed to have stable Haines denies—and the animals suffer for- removed from his cost, but he made no re- monstrance, and never used his power to arrest for malicious mischief, disorderly conduct, or for hideous profanity and vile language used in a public place. Only steadily, unflinchingly, he arrested the butchers who made the moving of living animals to the slaughter a slow progress of agonizing and horror and anguish.

Red Tape and Vanity.

I only mention this feature of his hard struggle for the pleasure of saying that the time came when a long line of broad, extended hands awaited his taking when- ever he passed those same butcher stalls, every man of whom declared "Whet the old man said, stood! And it couldn't stand alone, why, they were there behind it—do ye see?"

These are but two of many such incidents. Refined and courtly, these experiences were revolting to him, yet he held on his hard way; and remembering these things it is a trifle surprising to read a fresh start the sweet boils, now so fan- that this "Society's spiritual triumph" came gled out of tone and harsh, may ring clear through Mr. Haines's smiling energy." WHAT would Mr. Henry Bergh have done this, folded him, walking silently by his side, until at last, in a low, moved tone, both in the trash of good breeding and calves were tortured at the city's stock. self-control, and New York began to listen to him from that very night.

The same friend has seen Mr. Bergh, then, as Mr. Haines has done three times since, receive over, though the notice and evidence as a slaughtered animal, flung deliberately by one of the furious butchers, the act re- was one of the evils Mr. Bergh fought, ceiving guffaws of laughter from the other tooth and nail, and for which he was butchers looking on. And it couldn't stand alone, why, they were there behind it—do ye see?"

These are but two of many such incidents. Refined and courtly, these experiences were revolting to him, yet he held on his hard way; and remembering these things it is a trifle surprising to read a fresh start the sweet boils, now so fan- that this "Society's spiritual triumph" came gled out of tone and harsh, may ring clear through Mr. Haines's smiling energy." WHAT would Mr. Henry Bergh have done

Undoubtedly Mr. Haines has begged well. has interested many influential and wealthy people in the society. That's nice, clean, easy work—that he enjoys.

But he has swelled "visibly" with pride and power. The red tape looms work over animals to the slaughter a slow progress of time to fill his orders for that irritating product. He seems as unfit for his position as any other big, swelled child. Great there may not be, but vanity there is in his management.

The dropping of the name of Bergh from the cause he brought into existence and suffered martyrdom for was very petty; the society should have clung to that brave-honored name.

It is good to see those highly-placed women, Mrs. Satterlee, Miss Anna Morgan, Mrs. Cadwallader Jones, Mrs. Hamilton and Miss Lee, fighting for the brave old society. They are within their rights in their demands, and when such women lead the best men will surely follow, and with things it is a trifle surprising to read a fresh start the sweet boils, now so fan- that this "Society's spiritual triumph" came gled out of tone and harsh, may ring clear through Mr. Haines's smiling energy." WHAT would Mr. Henry Bergh have done

ASTONISHING THINGS You May Not Know About Your Own Body.

How Science Has Just Invented Some New Appliances to Pry Into the Hidden Secrets of the Human Interior With Most Interesting Results.

MAN is even more fearfully and wonderfully made than he ever imagined, according to the latest experiments with new devices for seeing in and analyzing the living human organs at their work. A human being is, in fact, a veritable bombshell—the miracle being why he doesn't explode.

There is explosive matter enough in a 160-pound man to wreck a big building or sink a battleship. Dr. Adolph Heilborn has just completed an exhaustive series of experiments in various parts of Germany on living human beings.

According to Dr. Heilborn, thought, movement and even life itself are nothing but a series of small explosions in all parts of the body. In other words, all animals are gas engines like that in the gasoline automobile, only more complex.

"These gases of the human body, should they suddenly expand to their normal size, would cause a thunderous explosion powerful enough to sink a battleship."—Dr. Adolph Heilborn.

A man weighing 160 pounds contains 88 pounds of oxygen gas, 14 pounds of hydrogen, and a few pounds of other gases. In all his body holds about 107 pounds of air in a highly condensed and concentrated form, only to be compared with gasoline and gunpowder.

These gases of the human body, should they suddenly expand to their normal size, would cause a thunderous explosion, powerful enough to wreck a large building or sink a battleship. The fog from pounds of hydrogen alone would occupy 2,000 feet of space.

Life Is a Series of Explosions.

It may seem strange that we don't blow up. The fact is we do explode continuously from our birth to our death, and even for a time afterward. But the explosions are so small, so numerous and so well muffled that no ear or instrument can detect them.

Every thought or movement of the body means the setting off of a train of explosions. The waste gases pour out of our mouths, from the lungs and ooze through the skin and the kidneys. The heart, liver and stomach go puffing and banging away all day long like an automobile with a million cylinders.

Everywhere parts of these engines are breaking down and getting out of order. If our health is good repair goes on as fast as the breakage and the work of the body is done thoroughly. Sometimes repair is done on a larger scale than the waste and breakage. Then we have growth and increase in weight.

If the breakdowns occur faster than they are repaired the organs waste away, work accumulates, the system becomes clogged and unless things are readjusted in time a general disorganization follows—at least organized work stops and the person is dead.

For some time after the body as a whole is dead, groups of cells here and there live on, gradually succumbing to their altered conditions. They die just as the inhabitants of a large city would die if they could not leave their homes, should the water, gas, food and sewage systems suddenly stop.

The popular belief that the material of the body is renewed once every seven years is erroneous. The greater part of the matter in our bodies at this moment has been there from twenty to thirty days. The source of material for construction, reconstruction and repair is in our food.

It has been observed that a normal robust man of middle age loses about one-fourteenth of his weight in twenty-four hours, or eleven to thirteen pounds, in the summer he loses two pounds a day more than in Winter. The loss increases with the person's activity and decreases in idleness.

The greatest amount of this loss and repair or metabolism, as it is called, occurs between the thirtieth and fortieth years of life—that is to say when man's creative energy is most fully developed. It is greater in man than in women and children, and is, as Moleschott has observed, the measure of life.

Professor Fischer, of Paris, has discovered that an average man in a working day gives off enough heat to run an engine of about one-half horsepower. According to his figures man, as a motive power, is 100 times as expensive as mechanical energy.

Of all man's needs the most indispensable is air, for it contains the most important of all nutriments, oxygen, without which life is impossible. For to live is to breathe, to burn, to oxidize. As soon as the proportion of oxygen in the air falls from the normal 21 per cent to 7 per cent suffocation commences.

In ordinary breathing a little more than a pint is inhaled and exhaled at every complete breath. Though the quantity is the same when the air leaves the lungs as when it enters, the quality is very different.

The air expelled from the lungs contains much more carbonic acid and moisture and much less oxygen. The quantity of carbonic acid given off is increased by exercise, and is greater with vegetable diet than with animal.

In twenty-four hours a man absorbs about 26 ounces, or 143 gallons, of oxygen and excretes about 32 ounces, or 124 gallons, of carbonic acid.

How the Lungs Work.

The oxygen and the other constituents of the inhaled air pass through the windpipe and all the branches and chambers of the lungs until they reach the thin-walled "lobules," which they fill and distend. These lobules are surrounded by a fine network formed of the small ramifications of the pulmonary blood vessels, and an exchange of gases takes place through the thin porous walls of both blood vessels and lobules, which are in close contact. Oxygen enters the blood vessels, combines chemically with the blood corpuscles and is carried with the blood through the arteries and their fine terminations, the capillaries, which permeate every part of the body. The capillary network, again, converges into the system of veins. In its passage through the capillaries the blood gives up its oxygen to the chemical laboratories, the cells, receiving carbonic acid in exchange, which it conveys to the lungs to be again exchanged for oxygen, as has been described. A smaller but much smaller exchange of carbonic acid for oxygen takes place through the skin.

But the chemical factory of the body requires also for the manufacture of its great variety of products material more substantial than air, and this is supplied, as Moleschott has observed, the measure of or rather concealed, in food. The oxygen is, so to speak, merely the fuel for the engines and retorts—a wonderful fuel, for it bathes, heats, permeates, unites with and transforms the retorts and their contents alike.

How Much You Should Eat.

The most important nutriments are albuminoids, fats, carbohydrates, water and mineral salts. The celebrated physiologists Voigt and Pettenkofer, of Munich, have computed the quantities of these substances required every twenty-four hours, as follows:

	Laborer.	Metal w'k'r.	Prisoner.
	Grms. Oz.	Grms. Oz.	Grms. Oz.
Albumen	118 4¼	127 4½	37 2¾
Fat	56 2	84 3	21 ¾
Carbo'd's	500 17¾	382 13½	305 10¾
	12500 90
Water	to
	3500 100

Professor W. O Atwater, of Wesleyan University, in his long series of experiments with "the man in a box," proved that alcohol in small amounts could be used to run the human engine, just as some mechanical engines are run on this same fuel. Large quantities, however, are to be feared and did more harm than good.

At Middletown, Conn., Professor Atwater constructed an air-tight box, surrounded by a dead air space and other substances to prevent the escape of heat. A young man was confined in this box for ten days at a time. Every bit of air that was pumped in him was measured and its temperature registered.

The air pumped out of the room was measured likewise. Food and drink were measured exactly and the amount of exercise and work he did tabulated. During the entire ten days he was not allowed to so much as open the door of his box and had to do his talking through a telephone.

The young man, who was a Wesleyan undergraduate, pursued his regular studies during confinement and for exercise rode a stationary bicycle which, with a chair, table, folding bed and other articles, were in the hermetically closed box.

Such investigations and experiments as these, which seem at first glance more curiosity and barrs of practical results, are the data on which later cures and invaluable discoveries are based.

Every Twenty-four Hours Your Breathing Consumes Sufficient Oxygen to Fill a Box Nine Feet Long, Three Feet Wide and Three Feet High.

This carbon, weighing nine ounces, represents the quantity you exhale as carbonic acid every twenty-four hours.

Prof. W. O. Atwater's remarkable experiments at Middletown, Conn., in which he kept his human subjects in pens and tanks as the bacteriologist keeps his germs, bear out Dr. Heilborn's statements.

How Science Has Shown That Your Body Is a Great Chemical Factory.

By Dr. Adolph Heilborn.

IN the great chemical factory of the human body there is no holiday. Millions upon millions of cells work night and day manufacturing and converting vital force into heat, work and electricity. Every portion of the body even in the cool bones are hot, is full of constant motion though the person is apparently quiet in sleep.

The sum total of this energy can only be equalled by a powerful engine. And the comparison is apt, for the body is indeed an engine of marvellous complexity and efficiency, but still an engine. Like the steam and gas engines it works by explosion and explosion of gases and vapors.

A KING'S NIECE PINES FOR LOVE LAVISHED ON AMERICAN GIRL.

Though Ready to Renounce Rank, Title and Precedence, for Him, Royal Princess Patricia Is Neglected by the Young Marquis of Anglesey for Fair-Haired "Billy" Burke.

London, Feb. 24.

GOSSIP riots about the new Marquis of Anglesey. On one side is heard, "He's the luckiest fellow in the world, for a royal princess has fallen in love with him!"

On the other "He is the most foolhardy of lunatic beings, for he has declared his love for an actress!"

What a situation! The Princess Patricia of Connaught, cousin of the Princess Ena of Battenberg, who is to marry the King of Spain and niece of King Edward of England, is ready to renounce her title to become the Marchioness of Anglesey.

Meanwhile the Marquis of Anglesey, according to all those who know, has offered his heart and his title to "Billy" Burke, late of the music halls, now an actress upon the comic opera stage. In fact, there are those who already call her "Marchioness Billy," while the great world that stands in awe of a princess gasps in amazement and talks about another young nobleman gone wrong.

They had great hopes of the new Marquis, in spite of his close relationship to the last one, that most extravagant of speedthrift peers, whom they called "theatre mad." At his death a year ago his title and estates went to his first cousin, Charles Henry Alexander Paget, eldest son of the late Lord Alexander Paget and the present Marquis of Anglesey.

He is tall and fair and modest and just twenty-one. His father's friends tried to remember only that he was a great-grandson of the Field Marshal and hero of Waterloo, and to forget that he was first cousin to the man who spent a fortune on clothes and jewels that made him notorious, and whose chief ambition was to run Anglesey Castle as a theatre, where he maintained a company of players at fabulous expense.

That Marquis of Anglesey was dead and evidently even the royal family of England were prepared to forget the recklessness that made him the talk of the town. The new Marquis seemed serious, sedate, well behaved. He was welcomed everywhere for he is a catch in spite of the fact that the extravagances of his predecessors have somewhat depleted the Anglesey estates. The late Marquis ran through two millions of dollars in addition to his annual income of some $500,000 in the short space of six years, but he couldn't ruin his magnificent estates completely because his creditors took hold of them and in the last years of his life doled him out only just enough to live on. Meanwhile his coal mines and brewery lands at Burton-on-Trent were increasing in value at a wonderful rate. In spite of himself the late Marquis died rich.

The young Marquis inherits coal mines and brewery lands from which he derives a splendid fortune. He is the owner of New Palace or Anglesey Castle, which is a famous piece of property situated on the Menai Strait, in North Wales, and of Beaudesert Park, Staffordshire.

Of course, he is a catch, for besides his properties he seems so scholarly and wise, not a bit like his effeminate predecessor. In fact, he gives every evidence of being as different from the late dandy as "Billy" Burke is from the King's niece, Patricia of Connaught.

But his love for "Billy" Burke hadn't been heard of in court circles when he was an honored guest at the coming out ball given last year for the Princess Ena of Battenberg. There the young Marquis danced and chatted with the Princess Patricia.

It was observed that she received his attentions with marked pleasure, but that he seemed anxious to divide them even then with another.

Of course, "Billy" Burke wasn't at that royal ball, but Lady Ivy Gordon-Lennox, only daughter of Lord Algernon Lennox, was, and the Marquis flitted from her to the Princess in a way that suggested no very serious intention toward either. But Patricia is very young, and, according to the gossips, she let her heart run away with her.

In royal conclave, it is said, the first family of England decided that there was no reason why this youngest daughter of Duke should not condescend to the Marquis of Anglesey. Indirectly and in royal fashion it was conveyed to the young Marquis that he might continue his attentions, he might even double them—yes—he might hope for everything.

Anglesey was in despair, perhaps "Billy" was, too. This was very much like a royal command. Then the Marquis began to wriggle. He intimated with much diplomacy that he could not consent to take the position of being merely the husband of a royal princess.

"Not at all," cried poor little Patricia. "I will relinquish all—all. Title—position—everything for love."

Still the Marquis held off. What was the reason? What could it be? At last the name of "Billy" Burke penetrated to the innermost court circles that hold Patricia of Connaught.

"Billy" Burke.

The name was enough—"Billy." How on earth could she be any sort of a lady with a name like that? "Billy."

The dame of aristocracy declared she must be a hoyden, an adventuress, a bold, bad ——

Meanwhile they were destined to hear a great deal about her, not only because the Marquis of Anglesey adulred her, but because all London admired her. The name of "Billy" Burke was on the lips of the whole theatre-going public.

"Have you seen her dimples?"

"Hasn't she the sweetest smile?"

"And such lights in her hair and her eyes! Such a figure! Such grace! Such a charming voice!"

Gradually "Billy" Burke's critics, the most aristocratic dames of England, crowded the Prince of Wales's Theatre during the run of "The School Girl." They declared that they went just to see for themselves what she was like and merely out of curiosity to see what kind of a creature this was to attract a noble lord.

"Billy" Burke smiled at them so sweetly and cooed such ravishing sounds into their ears that after they had "just seen" they stayed to see some more. One of the sights that they might see any night was the young Marquis of Anglesey, buried in a seat right down in front with his eyes riveted upon the stage.

At a given moment every night, after she had received two recalls for her canoe song, "Billy" Burke was handed a bunch of the most gorgeous American Beauty roses that could be found in London. Under her paint the color would rush to her cheeks, a new light would leap to her eyes, her face would become a mass of dimples, she would seem to look directly at the Marquis of Anglesey, and then she would bury her smiling lips deep into the roses.

The nightly repetition of this scene had made the gossips alert. Dowagers and Johnnies recounted it from end to end of London. Every one who went at all in the gay world has known for months that the roses "Billy" Burke pressed to her lips every night of the week were the Marquis of Anglesey's. It was an announcement of her love.

The story of what led up to this is variously told; but the true one seems to be that the young Marquis, who is one of the eligible, most dignified chaps in the world, strolled into the Prince of Wales's Theatre one evening before "Billy" Burke had really made a hit. She had only the part of a laundry maid in Madame Sans Gene's establishment.

It was in the operetta of "The Duchess of Iranticc." Unaccountably the Marquis of Anglesey was in the audience. "Billy" Burke tripped on the stage, and the young Marquis grabbed up his glasses.

"I must know her!" he cried to some young man who has the reputation of being able to accomplish anything.

"Why, you won't like her," he protested. "She's just a wispy slip of a girl full of fun and dimples."

"Present me, please."

And it was done. "Billy" Burke smiled bowed before the Marquis of Anglesey. He was tall, and amiable, and charming and very serious. Like every one in England, and many people out of it, "Billy" Burke knew all about the young man's predecessor.

The former Marquis, with an income of one hundred and ten thousand pounds per annum, had gone into debt before he died for half a million sterling. When he retired to the Riviera, where he passed the last years of his life, he owed his butcher, his baker, his tailor, his servants, in order that he might own the most wonderful collection of precious stones and the most extensive of wardrobes.

"Never," said Lady Mary Somerset, "has any human being squandered money to so alarming an extent, and never has a perverted taste produced such an exhibition of folly."

When finally the creditors of the late Marquis, some months before his death, were forced to take action, Anglesey Castle was found to be a treasure palace full of the most amazing surprises. Higgledy, piggledy, thrown loose into a drawer there were found some $125,000 of gems.

It will be a charming place for "Billy" Marchioness of Anglesey, to live, for it is in the midst of a beautifully wooded park, with ideal covers for holding game. Just close to the house is a great lily pond, and beyond that miles and miles of sloping meadows, in June a mass of bluebells. The house itself is Elizabethan, with a great gallery and a huge banqueting hall.

By Mrs. Osborn

PARIS, Feb. 25.

EMPIRE styles will dominate everything in the world of fashion this spring. There has been a determined stand made against this innovation, because it involves a revolution in all the parts of a woman's wardrobe and becomes a burden of expense in most cases. Compromises have been effected in the Empire modes, but the season of 1806 is almost comically reproduced in that of 1906 just a hundred years later.

Certain gowns show the same lines. The fitted yoke with its pointed effect in the back and front; the little bolero jacket—either all around or only in front; the long, clinging Empire gown falling below the short-waisted upper portion just described, and the sleeve small and puffed at the top and with a fitted portion at the bottom, of an absence of sleeve below the middle arm. The woman of 1806 might step into a Paris, London or New York dressing room and be entirely in the fashion, from toe to[e] bonnet or comical little Empire hat on her head, the scarf about her shoulders and little bolero jacket, to the beaded or embroidered slippers peeping beneath the flowing lines of her gown.

It might be noted that her slippers were without heels—or nearly so as we count heels—and that her gown had no train, as ours have, but many such gowns are now made without trains here, in Paris, although I am certain these will not meet with favor in New York.

Since adaptations of new modes are always made for Americans who will not accept an unbecoming style of dress in its entirety, I will point out the novelties in dress here which will be taken over to America and worn there from now on.

Practically all sleeves will be short. The gown sleeve will terminate in moderate puffs reaching as far as the elbow in afternoon, house and street gowns and just below the shoulder in evening gowns. Cuffs and bands of lace or embroidery will finish these, all trimmed in a more or less flat style. Coats will have the same style of sleeve in elbow and three-quarter lengths and both dress and coat sleeves will be supplemented with long, fitted cuffs of embroidery or lace or one with long wrinkled kid gloves.

Practical coats for certain forms of outdoor amusements and the like will have long or three-quarter sleeves and automobile coats will show three-quarter sleeves, but all coats for dressy occasions with appear with abbreviated sleeves.

Spring coats will accommodate themselves to the Empire lines of the gown, whether these be fitted in princess style or semi-fitted in the popular Empire adaptation. They will be very short or very long with an Empire top.

The high corselet skirt, in Empire or princess cut, will be worn with a dainty blouse whose long lace or embroidery cuffs will show below the short sleeves of the jacket. As many waists are worn with short sleeves as with long cuffs, and numbers of them are supplied with several detachable sleeves of lace or lingerie which can be removed every day and replaced with fresh ones.

The Empire Blouse and New Spring Shirtwaist.

Most startling among the new separate waists and blouses for Spring is the Empire blouse. Although built upon the lines of 1806, this charming and comfortable garment is strictly a 1906 creation.

The Empire blouse is made of the pin-tuck like order known of the dainty sort; with border of embroidery and lace, pretty lace collar effects, fancy designs of various kinds and soft folds of material put on a thin, almost fitted, lining, in an effect of loose comfort and artistic grace. The sleeves are made either long or elbow length, but all of these blouses terminate just below the bust in a wide, soft girdle or with folds of material cunningly arranged as though they fell naturally around the top of the corselet skirt at this point.

The Empire blouse is made of the material of the dress mingled with some pretty contrasting fabric and embellished with smart trimmings, or it is made of lace or of embroidery mingled with cloth of gold, silver, chiffon or net for evening wear, or for some smart afternoon gown. It is intended for the most part, to be worn without a jacket, and when a jacket supplements the skirt the blouse is made with simpler sleeves and most of the decoration in front.

It will be quite the correct thing to have one of more such blouses to wear with our Empire and princess gowns, just as we have always had several separate waists to wear with skirt and jacket suits in the past.

No amount of Empire gowns or of dress gowns, either, will rob us of the lovely separate waists and blouses which Paris is introducing for the spring. In this respect Paris has copied New York, where the smartest separate waists in the world are produced—and Paris admits this. We will wear these blouses with our corselet skirts of not quite so high a build as they appear here, and with our ordinary skirts, which will not go out of style this year so far as beginning at the waist line goes. We will, however, generally wear a belt that will give a short-waisted appearance to those gowns worn with a short jacket, and most of our dresses will do this.

Since so many will wear the long cuffs during the colder part of Spring, blouses have been selected to show how the sleeves are made in the regulation elbow length with handsome cuffs reaching to the elbow which may be detached at will for cleaning purposes, and may be removed altogether if one wants to have the arm bare to the elbow.

Blouses of lace and chiffon to match a gown, or its trimmings, will also be worn during the Spring, and these will be very fancy, as, indeed, all blouses for Spring are made.

Neckwear for Spring is a very inclusive term this season, since there are so many varieties of things worn about the neck and shoulders which are not strictly neckwear, but which may be classed as such.

Paris has introduced charming stoles, both flat and round, but preferably flat, of marabou feathers trimmed with scallops and circles and wavy lines of ostrich feather. Usually these are in contrasts, such as white marabou with blue ostrich feather trimmings, pink, with white, or gray with black or white. The coloring is all very pale and soft, and large flat muffs to match are worn.

Smart Spring Neckwear.

The dainty chiffon stole, with muff, also appears among Spring novelties. A hat trimmed to match both stole and muff is a feature of these sets which are too perishable to have any great following.

All sorts of odd shapes in cape effects, cape boleros, deep collars and little bolero jackets appear in combinations of lace and embroidery and, what is odder still, with parts of the sleeves made of the dress or blouse material. These are all as pretty as art and fine workmanship can make them and are bewitching accessories to the wardrobe. They are intended to be worn over all sorts of Spring dresses and wraps, and form an elaborate finish to a plain bodice or coat.

The combination of heavy with light laces is wonderfully beautiful when skillfully handled. In a bolero of heavy lace with lighter lace borders I have seen a small sleeve of blue crepe de Chine finished with a wide border of the lighter lace. Another bolero had the tops of the sleeves and part of the coat collar of yellow crepe de Chine.

This material lends itself admirably to combination with lace and is used a good deal in the manufacture of such novelties as I have mentioned.

Coat collars and cuffs of lingerie are built along the same lines as those we had last Autumn, only they are more elaborate and are made of richer and more delicate materials. Lingerie cuffs, in regular cuff shape, go with the coat collars, only the cuffs are tacked on at the elbow instead of at the wrist, and are, therefore, longer around.

A perfect craze exists for little bolero jackets of lace. Irish lace being the favorite, and nearly all of them combine at least two kinds of lace. Sometimes small pieces of embroidered linen are inserted in the lace design.

Both wide and narrow scarfs of lace are worn around the neck and much larger scarfs of like make are used to throw about the shoulders, over the head and as shawls.

The Empire furor for scarfs of this sort has been transplanted to this year and century, and, although we do not tie up our dresses in voluminous scarfs of lace and fine tissue we use scarfs in every way we can think of. They float from our hats, our necks and our shoulders; we tie bits of illusion around our arms in the evening, with the ends floating, Empire fashion, and drape scarfs down the fronts and backs of our handsome negligees and teagowns.

The ugly little Empire hat and the 1806 poke bonnet, of the Empire period, have reappeared in the smart millinery shops of Paris, and are drifting over to London and New York. They are somewhat modernized, and, in most cases, they are concealed as much as flowers, plumes and drapery can conceal a hat.

What is known as the Empire hat is shaped like a man's low-crowned derby hat with a flat brim. It is smaller than a derby hat and meant to be perched upon the head, with a tilt forward, rather than to fit the head, as most hats do. Some are trimmed with a wreath of roses, some with a twist of diaphanous material and a cabochon to one side of the front holding a long aigrette or ostrich plume; some with ruchings of gauze and a tuft of feathers or flowers, or bows to one side, and practically all have a small bandeau in the back covered with tulle, lace, chiffon, ribbon loops or with flowers and feathers.

How Empire Styles Dominate Smart Spring Hats.

Most of the Empire hats are built with a stylish dip over on one side, as Dough the hat were not only tilted forward but about to fall off sideways. The tilted side has a bandeau covered with puffings of tulle or chiffon and trimmed with sweeping aigrettes or ostrich plumes. Sometimes a golden and sometimes a silver or pink rose is worn toward the front, just under or over the brim. Flowers, or ribbon and flowers, also form trimmings upon the sides and on top of these tilted hats. Loosely twisted cause of gold or silver, with a bow, is the usual finish around the crown.

Nothing equals the aigrette as a fashionable hat trimming and nothing is half so expensive. Aigrettes are used upon all styles and shapes of hats for Spring. Sometimes one of these costly decorations, fastened with a jeweled buckle, is the only adornment of a hat of fine quality. Irish lace hats are very smart with a simple trimming of aigrettes and the usual bunch of lace or mallne at the back.

The Empire hat is by no means the favorite or smartest hat for Spring wear. At present mushroom, coolie and other drooping shapes, and new twists of the tricorne, with Empire crowns and tilt, are very smart. These shapes are made of straw, hair braid, mallne and chiffon upon wire frames, lace, embroidery, straw and velvet combinations and straw and silk combinations.

The plaque is a favorite hat form. It is a big flat circle of pliable straw or hair braid and is bent and twisted into all sorts of smart shapes, trimmed to suit the shape of one's face and mounted on bandeaus of all kinds. One of the hats illustrated is made of a plaque twisted into folds, like those of Ribbons of gold and silver are very much used upon Spring hats, and gold and silver laces and braids are seen mingled with many sorts of hat trimmings.

Prominent among Spring hats are leghorn shapes, which are admirably adapted to the numberless shades of straw color and yellow which will be worn this Spring. The Porto Rican hat is one of the Panama or leghorn straws that is very smart. These straws will be worn in large and small sizes, and in drooping and upturned shapes.

The small sailor crown is as prominent as any in Spring hats. It has a smaller brim, where the brim is flat, and a larger one to one side, where the brim is tilted, than the old shape of sailor hat.

The all-flower and foliage hat is not as much in evidence this year as it has hitherto been in the Spring time. More feather and ribbon trimming is seen, with draperies of gold, silver, tulle, chiffon and other diaphanous stuffs.

Velvet, liberty satin and panne are favorites in ribbon trimming and soft millinery silks come in shaded stripes of color that form very effective decorations.

A great deal of trimming at the back is observable in most of the Spring hats for the reason that all have more or less of a tilt over the face and have a high bandeau at the back covered with what is commonly known as "cascade" trimming.

From present indications I should say that there will not be so many little pointed shapes worn during the Spring. People who affect the little pointed hat will no doubt adopt the little rounded Empire hat.

Perhaps the most novel hat material is that made of alternate rows of straw and velvet ribbon, or straw and lace. The combination is both odd and effective. Hats of platinum gauze, gold mesh and silver mesh are also very new and are made in shapes like other draped hats and trimmed simply, since the material forms a decorative scheme of itself.

Veils for Spring will not be very pronounced features. They are large and lace of figured lace or of chiffon trimmed with borders of lace woven in with the chiffon.

Gloves for Spring.

For Spring the long dressed kid or suede glove is the only possible thing. We require something warm enough to take the place of our missing sleeves during the cool days of early Spring and the long wrinkled glove serves the purpose very well. These gloves are very long, are tinted in every color necessary to match gowns and are quite expensive. White and black gloves may be worn with gowns whose color cannot be matched, and there are many colors of gowns that look well with either white or black gloves.

The conspicuousness of the long glove makes it necessary that it should fit well and wrinkle artistically. Some have two or three buttons and some are without buttons. Both styles are in vogue.

With long sleeves, gloves with one button are worn with walking costumes, and three-button kid gloves with dresses of a more conventional type. Spring gloves do not show the fancy inner linings at the top which distinguished gloves of last season.

We decline to wear the bewitching shoes of the Empire, but we imitate the pretty buttoned straps and the charming embroidery upon the toes of slippers, as well as the many colors which reigned at the gay court of France during the days of Josephine.

Shoe dealers offer shoes of cut-kid in all the smart Spring colors, with rose greens, mauves and grays predominating. Tans have been replaced by the new tints of russet, straw and pale gold seen in Spring colors. Sky blue is another leather color and any quantity of shoes are made of raw silk and linen, in gown colors, embroidered simply but richly. The fact that all these varied colors are to be had ready made in shoes is an evidence that women will be compelled to wear colored shoes this Spring or lose very oddly gowned, indeed. Every gown demands its shoe. The nearest compromise is a patent leather shoe with a cloth top to match the gown and buttons to match the tops in color.

A type of Colonial shoe is smart, worked over in golden eagle wings, typical of the eagles of Napoleon. A great deal of gold embroidery is shown upon leather, undressed kid, satin and brocaded shoes and slippers, while steel embroidery is almost as popular. Gold and steel embroidery appears upon all colors of shoes and is particularly effective upon white or black.

Belts and Buckles for Spring.

French heels are not to be seen upon any but silken made shoes. The Cuban heel, milder than before, has supplanted it, and is to be seen upon both high and low shoes and slippers.

There is quite a fad for getting new effects in the interlacing of jetted, beaded and embroidered straps upon smart slippers and shoes, while colored straps for street wear above the stupid old instep leather or silk bows. These bows are just two flat loops or, at most, two loops of silk that stand out a bit.

Colored calfskin shoes are made to clean just as easily as tan shoes do and are very attractive in appearance.

With white gowns, except where the hat and scarf are colored, white shoes and stockings will be worn.

It is something of a paradox to say that belts are both important and unimportant among Spring modes, but the styles of dress which will prevail do not admit of the use of many belts and changes in them are not very marked. Newest among them are the high Empire belts of leather, tinted to match a costume or the trimmings and fitted with long side buckles, shaped to the figure, as well as eliminate buckles to be worn in the front or back or in both places. Besides the buckle ornaments upon these belts they are further embellished with short straps of leather and with jewels, both real and imitation, and steel and gilt nail heads studded all over them.

The newest belt of the Spring is one of velvet with a gilt buckle in front. It fastens in the back with large gilt hooks and is wider in front than in the back. This is an adaptation of Paquin's belt which has been worn during the Winter.

Another new belt is of grosgrain ribbon in pastel colors, with gilt or jewelled buckles of the Empire order. More silk, with a gilt buckle in the back and front, also forms one of the new belts, while elastic belts, studded with steel or jewels, come in all the new Spring colors. These are all belts of somewhat narrow size.

Very wide belts of pompadour ribbon, shirred along wheelbones at regular intervals, and the same width all around, are quite new. Quite a number of these will be worn with thin gowns later in the Spring.

There is a decided fancy for studding narrow belts with cut steel and many have gilt or jewel studding.

Smart Spring Jewelry.

Gun metal is popular as a buckle for belts, and rhinestone and large gilt buckles studded with jewels are among the newest styles to be seen. Most of these are oval in shape, or in odd-shaped square. They are extremely long and are made in open frame patterns rather than in heavy designs, although antique buckles in solid workmanship are worn as much as ever.

Jewel belts are made with the jewels linked together with Empire designs upon flat gold tissue. Several strands of these are joined in one belt and the buckle is made of the same jewels in an elaborate setting.

Jewelry is being worn more than formerly with street and house costumes. Jewelled combs for the hair are just as popular now as they have been during the Winter, and an increase of combs with gold enamelled tops and jewelled tops is to be seen.

One of the pretty fads of the season is to have a set of six to eight diamond bars of various sizes. A long bar, or collar support, is set on each side the lace stock to hold it up; another fastens the front of the stock, two smaller ones fasten the back and two fasten the back of each cuff. Many women are satisfied with one on each cuff, but it is smarter to have two. These collar and cuff sets are made of all the precious stones, in slender bars that add very much to the attractiveness of a costume.

Brooches of large stones set in smaller ones are in vogue as well as the more elaborate ornaments of dog's heads, showing grenouilles, butterflies and flowers in jewels. Jewelled necklaces with jewelled pendants, dog collars, and long chains of jewels are all smart for Spring. The long chains have links of platinum or gilt links of gold, handsomely chased or engraved, between the stones.

Bracelets of jewelled chains are smarter than the round ones of gold, engraved or set with jewels, and a new fancy is to have bands of velvet or ribbon around the neck and wrists, fastened with jewelled clasps.

Hand bags and purses are enriched with jewels that harmonize with the color of the leather. Vanity bags are possessed by every woman, containing jewelled tablets of color for lips and cheeks, powder cases and puffs, pencils for the eyebrows and tiny gold and ivory bottles that hold a liquid to brighten the eyes. The jewels in and on the outside of a well-dressed woman's vanity bag represent a large sum.

Opera purses, dog whistles, and everything of the kind used this Spring are set with precious stones.

Buttons of real and imitation stones have quite taken the place of the old fashioned china and metal topped ones. In suede, the buttons now match none down in color in the gown or hat, and that means taking a large supply of buttons since every gown has its own hat.

Every year the maker of fabrics takes a leaf from the book of Nature in bringing out colors to suit the season. Yellow flowers and those of orchid pink and orchid purple are first to adorn the world in the early days of Spring and the fashionable Spring colors range in all the pale, dull tints of yellow and saffron, soft grays, verging into lilacs, mauves and almost into pinks, leaf green the color of the fresh leaf shades of rose color, like the deeper tints of the apple blossoms, and the blue of the wild violet and the ...

Victor Hugo tells us that puce was the fashionable color in 1830, so it is not surprising that in our revival of the fashions of that day puce color should be found among the smart colors of the spring of 1906.

Colors for Spring.

This will be a Spring of color. Never have we had more gorgeous brocades, showing flowers and birds and butterflies, in natural colors upon silk and satin grounds, the whole illuminated with ... of silver threads. An infinite variety of new ... of established colors have been introduced ... show brocaded stripes of alternate ... and ... satin, with velvet flowers upon the texture. Every trick of the loom has been employed to bring out beautiful novelties in bright patterns of contrasting colors and materials and whatever the dullness of hue may be in English costumes, France and America will plot in a perfect feeling of color in dress.

One of the most striking of the new fabrics for spring is poplin, in a degree of ... and softness never achieved in poplin before, and in effects whose beauty cannot be surpassed. Poplin comes in several weights, the sheerest ... being almost as fine as chiffon.

... cloth of gold and cloth of ... appear in supple forms that may be ... used by the dressmaker, and practically all the brocades are soft and supple, rather than stiff, as formerly.

The trend of all new fabrics for Spring is to produce soft, clinging folds, and some of the old time materials woven in the new style would not be able to recognize themselves in the fashionable drape of last.

Linen is a new-old material that appears in close, interesting weaves and in the handkerchief, dotted and barred effects that come in spring fabrics.

Plain satins and ribbon silks, French tropical cloths, shaded worsteds, new effects in mohairs, Australian unmixed worsted, French grenadines, Panamas, twillings, English serges and tweeds, French cashmeres, voiles and suitings, Austrian poplins, linens and many similar weaves of fabrics appear in exquisite tints, shadow effects, cross bars, check, shadow plaids, hair stripes, diagonal stripes in all grays, delicate pompadour designs and cable effects.

Shadow barred checks and plaids form a basic ground to most of the striped materials, giving a mysterious air of some pattern back of the stripe which is shadowed forth in the goods rather than marked upon it. In all the worsted, linen and cotton fabrics this sort of stripe will prevail in suiting made gowns. Only silks, satins and chiffons exhibit the bolder, pronounced stripe.

The Empire and Other Smart Spring Corsets

The Empire corset is a new name given to what has been hitherto known as the bust supporter. With corselet skirts, boned as not to need a corset proper, figures of average size, if worn, the Empire style is deemed to give a proper netting to the top of the gown. It is also worn with all the loose, flowing indoor Empire gowns that do not need a corset.

The prettiest Empire corset is made of strong satin ribbon, less than an inch in width, woven in four sleeves. Two have strong satin bands down the front with four pearl buttons to button them on. They are shaped to the figure and extend only to where the regular corset usually begins. The other two pieces are laced in eyelets in the back with silk lacing of the same color. Each side has two elastic bands, run through shirred ribbon, connecting the sides under the arms, and over each should a similar band forms a shoulder strap.

The new Spring corset is made more with relation to the princess than to the Empire gown. It is higher than corsets have been in several years, much longer below the hip, where it must fit particularly well, and has a decided modification of the straight front. Instead of the fluffy farbelows that have trimmed corsets and been worn with them for some seasons past, the corsets are made of very strong materials and are handsomely embroidered in open work English eyelet embroidery, or in blind embroidery of the same color, or in compadour tints in raised satin stitch embroidery. Appliques of handsome lace trim some of the corsets, but all trimmings are flat and done by hand.

The Wages of Sin is Death

Miss Lulu Rowland

Mabel Rowland.

Was It Divine Vengeance in Most Frightful Form That Overtook Pretty Lulu Rowland and Her Sister Mabel and Young Mr. Hazzard on the Ill-Fated Steamer Valencia?

OF the one hundred and thirty-two persons who perished in the foundering of the steamship Valencia in the "graveyard of the seas" off the coast of British Columbia in January, three—a young man and two young women, both in their teens—were overtaken by death in their flight to escape facing an earthly tribunal.

Roy Hazzard, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Mabel and Lulu Rowland, of Oxnard, Cal., were passengers on the Valencia when she foundered, and the sea [illegible] has since given up the bodies of the man and one of the women as [illegible] proof that the fugitives escaping from [illegible] were apprehended by a higher [illegible].

While earthly justice [illegible] and the pursuit of [illegible] relatives, friends and [illegible] forbear to ask whether Heaven did not exact an awful punishment upon them.

On that terrible [illegible] the stanch ship, carried far from [illegible] fierce storms and hopeless [illegible] the fiercest of seas, struck on the [illegible] and jagged rocks of Sea Bird [illegible] fought harder, more desperately [illegible] persistently to save their [illegible] than the young man and the two women.

In those hours of terror which seemed centuries long to all who passed through them and lived to relate their experiences, Roy Hazzard, Mabel and Lulu Rowland struggled for their lives as though they dared not die. With almost superhuman might they, inexperienced as they were with vessels, climbed the wind whipped rigging and clung with the tenacity of despair and horror to the ropes until their senses were benumbed and one by one they were beaten by the pitiless gale into the hungry, leaping sea which engulfed them.

Was their terrible fate a fitting finale to the closing chapters of their lives? those who are acquainted with some of the circumstances have asked one another.

"Well, I guess it is for the best that it happened that way, for I was going to disinherit them both anyway," H. L. Rowland, a prosperous business man of Oxnard, father of the fugitive girls, is said to have declared when in his grief and shame he was informed of the flight of his children and of their tragic [illegible] almost the same time.

The same day [illegible] a telegram reading, "Girls [illegible] come and identify them," he had been handed a letter from Roy Hazzard telling him that Mabel and Lulu had fled northward from San Francisco with him on the Valencia. This letter was dated Los Angeles and was to have been posted the day the ship sailed so that pursuit would have been impossible, but somehow it was not delivered to the mails until the day of the wreck.

E. L. Hazzard, father of the young man, and under bail of $5,000 in an action at law in which pretty Lulu Rowland, sixteen years of age, was the prosecuting witness, received a telegram worded exactly as was that to the father of the girls.

Both men hastened to Seattle and thence to Victoria, where the realization of all of their fears was experienced in the identification of the dead. Both knew at a glance the body of Mabel Rowland.

Roy Hazzard Saved His Father.

Though death had sealed her lips her father knew more surely than if she herself had confessed it that she had plotted with Roy Hazzard to take Lulu from Los Angeles and from the jurisdiction of California courts that E. L. Hazzard might not be compelled to face her accusations.

Too late the father remembered how Mabel had coaxed and pleaded, aided by the influence of E. L. Hazzard, who is a real estate broker, to be allowed to go to Los Angeles and keep house for Lulu, who was Hazzard's stenographer.

Too late the father learned that Mabel, two years Lulu's senior, instead of befriending her sister, influenced her to flight rather than remain in Los Angeles and give her testimony against her employer in a suit which had been [illegible] against him by the State.

Roy Hazzard had said: "I will get that girl out of the country and save my father."

He did so and he forfeited his own life in the enterprise.

The cooperation of Mabel was early secured, Roy accomplishing this himself. It was represented to her that Lulu might flee the country with her and that they might live in British Columbia or anywhere their fancy should choose. They would have money in plenty. But the elder Hazzard must not be faced by the girl in a Los Angeles court.

In their modest comfortable home, No. 1153 South [illegible] street, Los Angeles, Mabel persuaded Lulu to consent to flight with Roy Hazzard. She was young and romantic, and the elder sister painted a bright future for the girl. They should go, the three of them, to the north; a splendid ocean voyage awaited them and sights and scenes in lands they had only dreamed of.

The younger girl was soon brought to consent, and Roy Hazzard made the plans for the journey that was to save his father from prosecution and possible ruin and disgrace.

Although his daughter was to be an important witness in a suit against the man who had employed her, Rowland, the father, in his comfortable Oxnard home, felt that she was safe. Was not her older sister, Mabel, with her?

It was this false sense of security that enabled young Roy Hazzard to carry out his plans. With no witness to inform the father of the flight of his girls, on January 18 they left Los Angeles for San Francisco, where they were joined by Hazzard, who had gone on to [illegible] the V[illegible] the [illegible] a [illegible] entered [illegible] San [illegible] was [illegible] terrible to them, fleeing as they were from [illegible] anxious to secure passage on [illegible] he knew, would [illegible] pursuit by human law in [illegible].

[illegible] register their names were West, Miss Martin and Miss [illegible] for the purpose of [illegible] Miss Sampson" and [illegible] Martin." Their relationship to West," was not discovered by passengers until the Valencia [illegible] rocks and was pounding her [illegible] upon them.

[illegible] girls occupied state room [illegible] that occupied by Professor [illegible] family. Professor Banker [illegible] of hearing the girls ad[illegible] as "Lulu" and "Mabel" [illegible] in company with young Hazzard [illegible] thought nothing of it at the [illegible] them mere acquaintances, [illegible] spring up on any voyage.

[illegible] Were Conscience-Stricken.

[illegible] hours of this trip were spent [illegible] enough. For hours the good [illegible] her way northward on a [illegible] then she encountered a heavy [illegible] a close, white pall, enfolded [illegible] which she was not freed [illegible] a shapeless wreck on the rocks that jut from Sea [illegible].

[illegible] weather grew worse and the sea [illegible] the wind with vain buffetings, [illegible] girls were compelled to remain in their stateroom or the cabins of [illegible]. Their misery must have been [illegible] all they loved and held dear and embarked, as both knew in their [illegible] anything but a promising or [illegible] course. Seasick, conscience-stricken, homesick and lonesome, both bewailed their fate, nor could the words of encouragement of young Hazzard, in scarce better plight than themselves, rouse or rally them.

To the three fugitives the marking of the storm without found its counterpart in the dread, uncertainty, perplexity and fear which possessed their hearts.

Young Hazzard knew that in taking Lulu from Los Angeles so that she might not testify against his father he was committing not only a civil but a moral wrong as well. He was forcing the girl to go far from her home and friends, and he knew not what the future might bring forth as a result. His offer and promise of marriage might even be broken once far from danger of pursuit he knew.

Mabel Rowland felt that she had sinned against her sister in entering upon the plot which was to force her to marry a man for whom she cared nothing. She even suspected that Hazzard would not keep his promises, but she had been dazzled by his manner and persuaded by his arguments to conspire against her sister. Then she remembered how false she had been to her father and mother in intercepting letters which had been written them concerning Lulu and which, heeded in time, might have prevented all of this trouble.

As for Lulu, her grief and fear fairly overwhelmed her. She had desired to face the elder Hazzard in court, to denounce him and to tell everything that she knew about him and [illegible] how much she [illegible] was to blame for [illegible] being [illegible] the facts to which she had been subpoenaed to testify. She was a fugitive from justice fleeing upon the promise of marriage to a man for whom she had no affection.

[illegible] that when in the [illegible] midnight the [illegible] ship struck the [illegible] den reef with a fearful shock then [illegible] off into [illegible] water and [illegible] to sink these [illegible] Hazzard, Mabel and Lulu Rowland were panic stricken at the thought of death. [illegible] a measure ten-fold greater than that which smote the other passengers [illegible] of the crew.

Hazzard found the girls in that scene of heartrending confusion when mother and babe were torn asunder only to be engulfed in a common death a moment later in the black and boiling water, when husband and wife died together when the great waves washed from the decks [illegible] time they broke over the struggling ship a score of human lives.

Together They Met Death.

Even in those terrible hours those who escaped that experience say that Hazzard and the two girls clung close together. The swamping of two of the steamer's boats before they could be cut loose and the horror of the cries of thirty or forty people drowning together so terrorized the man and the girls that they refused to even attempt to leave the ship in the other boats and life rafts which followed.

Together they faced death and although they could not cheer or encourage one another, they fought for life side by side with a frenzy which showed how they feared to die. As the vessel sank lower and lower in the water these three and [illegible] left [illegible] swept by the waves [illegible] For hours, hours as [illegible] in their excruciating [illegible] Hazzard and Lulu and Mabel Rowland battled with the wind, fought with the sea and struggled to resist the cold that slowly overcame them so that one after another they were washed from their places and instantly lost in the raging waters.

E. L. Hazzard's accuser is dead. The [illegible] witness the State of California was [illegible] to confront him has departed far from recall or requisition, yet he may not escape prosecution, as the testimony of Lulu Rowland was taken at the preliminary hearing, which was very complete, and as though a voice from the very [illegible] it may finally accuse him.

[illegible] Is Crushed Under the Blow.

But Hazzard has been punished more [illegible] more sternly, more mercilessly, [illegible] earthly justice could deal out to any man. He is a crushed, grief-stricken, almost hopeless man, for he feels that the [illegible] of Heaven has fallen heavily.

Young Roy Hazzard, but twenty years of age, was the hope of his father. In this [illegible] all of his ambitions were centred and he felt that this youth who bore his name would achieve in the world a name and place of which he should be proud.

What a mockery everything has become [illegible] man. The drowning of his boy Roy and the two girls, Mabel and Lulu Rowland, was but an incident, one tragedy of the many in the swamping of the Valencia, but in its results it is so menacing, so suggestive of the swift interference by a power unseen and terrible in its reckoning, that all [illegible] familiar with the circumstances are appalled.

Hazzard feels that no worse can befall him than the loss of his son, who forfeited his life that Lulu Rowland might be taken far from Los Angeles. The loss of the lives of the girls, he cannot but feel, was due to the great fidelity of his son to [illegible] cause. He is crushed completely, the future to him was darkened the same hour that, strengthless through long battling with wind and wave, and nerveless through the benumbing of the cold, that young man—his son—and those two girls, who had been abducted through misrepresentations and impossible promises, had been led to leave Los Angeles and board the Valencia on her wild voyage to destruction, perished in the ocean near Cape Beale.

How Our 350lb Cupid Trained Down

Back from His Personally Conducted Matrimonial Excursion to the Philippines Our Gallant Secretary of War Wins a Fight with Nature to Reduce His Weight to 250 Pounds.

"Riding horseback is perhaps the best form of exercise in the world."

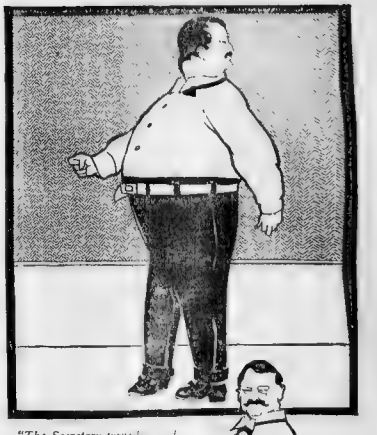
"Mr. Taft dances."



"The Secretary turned around as if fifty times a day."

HOW to get thin? That is the question. It is the most serious problem now confronting the Administration. The Cabinet has discussed it. Mr. Roosevelt, it is understood, is preparing an opinion on the subject.

The matter is really of more importance than Santo Domingo, or the dispute about railway rates and rebates. Even the much-dreaded coal strike sinks into insignificance beside it. For it is obvious, if impossible that Mr. Taft—long known as "Big Bill"—should be allowed to grow any bigger. He would be an elephant on the hands of the administration.

Hence the grave consideration which has been given to the subject. As for Mr Roosevelt, he is fairly well qualified as an adviser, having himself been somewhat threatened with corpulence of late. It is said that every President we have ever had has grown fatter while in the White House, and to this rule the present occupant of the historic mansion is no exception. His waist line has gained several inches in measurement—not less certainly than four or five inches—since he became the nation's ruler.

"What you want to do is climb, Taft," said Mr. Roosevelt to the Secretary of War some months ago. "I do it. There's nothing like it for preserving the figure and for discouraging the acquisition of a stomach. Climb! Climb long and constantly! Devote all your leisure time to climbing! It is the most serious problem now confronting the Administration.

It is quite true that the President climbs. He adopted this idea quite a while ago. Frequently he dines out of the city in the afternoon, leaving the White House at about 4 o'clock and, abandoning his carriage at the outskirts of the city, proceeds to scale the craggy peaks and precipices of the Rock Creek Park and its vicinity. Like the agile chamois he leaps from crag to crag, and, running uphill and down, he gets more vigorous exercise in ten minutes than an ordinary man would obtain in a couple of hours.

Mr Taft saw that it was a good thing and tried it. He would have felt obliged to try it, anyway, because Mr Roosevelt told him to do so, but in his own mind he was convinced that climbing was the thing for him. He made the attempt, in company with the President, but once was enough. He survived, but by a narrow margin.

The problem remained unsolved. What should be done about it? Mr. Taft had tried various methods before, in a casual and more or less temporary fashion, but now it was obviously necessary that something systematic should be undertaken. As a last resort starvation might be tried—though this would be a most grievous necessity, inasmuch as "Big Bill" has the ordinary fat man's fondness for the flesh-pots. He has always been a rather large eater.

Senator Spooner did not think so. He offered to Mr Taft a little advice on the subject, and, inasmuch as it did not involve starvation, the Secretary of War listened to it with respectful interest. Mr Spooner knew a man who could cure anybody about cutting out the food. So he sent his card around to Mr. Taft.

Need Not Cut Out Food.

Mr Taft said "yes." The man came. He told Mr Taft what he ought to do. It was a genial way, and was thereupon engaged to give instruction to the Secretary in certain physical exercises calculated to banish fat. In addition, he furnished a bill of fare, to which his distinguished pupil was required to subscribe. It was such a very liberal bill of fare that Mr. Taft could not possibly object to it, even though it had a few good things were taken out.

Some sacrifices had to be made, of course. Mr. Taft realized that. It was absolutely necessary to get thinner. Every time he saw a weighing machine he shuddered. He sometimes had a painful and suggestive sight-vision of his eye. Already he had reached 330 pounds, a fair weight for two ordinary men. Such an accumulation of adipose could not be permitted to go further. The Secretary of War, as all the world knows, is in training as a candidate for the Presidency. Suppose that rabid reformists should take a notion to represent him as an exhibit of hippopotamus. It would be dreadful!

And diligently, Mr. Taft accepted the bill of fare and, meanwhile, he started in to practice a variety of exercise "stunts," some of less quality and curious, as directed by the "professor" whose services he had secured. The professor informed him by way of explanation, that fat has a tendency to accumulate in those parts of the body which are least exercised such, for example, as the abdomen. To get rid of it, therefore, one should put the muscular apparatus of those regions to work.

To apply this idea to the abdomen, Mr Taft was instructed to stand erect, and, bending over, to touch his toes with his finger tips. Of course he couldn't do it, he could not reach below his knees. But he tried, and that was where the exercise came in. He is still trying. Every morning, when he gets up, he doubles himself up in this way—that is to say, in this fashion fifty times in succession. It is hard work and he does not enjoy it at all; but he finds encouragement in the fact that he can now reach to the middle of his shin bones.

This is only one, though the most important, of the exercises through which he is obliged to go. Like other very fat men, Mr Taft has a large accumulation of adipose tissue about his neck and throat. It forms a double chin in front and at the back it makes a bulging fold over his nineteen inch collar. To get rid of it the Secretary turns his head around as far as possible fifty times each way, going through this performance twice a day. Painful? Very, but "Big Bill" is fighting a battle. Enough rather late, he has come to realize that fat is the worst enemy he has in the world. He has got to fight it, for if he does not do so it may kill him. Fat men, as a rule, are not long lived.

Taft's Meagre Bill-of-Fare.

The dieting part of the regimen has one great advantage—the victim can have as much as he wants to eat, so long as it suits out bread, potatoes, pastry, cereal products and candy. This does not seem very severe when one comes to think of it. The most fat people Mr Taft is fond of candy, but he can abstain without much trouble. The other things he gets along without pretty well except the bread. It is awfully hard to do without bread. After a week or so of abstention from this common place article of food one begins to be dreadfully bread hungry.

The bill-of-fare furnished by the professor sets no limits whatever upon quantity. On the contrary, of what was allowed Mr. Taft was told to eat all he wanted. There was plenty of things to choose from, the artful "cure" being as follows:

FOODS ALLOWED.

Meats—All kinds, if lean.
Poultry and Game—All kinds.
Fish—All kinds.
Vegetables—Tomatoes, beets, carrots, celery, cucumbers, egg plant, turnips, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflower—all kinds, in fact, except potatoes. Fresh vegetables especially desirable.
Fruit—All kinds, fresh or cooked, but especially desirable in a fresh state.
Eggs—Cooked in any way.
Oysters and other sea food—all kinds.
Soups—All kinds, but clear soups are best.

FOODS FORBIDDEN.

Cereal products of all kinds.
Potatoes.
Bread.

Of the articles in the category of "food allowed" Mr. Taft eats all he wants. It is a comfort, as all events, not to be obliged to put up with an empty stomach, or even with one that is insufficiently filled. With all the meat and vegetables one wants, fish, eggs, and even fruit being thrown in, one ought to be able to get along.

In fact, the Secretary does get along, and he has already begun to lose flesh at a very satisfactory rate. He weighs to-day less than 300 pounds, and is beginning to see himself in imagination as an airy fairy sylph of only 250 pounds. This represents what he regards as ideal—the nearest that he can attain to get to the contour of the Apollo Belvedere. He is a very large man, and that amount of avoirdupois would represent merely a becoming portliness.

To console him for the loss of his bread Mr. Taft is allowed to partake, though not too freely, of dry toast cut in very thin slices and pretty well crisped. He can have butter, too. It is true that butter is fattening, but the amount of it ordinarily eaten is not sufficient to make any serious difference. The professor explained to the Secretary that it was not a part of his system to make people unhappy. Unhappiness does undoubtedly have a tendency to make folks thin, but it is not necessary as a factor in the treatment.

Butter, of course, is fat, and fat of any kind when eaten goes to make fat in the body. This is why Mr. Taft is permitted to partake of lean meats only. Sugar and starch are likewise fat makers, and it is for this reason that bread, potatoes, cereal products and candy are cut out of the Secretary's bill of fare.

You see sugar and starch, and fat like wise, are foods that serve to run the body machine. They are so much coal under the boiler. But they do not make muscle and blood. Meat and fish, on the other hand, are blood and muscle makers, and so likewise are eggs, vegetables, especially peas and beans. There is actually a larger percentage of blood and muscle making stuff in beans and peas, weight for weight, than in lean beefsteak or breast of chicken.

For the reason above given, nobody could subsist wholly upon a diet of bread and potatoes and be wise.

It is true that potatoes and bread do contain some muscle making stuff, but it is only a very small proportion, their material being almost wholly starch. Starch is the same thing as sugar, in another form. If you find it hard to realize this fact, buy and sample a can of the delicious syrup that is made in a glass out of corn starch by a process of chemical inversion—that is to say, by turning the starch, in a chemical sense, upside down.

Taft Must Get Thin Now.

If Mr. Taft has understood a few of these things many years ago he might have avoided getting fat. It is comparatively easy to stop the mischief in its early stages, but, after it has got a good start, it grows in a literal sense by what it feeds upon. The vital organs, becoming enveloped in adipose tissue, do not perform their functions well, and there is a steadily increasing tendency to store surplus food in the shape of fat.

But, when the supply of fuel foods (starch, sugar and fat) is cut off, the body machine is obliged to use for fuel the fat that is stored in the body. This, in brief, is the reason why Mr. Taft is now getting thinner; and he will continue to grow thinner as long as he pursues conscientiously the system described.

Any man or woman who is too fat can get thin in this fashion. Try it yourself if you choose (following the bill of fare above given), and you will find that you lose a pound and a half in the first 24 hours.

The exercise is merely incidental, and yet important. It is healthful, encouraging nature to throw off the trouble, and the hard work involved demands an extra consumption of fuel, which under such circumstances, must be supplied by the fat of the body. The fat thus used is consumed burned, in a chemical sense, in the body and in that form is got rid of.

Mr. Taft rides horseback. It is perhaps the best form of exercise in the world—even better than vigorous walking. The Secretary has a horse that seems to have been built for him—an animal constructed on the lines of a dragoon box, and able to carry half a ton. It is not a fast goer, but it has strong legs and a mighty back, which are what is needed.

He Even Does the Cake Walk.

Also, it is said—though whisper it not in Gath!—that Mr. Taft dances. Any dancer! He cuts the pigeon wing. He executes the essence of the buck. He does the cakewalk. He floats through the many figures of the Virginia reel. One would hardly be led to, but it is a matter of official record.

More of this anon. But meanwhile, in considering the efforts which the jovial Secretary is making to get rid of his superfluous adipose, let us pause a moment to inquire what the nature of the substance is. It is worth while, for the "professor" himself gives the explanation.

Fat in the living body is not a solid, but a liquid. Doesn't that seem odd? Never-the-less, it is a fact. It is so with the fat of any animal while the latter is alive; but after death the body of the animal becomes cold, and the fat solidifies. It is merely a matter of temperature.

In saying that the fat is a liquid, one does not mean that it flows about. It is stored in cells of the body tissue, which serve as so many tiny bottles to contain it. In this manner it is stored not only on the outside of the body, but on the inside also. In fact, it tends to accumulate first in the interior of the body, about the kidneys and the heart especially. On the outside it is deposited first about the waist line, and later on about the abdomen and the neck.

Fat people rarely live to what is called a good old age. Wherefore let us try to be, and to remain, reasonably thin, even though, in order to accomplish that object, we are obliged to dance, to waltz, to do the two step, to cut the pigeon wing, and to execute the graceful and seductive capers of the cakewalk.

It is stated, on the authority of the official records, that Mr. Taft possesses such accomplishments and utilizes them. During the secretary's recent visit to Panama John Lundie, a man of excellent repute, asked him for just a bit of his valuable time in which to discuss business, but the Secretary refused, stating that he was too much engaged. Whereupon Mr. Lundie wrote a letter to President Roosevelt, complaining, and making the following statement:

"I asked Secretary Taft for a conference in person. He refused, saying that he was so busy that he had not a minute to spare. But we had time for a great deal of social entertainment. He attended receptions and balls—yes, he danced, to the intense amusement of the littler ing girls of Panama—on Friday, November 2, and on Sunday, November 4, in Colon. Nevertheless while Rome burned."

In other words, while this unfortunate man was burning with impatience and anxiety to get speech with Mr. Taft, the latter—just thing of it!—was footing it in the mazes of the dance. He was spending his valuable time while on the isthmus in going from one scene of frivolous amusement to another and in tripping the light fantastic toe. Of course the girls laughed. But neither the girls who laughed nor Mr Lundie who went pouting what was the true state of the case—that these performances on the Secretary's part were actually business, and not pleasure at all. While to the casual eye he seemed to be playfully disporting himself, he was in reality engaged in a species of calisthenic exercise for a very definite and practical purpose—namely, the reduction of his dimensions.

How to Become a Silk Culturist With United States Government Backing.

THE [illegible] a greater interest in the [illegible] of silk in this country the [illegible] States Government now of [illegible] the Department of Agriculture [illegible] opportunity to every individual to [illegible] grower without the outlay [illegible].

[illegible] the department will provide [illegible] who wishes to engage in the [illegible] with a complete outfit free, and [illegible] every step in the whole operation.

[illegible] not least, the department will [illegible] reap the benefit of the worms' [illegible] purchasing the cocoons produced. [illegible] Government furnishes the two essentials needed at the starting. First, [illegible] must be a source of food. The best [illegible] the mulberry leaf, but often the [illegible] orange is used, though it is not as [illegible] for the purpose as the mulberry [illegible] these are usually grown from cut[tings] [illegible] these are furnished free by the department. In the course of two years [illegible] leaves can be taken and each year thereafter the trees become more valuable as a source of food supply. One or two of these trees, if good, will be ample food for all the worms a person can care for.

The price a pound paid by the department for thoroughly dried cocoons is from 90 cents to $1.15, which is considered by all growers to be very fair compensation.

The labor of silk-worm rearing all comes in about one month, and the time can be varied somewhat by the grower to suit the most abundant food season. Any large airy room that can be properly heated and ventilated will answer for rearing purposes. The eggs are hatched by exposing in the air, and then the feeding period begins. This lasts about four weeks and during it the worm grows so rapidly that he must have a larger coat every week.

After shedding his skin for the fourth time, the worm gets restless, refuses to eat, climbs into brush prepared for him and proceeds to spin his cocoon. The spinning requires about three days and after ten days the cocoons are gathered. The chrysalis is then smothered, best by placing in a hot oven for a short time, and the cocoon is thoroughly dried before shipping.

No Capital Needed

It is no easy matter to set up in business for one's self today. Capital is needed to do that. And sufficient capital is not easy to get.

The temptation before young men is constantly to sink themselves in salaried positions. They grow old but not independent. They settle down as the servants of corporations and the men of other men.

We earnestly wish we could place before you and every other man or woman, young or old, above the average, the advantages of representing THE LADIES' HOME JOURNAL and THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Many a man invests his capital and loses it. You cannot lose the capital we furnish you if you are earnest, honest and industrious.

How You May Make Sure of Popularity.

By Emily Holt,

Author of "The Secret of Popularity."

USUALLY it is the one-sided and privately disappointed woman who says, not in her own heart, but boldly and in public, that masculine admiration is not worth having, and that feminine society only is desirable and sympathetic.

Women naturally court the respect and admiration of men. This inclination does credit to both head and heart.

For the woman, especially the young woman, who desires her share of masculine admirers, who has them not and who would willingly learn how she must first attract and then keep them devoted to her in the best and most friendly fashion, this article is written.

I was surprised not long since to hear a clever girl say, with a cynical little laugh, that only the fair attract the brave, and men admire none but those women whom heaven has blessed in a most liberal fashion with beauty and brains.

It is just such mistaken ideas that I wish to combat and prove to be wrong. The suggestions which I will give in this article are intended for the assistance and correction of any mistaken young woman who is inclined to agree with her, and who believes that beauty, which is a mere matter of a fair face and good figure, as well as a brain full of merely bookish learning, are what render a woman irresistibly fascinating.

There is a special kind of loveliness and lore that invariably renders a woman attractive to men whether she is beautiful or plain of feature. It is a kind of loveliness and lore that all women can possess, that is quite irresistible, and that is commonly known as charm.

Feminine charm is not so mysterious a quality, after all.

You can be charming by cultivating many pretty, dainty ways of doing and saying graceful things, and by studying how to show the sweetest and most attractive side of your nature.

There is a charm in a woman's dress, and men are keenly sensitive to it.

Unless you are very beautiful, or gifted with that wonderful quality called personal magnetism, never scorn the assistance of the toilet. Remember that your dress is of the greatest importance in creating a first impression.

I know very well that while the masculine mind seems unable to grasp the details of fabrics and is frankly ignorant as to the delicacies of fashions, it is very promptly and positively alive to the daintiness and appropriateness of womanly garments.

I would not have any one think for a moment that I am advocating gay, expensive and elaborate clothes. I merely urge the advantages of the costume that is exquisitely neat, always [illegible] as possible, and wholly feminine.

Trifles Which Amount to Much.

Be clever enough and dainty enough to know that a tousled head, a pair of unpolished shoes, dingy, buttonless gloves, etc., are something more than trifles that strike men as well as women unpleasantly.

Dress becomingly, neatly, and remember that it is not what you pay for your costume nor the material nor the style, so much as their being daintily suitable to your individuality.

Be kind.

All men feel drawn toward the woman who has a simple, friendly and thoroughly amiable way with her.

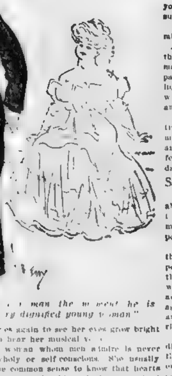
I have often met nice, pretty girls who made the really pathetic mistake of thinking that in order to strike admiration and respect to the heart of the average young man it was both becoming and necessary to assume a proud, cold and reserved manner. If you take upon yourself the air of a very dignified young woman, you will be considered by the major portion of the masculine world as hard, unsympathetic and unapproachable, and thus you will win an unenviable reputation that is very difficult to live down.

Men, and especially young men, are not nearly so brave and bold in the presence of women as they are supposed to be. The courage begins to leave the well [illegible] bred, high minded young man [illegible] he is obliged to appear before [illegible] stately, very dignified young woman. Instead of wishing to break through [illegible] reserve he wishes nine times out of ten to run away. He finds her so alarming, no matter how fair her face may be or how great her reputation for wisdom, he cannot bring himself to either like or admire her.

At the first opportunity he will leave her side in order to find a seat near [illegible] whose waist may be thick, who [illegible] not be innocent of freckles, but who is [illegible] too shy or too reserved to be cordial and friendly. With [illegible] to her he is right quickly at ease [illegible] on, her easy and laughing, [illegible] as though his appearance [illegible].

He feels so full of [illegible] much at his ease in her presence [illegible] next he meets her at [illegible] he makes haste to find a [illegible] near her.

"The courage begins to leave [illegible] obliged to appear before [illegible]"



"[illegible] man the moment he is [illegible] very dignified young woman."

The woman whom men admire is never melancholy or self conscious. She usually has the common sense to know that hearts are pretty much alike whether they beat under nankeen waistcoats or chiffon blouses.

"No son of Adam feels just the same toward you if you put down your heels very hard when you walk."

*"Men * * * devoutly honor the philosopher who does not sulk because the rain falls on her best hat."*

yourself to be easily bored and of looking superior and difficult to please.

That is what the woman who is admired by men never does.

An unmistakable beauty is to be found in the mind of a kind and sweet hearted woman, and the world in general, and men in particular, never try to resist the captivating influence of that member of her sex who is never seen going out engagingly tolerant in speech.

It is never wise and never kind to cultivate a caustic wit, and the easy trick of making sarcastic comments upon men and things. I wish to admonish any of my feminine readers against indulging in the dangerous craft of making sharp retorts.

Sarcastic Tongues Make Enemies.

I know very well that there are admirable and intensely [illegible] the unfortunate idea that admiration [illegible] maiden who can speak very [illegible] point and with biting humor.

Was there ever a greater mistake than this, or one more hurtful to a woman's popularity? Rarely, rarely, I am sure, has there lived a girl who has employed such weapons to any advantage, and while I advocate merriment and vivacity, I just as ardently deprecate the wit that is sour and the false joy of holding others up to ridicule.

It is hard to bear the derisive laughter directed at ourselves. We wish to feel that our little follies are overlooked and our faults forgiven, and the woman who can inspire her friends with confidence in her charity of mind and heart has laid hold on one of the secrets of popularity.

The happy heroine of real life is not the heroine of the novel, who takes offence with appalling readiness, and who is difficult to please and to placate. The really popular woman of real life does not fall out easily with her friends, nor forgive them with reluctance. She has what I think best to call social courage and grit. She can take a trying or annoying situation cheerfully. Her good temper gives her an influence that all men respect, and her willingness to be amused and entertained and to make the best of everything always excites their unbounded admiration.

Men are never slow to devoutly honor the philosopher who does not [illegible] her cheerfulness when a train is missed or, like who does not sulk because the rain fell on her best hat, who is not given to fretting, frowning, worrying or complaining, and who is ever and always a woman is woman.

The charm for men in the woman who is womanly lies, I am sure, in the perfect readiness with which she appeals to their masculine chivalry. The truly womanly woman and the most agreeable woman is not the less self-confident, self-helpful and delightfully dignified because she accepts masculine services and masculine compliments with frank pleasure. She delights in the deference they pay to her because she is a woman, and she is careful never herself to assume a manly little air of complete self-reliance and a total scorn of feminine foibles.

Men and women, indeed, are equals but they are different, and no son of Adam feels just the same toward you if you put down your heels very hard when you walk, talk in a loud voice, refuse to have your parcels carried, insist upon paying your own carfare, laugh at the idea of needing the support of an escort's arm, and speak your mind without the proper delicacy of expression expected from a woman, brusquely ignore [illegible] and forget to thank the [illegible] young man who offers you his seat in the street car.

and are to be conquered by nearly the same methods.

Men, as well as women, she knows are [illegible] pleased and flattered to be consulted [illegible] talking than be forced into listening. [illegible] that so many truly clever [illegible] girls fail to make. You are just [illegible] proud of and arrogant with all your [illegible] knowledge and are prone to insist upon not only choosing the topics of conversation, but in doing nine-tenths of the talking, too.

If you do not make this mistake you fall into the equally fatal error of allowing

Do not forget what excellent things in woman a low voice and [illegible] and remember, above all things, that a [illegible] has written that "gentle [illegible] has more effect [illegible]

How a Vegetarian Diet Helps to Influence Your Character.

GAUTIER, the eminent French authority on dietetics, author of the most recent and accepted works on foods, "l'Alimentation et les Regimes," does not hesitate to declare in its pages that a diet of flesh is quite unnecessary, yet he does not advocate a strictly non-flesh dietary. He says:

"It would be wrong to maintain that a non-flesh diet will compromise physical energy, although heredity and habit play here an important part.

"According to J. Sinclair, the [illegible] messengers who carry dispatches for long distances, eat only rice, while covering each day in running from one village to another a distance of at least twenty leagues (sixty miles), and [illegible] a single day only [illegible] consecutively, week after week.

"The Russian peasants [illegible] vegetables, black [illegible] work from sixteen [illegible] a day and their strength [illegible] exceeds that of American sailors. The Norwegian peasants scarcely know [illegible] animal food. They cover [illegible] however, in accompanying [illegible] carriages of tourists, a distance of [illegible] leagues without stopping.

"The modern Egyptian [illegible] and sailors, a class who [illegible] have lived almost exclusively [illegible] onions, beans, lentils, [illegible] remarkable for their muscular strength.

"The miners of South America, very temperate laborers, who [illegible] carry on their shoulders [illegible] of two hundred pounds, with which they [illegible] twelve times a day on the [illegible] ladders 262 feet high.

"The lumbermen of the Hudson Bay region, who live almost exclusively upon meal cooked with a little fat, with either eggs or cheese, do an enormous amount of work. On Sundays only they take a little meat.

"The Turkish soldier is surprisingly frugal. He drinks only water or lemonade, and lives upon a diet of rice and figs, scarcely ever touching flesh. It is well known that the vigor of the Turk is remarkable and his courage indisputable. The porters of Salonica and Constantinople, who live upon the same diet, are proverbially strong; hence the saying, 'Strong as a Turk.'

"I might add that I have known persons—men, women, very intelligent—who became vegetarians on principle or for hygienic reasons, after having [illegible] flesh as is the general [illegible] have assured me that they [illegible] themselves admirably sustained in health and strength.

"Vegetarianism is, then, an acceptable practice, sufficient [illegible] in [illegible] cases. Its advantages are those which result from frugality.

"Under the vegetarian diet, the [illegible] many diseases disappears [illegible] disposition softens, [illegible] seems to be quieted, and perhaps [illegible] more [illegible]."

Speaking of the effects of a vegetable [illegible] diet upon [illegible] of animals, this great [illegible] "One cannot help [illegible] carnivorous animals are generally [illegible] and dangerous, and that the [illegible] on the contrary, are easy to [illegible] domesticate. The flesh diet, more or less exclusive, is more than the [illegible] factor of individual character whether it shall be gentle or violent.

It is known that the white rats of our laboratories, as [illegible] they are nourished on bread or grain can be easily tamed, while they [illegible] when they are nourished on [illegible] same observation has been made [illegible] to the horse and also the dog [illegible] latter is omnivorous.

"[illegible] a bear maintained [illegible] was very gentle [illegible] was nourished [illegible] vegetables, [illegible] rendered the [illegible] to endanger the life [illegible] himself by [illegible] the character of the [illegible] diet.

[illegible] then, certainly [illegible] It renders a person [illegible] headstrong. I do not speak [illegible] influence upon the [illegible] of its following upon [illegible]."

Why Household Pets Sometimes Excite Jealousy.

IT has been figured out that a pet of one kind is kept in every third house. What it is, varies according to the [illegible] of the owner, or his or her [illegible] or according [illegible] people [illegible] Pets [illegible] the greatness [illegible] [illegible] people. As household pets, cats are in the great majority, dogs and birds of some kind or other come next.

There are many persons who think that household pets are made much of to the partial exclusion of members of the family. A woman once said: "When I see a man walking out with a dog I wonder why he [illegible] his wife out instead. When I see a woman [illegible] over her cat or [illegible] I wonder why she does not devote [illegible] to her husband or [illegible]."

Jewett [illegible] scholar, used to tell a story of a [illegible] he knew, who, one day walking [illegible] river, met a working man with a bull terrier.

"A nice dog!" he remarked. "But why, my good man, have you not brought your wife out instead of him?"

"Bless your heart," exclaimed the man, "my wife wouldn't catch a rat to save her life."

The appeal the pet makes to one need not in the slightest degree, imply anything derogatory to the claims of those near to us. It is queer, though, that pets are often the cause of considerable jealousy.

"If the house were burning," a woman sarcastically remarked, "I do believe my husband would rush in to save that bird."

It was a parrot, and she meant that, in such an emergency, she believed that her husband would [illegible] his attention to the rescue of the parrot [illegible] rather than to escort her to the [illegible] pet. She probably [illegible] wronged him, [illegible] the absurd amount of attention [illegible] lavished upon the bird somewhat [illegible] her suspicion.

John Leech, [illegible] artist, told of an experience he [illegible] in Lancashire. He entered a cottage [illegible] found the tenant and his wife engaged [illegible] fierce altercation in another room. [illegible] wanted to know what had happened to the milk; the woman [illegible] that she had given it to the child. "[illegible] the child!" howled the man. "Thee shouldst ha' gien it to the bull-pup."

[illegible] it is obvious that the pet has usurped to itself a place in its owner's esteem that it should not occupy. [illegible] require a nice discrimination to distinguish between a pet being regarded for its own sake or for some quality [illegible] which removes it from being [illegible].

A Clothes Chest You Can Make at Home.

WHAT are known as "single rooms" in a [illegible] represent bedrooms too small to hold the amount of furniture necessary for the wardrobe of a girl of average [illegible] even limited means. All sorts of [illegible] make-shifts are being invented for [illegible] who wish to economize space and [illegible] have something decorative to [illegible] color scheme of a room. A [illegible] compact and artistic clothes chest [illegible] invented, which the girl who has [illegible] of money can buy in any decorative [illegible] she chooses and the poor girl may easily make for herself. In the first case it will not prove inexpensive but in the second case it is very cheap.

First, one procures five or six boxes, such as dressmakers send home gowns in. These are of the same size and made of stout cardboard. They take up much less space than a drawer in a dressing table and yet are just the practical size for a folded dress or unfolded waist.

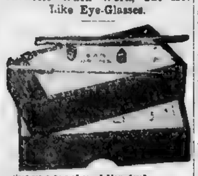
Four upright laths, about an inch and a half in width and very thin, are covered with green cretonne or denim. This costs 10 cents a yard and is very wide. Strips of [illegible] longer than the boxes, are covered with cloth and then fastened to the uprights so as to allow the boxes to slide back and forth upon them as drawers do in a dresser. Pieces tacked across the back [illegible] boxes from sliding beyond the line intended for the back.

Each box and its top is covered with cloth and, if a woman pleases, a strip of sachet [illegible] may be placed in the bottom of the home-made drawers. These are [illegible] and flowered cretonnes and [illegible] and with and without handles [illegible] Brass handles of [illegible] of designs can be had in hardware [illegible] at the rate of two for 5 cents [illegible] the entire cost of the chest is trifling.

It is [illegible] the fad to have these new chests, with shirtwaist boxes, tabourettes and lamp stands, as well as paper racks and waste baskets all covered with the same material to match some dainty decorative scheme in a room.

Sound Magnifiers Invented by a Kentuckian.

Invisible When Worn, but Act Like Eye-Glasses.



Ever see a pair of sound Magnifiers?

They are so soft in the ears one can't tell they are wearing them.

And no one else can tell, either, because they are out of sight when worn. Wilson's Ear Drums are to weak hearing what spectacles are to weak sight.

They rest the Ear Nerves by taking the strain off them—the strain of trying to hear dim sounds. They can be put into the ears, or taken out, in a minute, just as comfortably as spectacles can be put on and off.

And they can be worn for weeks at a time, because they are ventilated, and so soft in the ear holes they are not felt even when the head rests on a pillow. They also protect any raw inner parts of the ear from wind, or cold, dust or sudden and piercing sounds.

The principle of these [illegible] is to make it as easy [illegible] [illegible]

Wilson Ear Drums make all the sound strike [illegible] the surface. [illegible] vibration [illegible] make the drum vibrate ten [illegible]

SUNDAY AMERICAN-JOURNAL-EXAMINER PATTERNS.

Two Smart Spring Waists Easy to Make at Home Yourself.

Copyrighted, 1905, by the American-Journal-Examiner.

THE smart Spring tailor-finished waist for women and the new stylish gathered elbow-sleeve waist for girls like those illustrated on this page to-day would be pleasing and becoming to any mamma and her daughter.

The patterns for the waists, which were published after the newest Spring designs for the Sunday American-Journal-Examiner series, are offered to-day. Either pattern may be obtained for ten cents or both patterns for twenty cents, together with complete directions for making the garments at home yourself.

Particularly pretty and attractive was this smart Spring waist for women in a development of white butcher's linen with the characteristic severe tailor finish worked out throughout. The waist is [illegible] in front with the pleats stitched to yoke depth, and a box pleat is arranged at the centre to conceal the closing. Regulation cuffs, provided for each sleeve, are employed, and the stock is of the usual type now worn.

For contrasting this tailor-suited Spring waist pattern No. 229—1264, white basket [illegible] would be attractive, and a scarlet four-in-hand tie would supply the requisite touch of color.

The pattern is cut in six sizes, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 or 42 inches bust measure. For the 36-inch size it takes 3½ yards of material 27 inches wide or 1¾ yards 44 inches wide are required.

If developed in plain silk in strictly tailor style there is no color quite so smart as pale lavender, relieved with white [illegible]. Scarlet rajah silk [illegible] of silk would be truly stylish [illegible] with the ever-popular [illegible] skirt. There is a [illegible] of silk and tinsel on [illegible] and much latitude allowed in this [illegible] stitch gath red elbow-[illegible] section No. 230—1230 exhibits [illegible] of tucks and [illegible] ornament [illegible] pointed yoke effect [illegible] this popular model [illegible] the front pull sleeves [illegible] If preferred however [illegible] high and long [illegible] which may [illegible] of preference [illegible] lace or [illegible] a belt [illegible] of this model for [illegible] ing shades [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] or [illegible] net [illegible] desired and [illegible] supplied in [illegible] or whatever [illegible] fancy furniture [illegible] Rose pink chiffon de luxe would be a lovely choice with confections of silver and point de gauze lace in butterfly design.

This gathered elbow-sleeve waist, pattern No. 230—1230 is cut in three sizes, 12, 14 and 16 years. For the 14-year size 2¼ yards of material 27 inches wide or 2¼ yards 44 inches wide are required.

Please remember in ordering [illegible] of these patterns that sizes either [illegible] those mentioned above cannot be furnished.

To obtain the pattern for the [illegible] pleated waist No. 229—1264 or for the [illegible] gath red waist, No. 230—1230, you simply fill in the proper [illegible] printed blank giving your [illegible] post office address and size [illegible] desired, and mail, together [illegible] coin or stamps, to

Spring Waist Pattern,
P. O. Box
New York.

If you desire both patterns [illegible] sizes of the patterns [illegible] their proper blanks, also [illegible] name and post office address [illegible] together with twenty cents in [illegible] or stamps.

The pattern ordered together with [illegible] instructions showing [illegible] which material you will require [illegible] to [illegible] most economically [illegible] will be forwarded to you by return mail.

FOXY GRANDPA'S PUZZLING PENNIES WHO GOT THEM?

By SAM LOYD

Here is a funny little problem for which your old Foxy Grandpa provided a dollar's worth of pennies while Sam Loyd provided the puzzle. Taking the one hundred cents, Foxy Grandpa handed them all out at the rate of nine to each boy and seven to each girl. Now, who can tell how many boys and how many girls got pennies?

EDITORIAL SECTION

SCIENCE · LITERATURE

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, MARCH 4, 1906.

Look Ahead--Live in the Future.

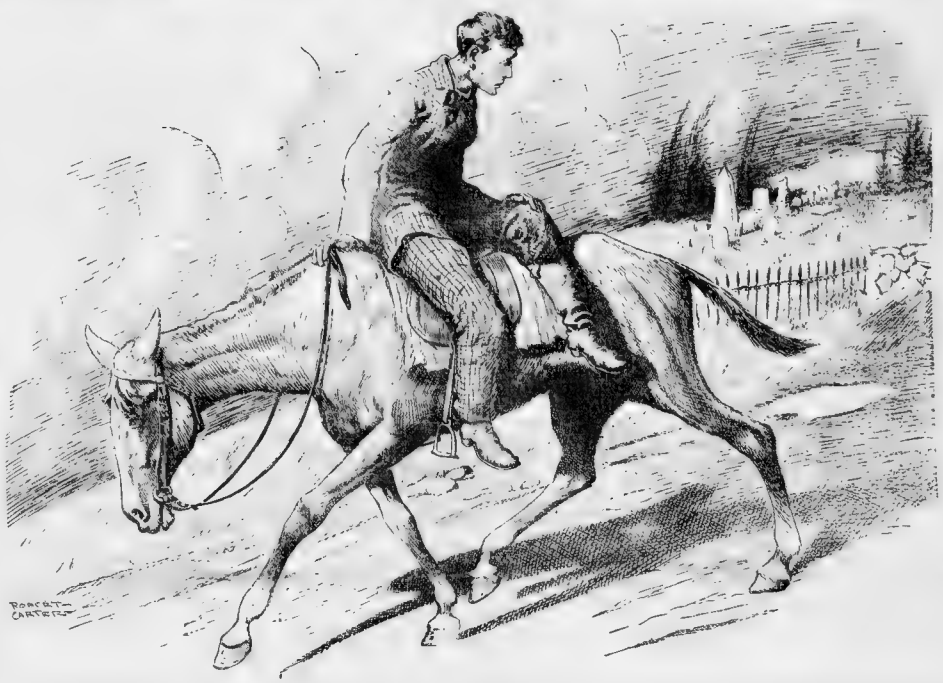
SIGH not o'er the days departed,
Nor old times wish back again;
In the present live, brave-hearted--
Tears for vanished joys are vain.

Steer thy bark serene, securely,
All the world before thee lies;
Striving, suffering, hoping, surely
Thou shalt gain the distant prize.
Heinrich Zeise

IN the old times a favorite punishment intended to humiliate the victim was engineered as follows:

The man to be punished was mounted on a mule or donkey, with his face toward the animal's tail, and then paraded through the city to be laughed at, and occasionally lashed or pelted.

Many go through life a good deal like the man with his face to the donkey's tail. They face backward three-quarters of the time at least, telling of what MIGHT have been, or WHOSE FAULT IT WAS that things were not better. Meanwhile, those that look ahead and think and work for the future pass those turned backward, and the latter wonder why.



This Figure, Ridiculously Mounted, Is Typical of the Mental Attitude of Many. Thousands Go Through the World Looking Backward, Past Hope, Past Opportunities, Wasted Possibilities Cheat Them Out of Present and Future Good Work.

Looking backward, for no matter what reason, is harmful to your growth.

If you have succeeded in the past, be glad of it, but don't waste time congratulating yourself or praising yourself because you have succeeded better than others. If you have FAILED in the past, DON'T WASTE ENERGY ON REGRET. If you haven't had a fair chance in the past, wipe out the score and make up your mind to do better and compel OTHERS to do better in the future.

THERE IS NO GOOD REASON FOR LOOKING BACKWARD. The very old man or woman, at the end of life or near it, having reached the age when it is permissible to take life quietly, can be permitted the quiet pleasures of reminiscences and memory.

The old, white-haired man, talking to children of the past IN SUCH A WAY AS TO FILL THEM WITH AMBITION FOR THE FUTURE, does a good work—all that can be expected of him.

The peaceful, gentle old woman, drawing upon her memory for lessons and examples that will help young girls morally and materially, is a good teacher. SHE IS DOING HER WORK.

But for those that are young, or middle-aged, or in the prime of life at sixty or sixty-five, LOOKING BACKWARD IS ONLY HARMFUL.

Here is a quotation from Longfellow which you might cut out and paste over your desk or over the sink where you wash the dishes, or wherever it will meet your eye most often in this treadmill of life:

"Look not mournfully into the Past. It comes not back again. Wisely improve the Present. It is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy Future, without fear and with a manly heart."

A certain mournful type of human beings may be found forever attending funerals. In almost every neighborhood one or more of the citizens can be relied upon to appear at every grave filling, whether they know anything about the dead person or not.

Others delight in promenading through cemeteries, though none of their friends may be buried there. They take mournful pleasure in the graveyard, the withered flowers, the railings falling down, the fresh new earth telling of new calamities. Those are pretty dismal people, aren't they? Don't be like them.

Keep your mind out of the past; it is nothing but a funeral, a big graveyard full of the things done and ended.

Turn around in the saddle, face the future. Don't look so far ahead as to neglect the work of to-morrow or next day. Always remember that there is hope while life stretches ahead of you, AND THAT THE FUTURE IS YOUR ONLY REAL POSSESSION. The past is gone, AND THE PRESENT SLIPS OUT OF YOUR HAND EVEN AS YOU THINK OF IT. The days and the years that lie ahead are alone your property. They are all that you own.

The only instrument with which you work is your mind. It alone can solve your problems, give you the success you want, whatever it may be. Your mind, like any other force, MUST BE CONCENTRATED TO DO ITS WORK. IT CANNOT BE IN TWO PLACES AT ONCE.

Whatever thought you give to the past is taken away from the future. Whatever energy you spend on regret or reminiscences is so much waste, so much added to the risk of failure ahead.

When you read the lives of successful men you find many of them, including the MOST successful, constantly thinking and planning far beyond the degree of success already reached.

Napoleon, most phenomenal among the men of achievement, was extraordinary in his constant planning in the FUTURE. He never lived in the present, it never contented him. And as for the past, IT DIDN'T EXIST.

After he had made himself ruler of nearly all Europe, when his place in the world was so high, when there was no second or third among men, his mind was still working ahead, just as it had always worked. He saw himself using France as Alexander used Macedonia—a sort of home office whence the rest of the world should be conquered. He planned for triumphal trips through Asia on an elephant, in Oriental costume, and with a changed religion. Rather foolish planning, you may say; and so it was.

But if the man who achieved the greatest material success in this world by his own efforts was a man living in the future, that fact has its meaning FOR YOU.

Naturally, you mustn't look ahead VAGUELY. That is about as useless as looking into the past.

Your thinking and planning must be DEFINITE. Instead of moaning and groaning because you were foolish yesterday, or last week, or last year, simply say, "To-morrow and next week and this year I'll NOT be foolish."

Make up your mind what your defects are and plan to conquer them, beginning NOW, and stretching your efforts through the years. Realize THAT EVERY DAY AHEAD OF YOU HAS ITS VALUE, and that the days back of you have no existence at all. Fix your mind on that one thing that you want to achieve and keep at it, marching straight forward, never turning back, never discouraged.

Above all things, don't look backward IN ORDER TO GET FOOLISH COMFORT OUT OF THOSE LESS SUCCESSFUL THAN YOURSELF. There is no greater waste of time than flattering your vanity by looking at the failures behind you. Don't look at failures; they are all in the past. Don't think of them, don't be so foolish as to take comfort in the fact that you have eclipsed a few of those who started even with you.

Any man racing will tell you, whether he race on his own legs or on a horse, THAT THE RACE IS LOST VERY OFTEN BECAUSE THE WINNER LOOKS BACK. In that second of turning his shoulder to please himself with the sight of his victory THE SECOND MAN PASSES HIM AND WINS.

Look ahead. YOU WILL FIND PLENTY OF MEN AHEAD OF YOU TO KEEP YOU GOING. DON'T WASTE TIME ON SELF-CONGRATULATION BECAUSE YOU HAVE PASSED SOME POOR, FEEBLE CREATURE EVEN LESS ABLE THAN YOURSELF.

Look at the men far off in front of you, the men who began as you began, and who have kept their eyes ahead and KEPT GOING AHEAD.

One more quotation we offer you, cut it out, treasure it.

It is written by our genius-contributor, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who compares with the ordinary genius as does the gaudy, wonderful bird of paradise with the jenny wren. Mrs. Wilcox has made her own success, taught herself to write poetry and prose. She taught herself and is still teaching herself to think. She is, it is true, very young, too young to have any past worth looking at. But you may be sure that she takes her own advice, and looks straight into the future with its possibilities. These lines of hers make excellent reading. Many women and girls might well commit them to memory, also many men and boys:

Build on resolve, and not upon regret,
The structure of thy future. Do not grope
Among the shadows of old sins, but let Thine own soul's light shine on the path of hope
And dissipate the darkness. Waste no tears
Upon the blotted record of lost years,
But turn the leaf, and smile, oh, smile, to see
The fair white pages that remain to thee.

Companionship

In bits of clouded glass, are all His works
Reflected by the reasoning mind of man.
Our boasted senses, finite in their scope,
Miss the large outlines of Infinitude.
Colors exist, too delicate of hue,
For human eyes to see; from sullen red,
Striking the vision like a sudden blow,
They climb to tender violet, and swoon
In seas of light about us. Sounds there are Beyond discernment of the mortal ear:
Fine notes of music, mounting scales too high
For the poor compass of our instruments.
Then may not forms invisible to us
People the spaces that we deem so void
And move among us, speaking, all unheard,
The strange sweet music of the distant stars?
There are no solitudes for those who feel
The comradeship of Unseen Presences.

Mirandy on Ladies

By Dorothy Dix

"THEY is been interested," said Mirandy, thoughtfully, "in dis heah tale what Ma'y Jane's been readin' me 'bout dat woman what went to see de President, an' dat his hired man yanked out of de White House by de hair of de head, when she wouldn't go back home lak dey told her.

"It suttinly am excitin' to heah 'bout de sufferin's of dat po' woman what was dragged across de pavement, an' had her rights as a free-born citizen, an' her best black skirt all trompled to tatters by dem guards, an' hit makes my heart beat high to listen to Mary Jane readin' de burnin' words wid which dat Congressman denounced dat outrage an' insult to American womunhood.

"Yassum, hit am a orbitvile sight for a woman to stand up in a street car holdin' on to de strap an' watch de long lines of men a-settin' down readin' in de evenin' papers how dat unfortunate an' pussicute woman was treated, wid dey bosoms ready to bust wid chivalrous feelin's an' a-yearnin' to sign a petition to get dem Washington flunkeys fired from deir jobs.

"For of dere is, in fact, in dis country dat de men want to do for any older man but it is if dere be any moppin' up de floor with, de only man he can excuse for doin' dat is de one dat is inside of his own shoe.

"Yassum, you could get up a lynchin' bee in fo' minutes to string dem White House guards up to de nearest telefoam post, an' nee' of no man would take part in hit who would have wives at home what would have to tell de neighbors fibs ev'y now an' den 'bout how dey come to have a black eye, an' deir heads tied up in a towel.

"Yike, he got all het up 'bout de way de President's help flung dat woman out. 'Hit sholy do make my blood bile,' he said, as he raped back in his cheer, 'ballet I fetched it in de coal an' de water an' lit his pipe for him.

"To think of a woman being toted out by de head an' de heels by men what used dir strength 'gainst her weakness, for de man what don't cherish de female what belongs to de same sect as his mother ain't nothin' but a brute.'

"Oh, well," says I, "I wouldn't be too hard on dem guards, for dey didn't treat her no worse dan de world in gin'al. De reporters say dat she had a fine old time 'fore she got into trouble, and she was set on gittin' to de President. Dey's dat much excuse for 'em,' I says, 'cause I know how hit was, for Almiry Sniggers is got a way of droppin' in on me when I'se got a mess in de tub an' readin' me some foolishness dat she calls sonnets, an' hit sholy does take de grace of Gord to stand 'em.

"'But like, he wouldn't have to use excuse for dem men.'

"I don't keer what I wanted dem pussons to, 'de fact dat she was a woman an' entitled to her perfeck treatment. Dey skirts oughter perfected her.

"Yassum, ain't dats so. To be sho, de rabbit's foot didn't wuk dat time, but hit miss generally always does, an' dats de reason dat de news dat a woman was rough handled when she went to see de President is done raises a how all over de country. If a man had been flung out de same way nobody would a noticed hit 'cep'n de cop what run him in for disorderly conduct

"Yassum, I ain't one of dem women what is always a-complainin' an' a-groanin' because dey ain't men. Nawm, dat I ain't. Petticoats may not be as handy an' convenient for gettin' 'round in as britches, but, my land, deys a lot mo' perfection.'

"Yassum, dere ain't nothin' dat a woman does or leaves undone dat ain't excused along of her bein' a woman. Des her sex is a sort of standin' apology for her shortcomings, an' a ruffle petticoat wid lace on de edges is worth mo dan an airbil in a murder trial.

"Dere ain't no use in a lady bein' such a good-lookin' woman what kills everybody dat sees her, nohow, don't believe in de fast place dat she 'scribes it, an' in fact we ain't so sho'n dat de pussen ouchter been killed anyhow, an' in de fust place dat a woman ought not to be punished anyway, no matter what she does.

"An' den when a woman starts in to give a man back talk, she sholy do have de whip hand of him, lessen he is her husband. Ef he is some odder man what is bleedged to remember dat ev'y body will jump on him ef he ain't sof' spoken, an' chivalrous, an' gentle, an' kind, she's got him on de run.

"Yassum, when dere is any occasion in our house to tell de butcher an' de gas man dat de thieves an' hi's an' assassins dat would steal de pennies off of deir dead mother's eyes, I'se mighty glad dey hit, cuze if Ike was to 'spreadify himself dat he 'seem to'd be mighty liable to need to call in de ambulance.

"Yassum, I suttinly is argufyed wid men dat had de expression of 'damn' all over 'em an' all day did was to grit deir teeth an' smirk an' smile at me.

"An' den dere's de things dat woman does Lawd-a-mussy, de fuss dat is made over ev'y thing dat a woman tries to do dat she don't fall down in. Ef a woman can git up an' speech'y in de pulpit, or ef she can run a corner grocery wid a fambly entrance without losin' in bankruptcy, or ef she can make a dress so dat you can wear hit without yo' havin' to send hit back fo' times to have hit made a little longer in de skirt an' a little bigger in de waist an' a little tighter in de neck, why, she gits her picture in de paper, and ev'y body makes a miration over her.

"Yassum, I ain't talkin' no stock in what all dese folks is sayin' 'bout chivalry peterin' out, even of dey did fling de pestess out of de White House. Dere's des as much chivalry as dere ever was, an' hit is wakin' fine to see a range for which I don't mend limpsett of his own wife an' lettin' her life be wish'ed into an' 'n and between him an' de rest wid color. Hit rouses de whole country to find out dat a woman dat dey never heered of before has been spoke discomtemptous to in Washington.

A man don't mind lettin' her stand between him an' de rent collector.

Whilst I fetched in de coal an' de water, an' let his pipe for him.

A Pair of Kings

MISTER GIPPLE, which was one time a missionary preecher in Afca, he sed, Mister Gipple did, Johnny, I have ben a [illegible] in [illegible] dusted countrys than a centtypeed has feets, but the oddest one is the Kingdom of Tomagwee, which lies on the rite [illegible] run away from the capitle. The Tomagwees are one leggers, and wot they save in the cost of trowsers is said to the King for his wages.

I ast Mister Gipple how cude a Tomagwee walk with only but 1at one leg, and he sed, A Tomagwee cant wolk, but 2 of them can. They are rites and lefts, which is to say one fellers leg is a rite and anuthers is a left, and when 2 wich are mates stand side by side and clasp each uther with their inside [illegible] they are the swiftest quodped wich [illegible] the plain, and they over takes the plucke [illegible] tirus quite frequent, wich has ben [illegible] A feller wich cant get a uther for to double up with him has got to hop.

A Tomagwee cant wolk, but 2 of them can.

So I jest took a few dores and Some chimnys and a steeple or 2 on my back.

Absolute, Utter Self-Sacrifice and Work-Hard-Work, is the ONLY Secret of SUCCESS

SAYS MRS. LESLIE CARTER

Gems of Wisdom from Mrs. Leslie Carter

"No one can be a big success without having experienced the pain of suffering. It is pain that teaches you."

"You cannot do great things in a hurry, nor can you win permanent success in a moment."

"The professional woman who hopes for success must work, work, work. She cannot give much time to pleasure. Pleasure and work are not congenial. You cannot mix oil and water."

"A person sounds his own death knell when he feels that he is really great and believes he can rest on his greatness."

"I will never, never, never give up. I will die holding on."

By Eleanor Ames.

THE frivolous young person who feels that she is in reality an undiscovered genius, and who sighs, but does not work, for that GREAT CHANCE to come when she can prove that her opinion of herself is justified, must never go to Mrs. Leslie Carter for sympathy.

Mrs. Carter has not one grain of patience with her or her kind. She knows that undiscovered geniuses waiting for chances usually fall in the early days of their career into the bottomless pit of oblivion, largely because they haven't the necessary ambition to keep out of it.

They shriek aloud, "I would be great," then they wing their way using butterfly fashion, believing, or at least hoping, that the GREAT CHANCE lies somewhere in their pathway, and that they can't help stumbling over it.

I wish it were possible to reproduce the little preachment just as I heard it.

A great many of these young persons believe that the GREAT CHANCE will place them in rivalry to Mrs. Carter. So they write to her and call upon her and beg her to tell them how to be great.

She cannot give them sympathy, and it is difficult to find patience, but she can and does bestow upon them large and substantial allowances of good advice.

"Work," she says, "work, work! Work hard and honestly and seriously, and all the time. Let everything else be set aside for your work. There is no easy way, no halfway plan for achieving greatness."

Mrs. Carter is herself the most marvelous exponent of her own recipe for success.

I think I am perfectly safe in saying that no actress in America or in the entire world has worked so bravely and earnestly, so ceaselessly and against greater odds, than has Mrs. Carter during her entire professional life.

She is great and she deserves to be. There is no glory, no praise too high which should not, by every right belong to Mrs. Carter, perhaps not because of her tremendous natural ability than because of her courage.

In her sun-flooded flower-filled apartment in the Touraine Mrs. Carter drifted into a serious mood the other day and preached to me a marvelous little sermon on the gospel of work.

I wish it were possible for me to reproduce the little preachment just as I heard it. Unfortunately my voice will not carry the picture, just as I heard it.

Beyond doubt, it would result in good. It would spur the laggard to ambition. It would revive hope within the hopeless.

"My life has been a life of absolute, utter sacrifice," she said, as she leaned forward, elbows on the table, cheek in her hands. "There has been no pleasure save the pleasure that comes as the achievement of the hardest kind of work."

Her thrilling, deep, velvety voice vibrated with emotion. Her strong wonderful face grew serious and illumined with feeling, her great expressive, green-gray eyes deepened with emotion until they were almost black.

"Oh, how I have worked and suffered!" she said.

I have gained a little only to be knocked over and I've had to struggle back again. There have been obstacles at every step, and I've had to sweep them aside one by one. Prejudice and power combined are the most fearful things one can fight. I know by experience.

"Everything I've learned in life I've learned by experience. And now I've reached some heights." She sighed and a smile of half contempt curled over her face. "But, oh, it's so hard to stay up in the air. Never once must one grow careless or feel secure.

"Some one asked me the other day if I am not proud to have been so successful.

"Ah, my dear, I've had too hard a road to go to be proud. I've been too fearfully humble always, all the time to think of being proud. All I can do is to hope and pray and work to stay where I am, to progress, not to slip backward.

"It is so hard, so hard to climb. It is so easy to fall.

"Ambition? Satisfaction? I never was so ambitious in my life. There is so much that I want to do. I want to get away up there." She pointed upward, lifting her head, gazing into the visible heights, as if she saw some throne of glory in a vision. "I will keep holding on. I will never, never, NEVER give up.

"And satisfaction? I have never been satisfied. A person sounds his own death knell the moment that he feels he is great. Our learns every moment that he lives.

"Why, when I revived 'Zaza' and 'Du Barry' I learned so much that was new. Yet I had played those roles fifteen hundred, sixteen hundred, eighteen hundred times. We cannot do things in a hurry and have them succeed.

It has always been a marvel to me, being a man of only ordinary attainments that so many women, particularly professional women, can accomplish so much in the day. How they can lunch, dine and sup; how they can be tea guests and tea hostesses, how they can read and write and shop, and withal fulfill the duties of their theatrical life.

I asked Mrs. Carter, "How can a woman be a social leader and a theatrical star?"

"She can't," came the prompt and caustic response.

"It is impossible. The professional woman, to succeed, must work, work, work. How can she work and at the same time be a social butterfly? You can't mix oil and water. I hear of women who go out all the time, who eat any time and anything, who drink a lot and who succeed professionally. The report is vitally wrong somewhere.

"Why, no human breath won't stand it. Your body, mind, brain, frame, body will endure it. Of course there are exceptions, a few successful women made of iron.

Perhaps it is because I don't drink anything at all that I feel that I do. I do not drink, but I believe I could if I were in the South, where I was born. How it is that I say I use anything alcoholic? I hate wine, the very sight of champagne bubbling in the glass is unpleasant to me, and I am really sure that I have never tasted whiskey. Many a time, I don't take any credit to myself for this, it is simply a matter of fact.

I am simply a believer in the simple life.

"Indeed I am. Mrs. Carter agreed heartily. "I'm the supreme advocate of the simple life. I would like to preach it from the housetops. I would tell you about it, but I can't, for Mr. Belasco has made me promise that I will not tell until it is finished. You have no idea how painstaking he is about his work.

"Every little turn of a sentence has to be just right. If it doesn't suit him he will tear it up and throw it into the waste basket. Then I go and I practice the lines and pantomime in my room, and oftentimes we have rehearsals which we use afterward with great success.

Mrs. Carter is a conservative person only it is not the kind which the formula book consists of no corsets and the kimono. For years she has been a chief article in Mrs. Carter's wardrobe. She has now 418 of them. Her kimonos are by no means the ordinary, every one of fairs we slip on—you and I and we—are in the privacy of our own rooms. They are gorgeous Oriental affairs, stiff with wonderful embroideries, wrought by dainty Geisha fingers. The day I saw her at her hotel she wore a pale blue satin affair, embroidered in on her previous appearances of gold. Bands of dull blue and white here, as embroidery finished the fronts and "Zaza" or sleeves. With it Mrs. Carter wore a cunning little chemisette of mulle and lace and undersleeves to match. On her arms are barbaric silver bracelets set in emeralds and diamonds. Her fingers are laden with rings, silver, hand-carved, with emeralds and diamonds and tourmalines for settings.

About her throat was a chain of baroque pearls, from which depended a gold cross. Close about her throat was a short string of larger pearls.

We say Mrs. Carter has not known the soothing luxury of corsets. She wears a simple satin, whale-boned belt, made by her maid, which holds her waist slender outlines.

Some of her kimonos are marvels and have belonged to royalty. Several show the crest symbol of royalty, the fo[illegible] dragon. Mrs. Carter wears no corsets, to the theatre, on the street, shopping everywhere, [illegible] a long coat.

"The [illegible] management means much to Mr. Carter for her son Dudley is making her what she is to-day. Mrs. Carter says: "Mr. Belasco is the simplest, sweetest nature I ever knew. He is most intensely human. Oh, he is the most wonderful man in the world."

Mr. Carter [illegible] Belasco to you, you can easily apply her words to her own self.

Speaking of Mr. Belasco to whom she gives credit for

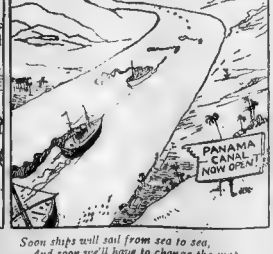
Not Yet---But Soon

By Swinnerton

When life insurance presidents
Forget the rules of honesty,
We'll promptly send them all to jail—
Not yet—but soon—MAY BE!

When Senators degenerate
Their usefulness begins to lapse,
That's why they hasten to resign—
Not yet—but soon—perhaps!



Soon ships will sail from sea to sea,
And soon we'll have to change the map
The great Canal at last is done—
Not yet—but soon—perhaps!

When every other scheme has failed
Count Castellane will change his tune
And try his hand at honest work—
Not yet—of course—but soon!

And Uncle Sam will give the trusts
What they deserve—some lusty raps.
And put them out of business—
Not yet—but soon—PERHAPS!

District Nurses the Good Samaritans for the City's Poor

Mrs. Frank Monkes. Miss Fannie Bartlett. Mrs. Mumford. Dr. Richard S. Cabot. Mrs. S. R. Norcross. Mrs. K. Codman. Miss Starks, chief nurse.

"Do you know, I believe doing good makes people look happy. Three of them gave their experiences, one of her work in general, another her labors in tuberculosis cases, and the third her duties in caring for mothers and babies," writes Jane Newcombe.

BY JANE NEWCOMBE

MY DEAR GRACE:

Did you ever think what being very, very poor and ill in a great city means? Did you ever wonder what happened to the destitute when illness robbed them of their earning capacity and from their bed of pain they could hear the wolf's howls growing nearer and nearer?

To those of us who are so pleased that the most skilled physicians and nurses and every appliance and the best of food seems only necessary for the invalid, I think there comes too seldom any concern for those less fortunate—to those who can bravely struggle along when blessed with comparative health and to whom sickness presents a problem almost overwhelming.

All this was borne in upon me with tremendous force last Wednesday when I attended a meeting of the Instructive District Nursing Association at the Vendome, and listened to reports of the wonderfully good and helpful work which is being done for the sick poor of Boston

The Real Samaritans

For twenty years this organization has been carrying on its work, supported by charitable contributions and steadily growing and increasing its field of usefulness.

The president is Miss Elizabeth P. Cordner, the vice presidents, Miss Helen Callamore and Miss Mary Minot. Mrs. Katherine Codman is secretary, and Mrs. Susannah R. Norcross is treasurer. Several of the most prominent physicians in Boston are vitally interested in the work, and give willingly their services and advice for which their own Back Bay friends, neighbors and acquaintances would have to pay in very generous figures.

Dr. Richard S. Cabot, famous as a blood expert, is one of the very earnest workers in behalf of this charity, and he gave a most interesting talk during the meeting. It seems to be largely a work which appeals to women for I don't believe that out of the 200 people present there were twenty men, and most of them were physicians.

Seated on the large platform, besides the officers, were twenty nurses, all in their neat gray and white striped print gowns with spotless linen collars, and wearing the serene black felt hats which belong to their uniform.

The only exception in the uniformity of headgear was the close-fitting, quaint little black bonnet, quite like a deaconess' bonnet, worn by Miss Stark, the superintendent of nurses. She is a plump, happy, cheerful-looking woman, whose round smiling face, sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks would be inspiring in any sick room and as efficacious as a tonic. The nurses are all graduates of the best hospitals here, and are all rather young women with radiantly cheerful faces.

Happiness in Good Work

Do you know, I believe doing good makes people look happy.

Three of them gave their experiences, one of her work in general, another her labors in tuberculosis cases, and the third her duties in caring for mothers and babies.

It is simply wonderful what the association is doing.

There are twenty-three nurses and three assistant nurses. Yet, as Dr. Cabot said in his talk, it is not nearly enough. Some of the nurses have to make eighteen and more calls a day. He suggested a call for volunteers, for there is much that a sensible woman can do, even if she is not a trained nurse.

The association never refuses a call. This, Dr. Cabot thinks, is a mistake, because he argues that the nurses are too overworked, and as long as they keep struggling along on what money they have, he rather believes the public will let them struggle, when a few refusals might awaken people to the need for more money. He made a point of the fact that the public is getting very wideawake to the use of medical charity, and said that the doctors themselves are giving more liberally of their time and skill to the betterment of the poor.

The great good that these district nurses are doing in the schools is marvellous. Just think, in a school upon which the school inspectors had reported that the children were all right, the nurses found fifty-five children with defective eyes, twenty-five suffering from asthma and 235 in all needing medical attention.

The nurse who visits the school children first goes to the mother and explains, and then takes the child to the nearest hospital, where it is given attention.

Dr. Cabot has a most original manner of expression. In speaking of the present interest in tuberculosis, he said "the public is awake to its danger, though it is as yet sitting on the edge of the bed and not thoroughly dressed."

Pathetic Tales of Suffering

It was simply heartrending to hear the stories of sickness and poverty and ignorance which the nurses told. Many of the foreigners can scarcely believe that such goodness can exist. The younger generation is learning something of the necessity of sanitation. One boy said he "slept with his windows open last night, and he was always going to."

Besides the children are learning that cleanliness makes for health and happiness.

After it was all over we went into the next room for tea and a social chat.

Several of the managers took turns in presiding, including Miss Fannie Bartlett and Mrs. Frank Monkes.

Mrs. Mumford, wife of Dr. Mumford, was most active all the time. She is a charming woman, strong and wholesome and with the sweetest, most kindly face, and a glorious complexion.

The nurses helped serve, and I can assure you that coming in from the piercing cold, the hot tea, coffee and chocolate was most acceptable. Some of the people I saw were: Mrs. Ernest Amory Codman and Miss Elizabeth Codman, Mrs. Stanley Clemens, Mrs. Walter Bayles, Mrs. William A. Donald, Mrs. Horace Gray, Miss Susan Amory, Miss Georgina Cary, Mrs. James Freeman, Miss Clara Endicott, Miss Mary Hall, Mrs. M. A De Wolfe Howe, Miss Helena Meyer, Miss Julia Hunnewell, Miss Gertrude Peabody, Mrs. John Ritchie, Miss Mary Sargent, Mrs. Charles F. Whiting, Mrs. Martha A. Sanderson, Mrs. Elizabeth Toppan, Miss Emily Denny, Mrs. Derby, Miss Mary Batchelder.

If I thought I could be of any real use, I think I would volunteer my services during Lent. If it did nothing else it would teach me to appreciate my blessings and sharpen my sympathy and pity.

Ever faithfully,

JANE

To Miss Grace Winters, Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Observations on the Mayor by the Office Poet

A BIGGER, Better Boston is the basis of my theme—
It was our bustling Mayor who thusly spake—
I long to make the Hub indeed of business marts the dream
(I'll have a little ice-cream and some cake)

"To make the Hub of business marts the dream."

I PLAN to let our buildings boost themselves up to the sky;
A boulevard I'll shove out in Back Bay;
A City Hall near Mrs. Jack's we'll manage bye and bye
(The grand march now begins, I'll lead the way).

BAND concerts in the Summer time on every vacant lot.
We need, to give the boys and girls delight;
We'll build a central icing plant if weather gets too hot

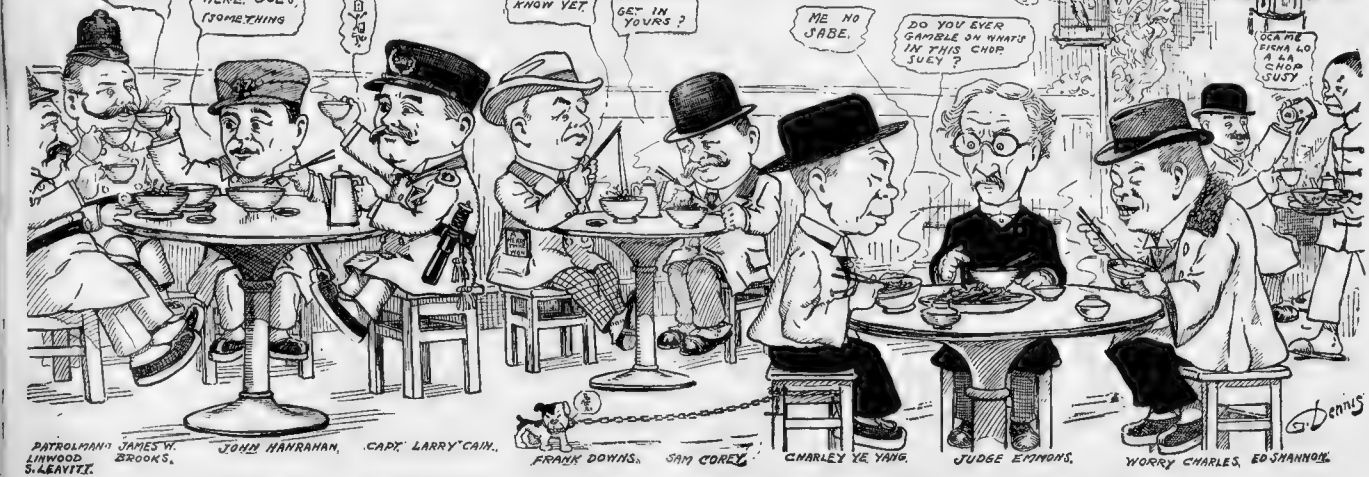
Conjuring up bigger Boston beans.

ON Bunker Hill the monument must run a story higher;
Our harbor ought to take in Plymouth Rock.
To serve up bigger, better Boston beans is my desire
(I must not miss that tea at four o'clock)

A Slumming Party in Chinatown and the Red Dragon Table D'Hote



"I have seldom shied at a table d'hote," said Sam Corey of the Raleigh, "but there are things in this pool that are as uncertain as some horses my friends have owned."

By "The Plain Clothes Man"

It was peace in Chinatown. The Tongs had ceased to kill, and in the all-pervading spirit of brotherhood even the Chinks who had sold the police where hop is smoked and fan tan played dared to come out from cover. An informer gets "his" in Ireland, and that much and what's coming to the other fellow when caught in the dark in Boston by his compatriots in the absence of Lin Leavitt, Jack Brooks and John Hanrahan.

Ever since these cops have been doing stunts where the chop suey flows they have drunk nothing but tea. It is a mistake to think that patrolmen in a yellow district take naturally to orange phosphate. Chinatown tea is the real article. It cheers, but does not inebriate. Man who get into the Lagrange street bastile by force of circumstances or a patrol wagon make a mistake telling Captain Larry Cain that they have drunk nothing but tea.

"Tea," said Captain Larry, who knows enough Chinese to tell a laundry bill from a lottery ticket, "is good for a peace conference. If everybody in Boston drank nothing else, half the cops would lose their jobs. You never see a sport who has been opening tea by the quart try to drive a cab into the Clark's because has a bunch, he ought to register the horse. I'm in favor of tea."

"No Chink Rosy Cheeked."

When the slumming party got into the Red Dragon and looked at the menu there were hurry calls for Worry Charles, Yee Wah and all the other interpreters who wear American clothes and know where to find a ball commissioner the quickest.

"I have seldom shied at a table d'hote," said Sam Corey of the Raleigh, "but there are things in this pool that are as uncertain as some horses my friends have owned."

"I do not think this Chinese food can be as healthy as alleged," said Frank D[owns], "I have observed that no Chin[ese] rosy cheeks and a milky co[mplexion]. A man is mostly judged in [China] like a horse largely depends upon [the] driver."

Bill Hi[ckey] of Saugus and Charley Jewett of Medville, who happened on the same circuit this evening, dropped in to see Charley Yee Yang, one of the Red Dragon mandarins. Charley is the president of a Chinese Christian Endeavor society, and denies he is the only Mongolian that ever [met] John Quinn, Chinatown's [district].

"I would [like] to find that Chink," said "Hoss" Hickey, "I suspect that he was phony, and if Willie Fitz is using ringers to [mix] with the old Fort Hill constituency I want to get wise before I am confronted with a Boxer outbreak."

Ed Shannon and Royce Collins of the Lowell House looked at the wine list like a pair of Bangor prohibitionists.

"I am glad," said Ed, "that nobody comes up to my fence and asks me to mix anything off this dope sheet."

"I have read a good deal about this Horse bunch that is boycotting American corned beef," said Captain Bill Daly, "and would like to have some Oriental traveler explain the ring rules they scrap under."

"Horse a Civiliser."

"If," said Dick Lawrence, "they would send more horses and fewer missionaries to Pekin there would be less trouble. There is nothing which promotes civilization like a horse. Commerce is the basis of culture, and when a people are able to trade horses you can't get 'em on anything."

"Let us make a book," said Andy Sullivan, "and the man who can guess what we've been eatin' takes all the money."

Judge Emmons came in sadly and took a seat in the corner. The garish lights continued to glisten and the sound of revelry was wafted up from the bizarre street.

"I am not sure but that the Police Board ought not to stop this feasting," said the Judge," as John B. Moran insists on our enforcing the law. After perusing this bill of fare it impresses me as a game of chance."

There was a great commotion down the street, but Soo Wing Wong quieted the fears of the diners in the Dragon. His English is as fast, but he couldn't get into China now during daylight save he had his hair cut.

"That noise, gentlemen," he remarked, "is neither murder nor a battle between the Hop Sing Tong highbinders and the On Leong Tong merchants. It is merely a rehearsal by the local symphony men. If you Melicans can stand for Wagner it's a cinch that brand of music will get popular by the time all the Conservatory girls get into grand opera."

"It has come to me," said Tom Whalen, "that morning is the green tea time, but Pink Teas are en vogue in the afternoon only. Why it is?"

When the bell tolled 11 up the stairs came delegates from all over the State.

"There is no place like home," said Mike Barry, "but even a semi-colon cannot drive us there."

Good Natured Sidelights on Greater Boston

A Fireman Bold and Dashing Is Big Ben Wells

Ben Wells is a bully boy—
Big and strong is he.
"When I grow up," he shouted,
"A fireman I'll be."

They talked of him up for Mayor,
But Benny said, "Nay, nay!
I'd rather run with the machine
Than get the biggest pay"

They made him supervisor of the streets,
But still he hugged the hope
Some day he had no business
Except to fires to lope.

Now he has a helmet red,
A trumpet big to blow,
And it's a treat to see him speeding
Down through Tremont row.

He has the only job he wants
And what he says "sure goes."
With every lad in Boston
Who's hired to play the hose.

Winter Sun Baths and Icy Sea Plunges Fad of Boston Men

When the police reached the spot they found Horan without any garments, except trunks, sitting on a cake of ice which was floating around in very briny water. These Winter bathers don't get cold. They will sleep in drafts, and their street attire is of the Summer variety as to weight and texture. Many of them never wear overcoats.

By Anthony Hopp.

BOSTONIANS who would like to be the keenest go over to L street beach in South Boston and bathe in Winter.

There is no place in the world like South Boston, and there is no place over there like the Beach.

It is one hundred and twenty yards long and shut off from the outside world and warm waves by stockades which run into the sea, and a long bath house in the rear. Somewhere in the Alps is a camp which is run for the benefit of civilized people who don't want to wear clothes.

Over in L street the bathers go round in the original costume of our primitive parents, and the sunburn they get in a few weeks starts above the eyebrows and descends to the toes. The sun puts the tan all over them.

When there are a thousand of them cavorting on the sands and the big raft, any unsophisticated outsider who wandered within the barricade would imagine, if his mind sustained the sudden shock, that he had struck a colony of Kanakas.

Sun bathing is what enables the Ice men to do natatorial stunts in the sea when the January wind is making crossed them off their lists.

surf in Dorchester Bay. It toughens the skin so that it has all the heating qualities of a fur-lined ulster.

When the sun is bright the bunch takes a plunge into water that may be cold enough to make Ice and then, red as fresh boiled lobsters, go up against the bath house or fence, where the sunshine has a radiating surface for a background, and dry.

It is a common sight to see men in overcoats, with collars turned up, gazing in awe, or with an "Have I got 'em?" supression, at a bunch of gents who are exposed to the weather in nature's garb.

Nobody in Boston has to go to the Alps or New Jersey, where they have started an imitation without-clothes camp, to wander around in their skin

Hardier Than Eskimo.

There is in this city a number of men who would qualify with ease as North Pole searchers, for they are tougher in withstanding cold than any Eskimo. They are never ill, and are so hardy that the undertakers have Sometimes there are as many as 3,000 bathers at the L street at once. But that is in the Summer. The Winter bathers do not number more than two scores, but slowly their ranks are increasing.

Dr. Crockett is the dean of the squad. He has passed the three score age by some distance, but if there is any twenty-year old lad in town who thinks he can swim, let him go a distance against the doctor.

Henry Horan is classed the champion long distance swimmer of the United States by those who frequent the beach. He can swim as far as he can walk, and they say he goes to sleep in the water. An excited man rushed into a South Boston police station and shouted:

"John L. Sullivan has gone crazy and is trying to drown himself at L street!"

When the police reached the spot, they found Horan without any garment, except trunks, sitting on a cake of ice which was floating around in very briny water.

These Winter bathers don't get cold They will sleep in drafts, and their street attire is of the Summer variety as to weight and texture. Many of them never wear overcoats.

Jack Glenister There.

Among the habitues are some wonderful swimmers. There is "Jim" McCusker, the American champion, who can make a seal look like a log when it comes to getting through the water.

Jack Glenister swam the Niagara rapids where famous Captain Webb lost his life. Jack was training Tom Sharkey for a ring encounter once. They had words while they had on the gloves. Tom handed Jack a wallop. When Jack woke up he said:

"Will you swim out as far as I go?"

"Sure," said Tom. "I'm a gladiator who never took a dare."

After they had got out into the ocean several miles, Tom said feebly: "How far are you going, Jack?"

"Far enough to drown you," said Glenister.

There is always talk at L street about swimming the English channel. All the distance men want to try it. "Pete" McNally is the only Boston man who got a chance to try to make Calais from Dover. He nearly did the trick.

"Was the water too cold, Pete?" asks Mike Meagher.

"Naw," said Pete." It was the currents. They have got more pull than Dan O'Connell with the Mayor."

Bill Hickey came out of the bath house and looked across at the pumping station, and thought of the time he got strong carrying pennies.

They were the proceeds of renting towels by the city, and Bill had such out of metal to log that he used to used constantly by the same coterie in on he was a linkman. A city towel is the smallest thing owned by the municipality. It is also diaphanous.

Parker Donegan and Gardner Blackbird are among the "regulars" who seldom miss a daily plunge the year 'round. It has to be very inclement weather when they will consent to descend to go inside the bathhouse to put on their duds. Others who do the "Winter stunt" regardless of the temperature are "Constable" Kenney, Joseph Goode and Thomas Lane. Policeman Walter A. Smith of the Court Street Station is another man who likes a dip in cold water. He used to be a swimming instructor at L street.

Among the "snowbirds" is former Councilor Jeremiah J. McNamara. He has got the "cold deal" occasionally in politics, and doesn't shy at ice water as long as the sun shines.

"What does that mean?" inquires Mike Kelly, as he stopped sweeping out the handball court, which has been

"That means chin," said Crowley.

"Then it's a knock at you," says Mike

BOSTON'S SOCIETY NEWS

Lenten Society Season Keeps Boston Folk Busy

Is Lent turning out to be gay in Boston?

The newly scheduled social programme shows that it is. With the exception of a lack of dances, it is so far proving quite as brilliant as the real season preceding it.

With house parties at country seats, dinners, playgoing and concerts, to say nothing of bridge, the forty days of penitence is already fairly flying, and those of the fashionables remaining in town find that they have engagements up to midnight for weeks to come.

The newest and most delightful of the Lenten diversions for my Lady of Leisure springs out of the increasing craze for country life, coming to us from [illegible] France and merry England—it is a fad for flower growing.

In her boudoir surrounded by a profusion of those most seductive things—the new floral catalogues—my lady sits and has her visions of that [illegible]

The rainbow comes and goes
And lovely is the rose—

and out of her flowery dreams come practical plans to "go-a-gardening" in the Spring.

Fashionable American maids and matrons, the emancipated ones—that is, those who are socially sure of themselves—will, like their French and English cousins, play at the simple life and become farmers of the Maud Muller and Marie Antoinette types.

Mrs. Prince Soon to Sail.

MRS. CHARLES PRINCE, the brilliant writer and gifted granddaughter of Rufus Choate, now visiting her mother, Mrs. E. E. Pratt, of Chestnut street, is making her plans to sail with her daughter, Helen, for Europe April 3. Her husband will meet them in Spain, and from there they will go to the Island of Noirmoutier (old-fashioned name [illegible]), where they have one of the most delightful of country homes and where Mrs. Prince, when not busy with her pen, indulges to [illegible]

One of the at present much discussed novels written by Mrs. Prince is "A Transatlantic Chatelaine." It deals with international marriages, and was written to show how little American girls know what they are going into when they marry for title.

For her "Story of Christine Rochefort," with its scenes laid much in Blois, Mrs. Prince got much of her information about strikes and workers [illegible] priest who had been sent there by the Pope to study the Socialistic problem. Mrs. Prince contemplates writing a series of short stories [illegible]

Mrs. Guild Resting.

THE ever gracious and charming Mrs. Curtis Guild, Jr., is enjoying to the fullest the little respite in the season's round of gaities. MRS. [illegible] S. ANDERSON has announced the engagement of her daughter Anna to Elbridge H. Green of Cambridge, Harvard '02.

Personals

MISS HELEN PRINCE, the beautiful [illegible] daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Prince, who now reside in France, has been a busy girl since her arrival in Boston last Fall on a visit to her grandmother. Besides many social demands she has devoted much of her time to charity and is immensely popular with the young boys of St. Stephen's parish, where each Thursday since her arrival in town she has conducted a Game Club for boys. Miss Prince is known to her intimates as the "Globe Trotter," as they declare they have hard work keeping track of their popular young friend who has been so much in demand as a house guest and is now visiting [illegible] the Third of April, will be taken up in visits out of town.

Besides being one of the most beautiful and popular girls of the younger set she is likewise one of the most accomplished and ranks well to the fore in the terpsichorean art. Her dance at the fashionable vaudeville given Monday night in Jordan Hall for the benefit of the neighborhood work of St. Stephen's, and which illustrated the French legend "Sorcellerie," was [illegible] and received [illegible] until Miss Prince was obliged to repeat it from the beginning. The Vincent Club of which she is a member regrets that she will not be here to take part in the Spring theatricals.

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON, one of Boston's most charming society matrons, who has been spending the Winter in Washington, sailed with Mr. Anderson Wednesday for an extended tour in Europe. Mrs. Anderson's entertainments at her beautiful home in the Capital City this Winter have been more numerous and lavish than previously. They were brought to a sudden close by the death of a relative. After spending some time visiting the larger cities Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will make an automobile tour of Southern Europe before returning to Boston.

Mrs. [illegible] Perkins, J[illegible] Amory), of Commonwealth avenue [illegible] last week underwent an operation [illegible] delighting her scores of friends by her rapid convalescence. It will be remembered that Mrs. Perkins made her debut [illegible] became engaged [illegible] married all in the same year, and she is now one of the most interesting matrons in Boston society.

Mrs. William L. Parker has returned to her Dartmouth street residence after a most delightful visit in Washington. Mrs. Parker will, as usual, take an active part in the Copley Society reception Tuesday evening.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Nourse (Dorothy Quincy) have returned from their honeymoon and are occupying the Quincy residence on Beacon street during the absence of Mrs. Quincy and her daughter, Eleanor, in Europe. Mrs. Quincy and Miss Eleanor will not return until Fall, and Mr. and Mrs. Nourse will occupy the Quincy Summer residence at Dedham, taking possession early in June.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ayer of Commonwealth avenue, with their interesting daughter, Miss Beatrice Ayer, and her intimate friend Elizabeth Dunn, are recent arrivals at Palm Beach. Mr. and Mrs. James Lawrence [illegible] are other recent arrivals at the Southern resort, where they are the guests of Dr. and Mrs. W. Seward Webb, who are entertaining a number of friends in two large private cars.

AMONG the host of pretty debutantes who have had a socially exciting season and, now that the dancing has ceased, are at a loss for something "to happen," are Miss Mary Josephine Amory, the pretty and winsome daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Amory [illegible] of the Lenten season visiting [illegible]

Miss Alice Thorndike, who is [illegible] one of the best horse women of the [illegible] set is spending most of [illegible] riding horseback either at the New Riding Club on Hemenway street or in Brookline. Miss Katherine Roosevelt, daughter of Mrs. T. James Bowker of [illegible] will spend some few weeks [illegible] among whom is Miss [illegible] Walpole whose recent [illegible] closest debutante [illegible]

Stoddard, who have not been heard of late except by their most intimate friends, will render several duets.

TO the Lenten diversions, Spanish musicales to be given by Countess de Sesini St. Angel of Beacon street, Brookline, are a welcome addition. These are arranged to take place each Sunday afternoon this month, and are preceded by a reception and tea. Prominent among the [illegible] to assist at these musicales are Professor Herman Chelius, Mr. Carl Pierce, [illegible] Wasgatt, Mr. Van Vleet and Mr. [illegible] Boardman Hall.

A YOUNG people's recital of plantation songs and stories will be given by Miss Anna Vernon Dorsey of Maryland at the Tuileries on the afternoon of March 13. Miss Dorsey is extremely popular here with the fashionable set, and her clever negro characterizations have often been heard in the homes of the "400." The list of patronesses includes Mrs. John C. Gray, Mrs. David S. Greenough, Jr., Mrs. Charles Hamlin, Mrs. Horatio Lamb, Miss Louisa Loring, Mrs. J. C. Phillips, Mrs. Morton Prince, Mrs. J. C. Rogers, Mrs. William B. Rogers, Mrs. Lucius Sargent, Miss Adele Thayer, Mrs. Charles Whitney and Mrs. F. S. Watson.

"MIRANDOLINA," the play to be given at Potter Hall, March 5, by the College Equal Suffrage League, promises to be quite the most interesting of the early Lenten entertainments. Among the attractions will be an Italian dance given by Miss Ruth S. Dinsmore of Newbury street. Mrs. Inez Haynes Gilmore, who in her Radcliffe College days was well known as an actress, will play the title role. Others to take part are Mr. [illegible] as the woman hating cavalier; Miss Gertrude Cliff, Miss Ella [illegible], Mr. Houghton Schumacher, Mr. Harold Young, Mr. Winthrop Miller and Mr. Pinckney Holbrook.

The Safer Way in Buying Pianos

The purchase of a piano is not a matter of today, nor of 10 years, but of a generation.

Therefore great care should be exercised in the selection—first to secure a satisfactory instrument and second to buy at the lowest possible price for which such an instrument can be sold.

In Buying of the House of Steinert you Are Assured of Both

We are the largest distributors of reliable pianos in New England, having forty distributing centres. It keeps these 40 stores busy handling the immense volume of our piano sales.

THINK OF WHAT THAT SECURES TO YOU

It means that we are in a position to give you the most piano reliability for the least money. No other concern handles so many pianos, and consequently no other concern can buy at such low prices.

Having a prestige in the piano trade of nearly half a century to maintain, we could not afford to sell pianos of "skimpy" worth.

Our immense business has been reared on the basis of strict integrity in dealing with a most critical musical public—in selling the most reliable pianos at lowest prices and guaranteeing satisfaction to the buyer.

Five Big Stars in the Theatrical Firmament to Shed Their Lustre in Boston's Playhouses

THIS is the most notable week in Boston's theatrical season. Five of the greatest stars in their particular fields of dramatic work are to be seen here, and three plays new to the stage are to be given. In addition, the biggest extravaganza now playing is to be presented here, and there is comedy and melodrama aplenty besides.

Richard Mansfield opens at the Colonial Theatre in a repertoire of strong plays; Mrs. Leslie Carter continues "Adrea," the Belasco tragedy, at the Tremont; Eleanor Robson repeats "Merely Mary Ann" at the Hollis, jolly May Irwin makes blues vanish at the Park, and as a special treat, Paul Orleneff, the great Russian tragedienne comes to the Park Theatre ... in repertoire. At the Boston Theatre the ... "Pearl and the Pumpkin" begins an engagement brief but lively.

The stock companies have strong bills, "The Fatal Card" opening at the Castle Square; "When We Were Twenty-one" at the Empire, and "New England Folks" at the Bowdoin Square. An old favorite, "The Eternal City," comes to the Globe Theatre, while "King of the Opium Ring," brim full of sensation, holds the boards at the Grand Opera House.

As though especially prepared for the Lenten season, the Bible romance of Esther, under the name of "Mizpah," is at the Majestic, with its marvellous stage pictures and its heart-throbs in the form of a love story. Houdini remains at Keith's Theatre, with his wonderful escapes from handcuffs, manacles, strait-jackets, etc., and all the other vaudeville and burlesque houses present new bills, Charmion being a feature at the Howard.

Colonial Theatre

Richard Mansfield, to-morrow night, inaugurates a fortnight's engagement at the Colonial Theatre, during which time he will act Schiller's great historical tragedy of "Don Carlos" and Moliere's bright and fascinating comedy, "The Misantrope," for the first time in Boston, and will revive the highly successful dramatic version of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," in addition to his Shakespearean and other popular roles. Mr. Mansfield's early retirement places a limit on the number of times his public will be privileged to see him. Boston will have its customary portion of his time, each of the three remaining seasons he will act, but, with only a few other exceptions, his plans make his appearance from now on his farewell.

In detail the order of plays for Mr. Mansfield's appearances at the Colonial this week and next is: Monday, as Don Carlos in a massive production of Schiller's great tragedy, "Don Carlos" (first time in Boston), Tuesday, as Alceste in Moliere's witty and vivacious comedy, "The Misanthrope" (first time in Boston); Wednesday, as Arthur Dimmesdale in the dramatic version of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter," recently revived with extraordinary success; Thursday, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; Friday, as Shylock in a beautiful production of Shakespeare's comedy, "The Merchant of Venice", Saturday matinee, "Don Carlos"; Saturday night, only time as the Baron Chevrial in "A Parisian Romance." Next week: Monday, "Beau Brummel"; Tuesday, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde"; Wednesday, "Don Carlos"; Thursday, as Richard in the massive production of Shakespeare's "King Richard III"; Friday, "The Scarlet Letter"; Saturday matinee, "Beau Brummell"; Saturday night, "The Merchant of Venice."

Boston Theatre

To the already big organization Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger are presenting in "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" these managers have added one of the most sensational dancing features the stage in this country has ever seen in the Freole-Arlaza Castilian dancers and troubadours, who do their remarkable dance in the second act. "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" begins a three-weeks' engagement at the Boston Theatre to-morrow evening. The book and lyrics of this delightful combination of Yankeeland and fairyland are by W. W. Denslow and Paul West, a well known newspaper writer. John W. Bratton has contributed twenty delightful musical numbers. Among the most popular are "My Party," "Jack o' Lantern Joe," "Stars Are Shining," "When the Moon is in the Sky," "We'll Hang Together," "Fol-de-lidly-ido," "My Combination Girl," "A String of Pearls," "My Little Baby Elephant," "Lily White," "The Phantom Ship" and "The Canny Canner."

The Freole-Arlaza dancers were secured by Messrs. Klaw and Erlanger after the keenest competition, they having been the reigning dancing sensation of Europe at the Theatre Royal, Madrid. In the Denslow-West combination ten scenes are necessary to tell the story which principally concerns a pumpkin famine with but one crop on the earth and that is a remote corner of Vermont. The action opens in a fairy grotto in the forest and following in quick succession come the interior of Farmer Pringle's barn in Vermont, with the merry making of the villagers at their Hallowe'en festivities. Hallowe'en Hollow, or the dell of a thousand eyes, a Cornfield on the Pringle farm (just before midnight); the exterior of Davy Jones' locker, underneath the sea; North Rock off the coast of Bermuda; a lily field, Bermuda, and on the South shore at midnight. In the big cast are Harry Gilfoil, Sager Midgley, Harry MacDonough, George Richards, John Mayon, Charles McDonald, Kingsley Benedict, Oscar Ragland, Ida Hawley, Gertie Carlisle, Ethel Johnson, Florence Quinn and others.

There will be mid-week and Saturday matinees.

Hollis Street Theatre

Eleanor Robson will appear in two comedies by Israel Zangwill and Clyde Fitch at the Hollis Street Theatre for two weeks, beginning to-morrow night. The first week she will give seven farewell performances of "Merely Mary Ann," the play in which she appeared here last year, scoring a decided hit.

During the second week she will appear as Sylvia Lang in the new comedy written for her by Clyde Fitch, and called "The Girl Who Has Everything." The comedy is in four acts and the scenes are laid in the city of New York. Sylvia Lang is a typical American woman who suddenly is made guardian of the two children of her dead sister, and the play revolves about her efforts to save their fortune for them, which is being threatened by the unscrupulousness of their father.

Miss Robson has a company of exceptional strength, including four leading men: H. B. Warner, Reuben Fax, Earle Browne and Ernest Mainwaring. Miss Ada Dwyer is still playing the leading character parts and other prominent members are Mrs. Morton Selten, Miss Laura Clement and Miss Isabel Richards.

Russian Matinees

Paul Orleneff and his splendid dramatic company, including Mme. Alla Nasimoff, will make their reappearance in Boston at the Park Theatre for a Lenten season of afternoon performances, for two weeks beginning to-morrow. The repertoire will consist of the following plays: March 5, "The Chosen People;" March 6, "Ghosts," March 8, "Zaza," March 9, "Petty Persecution," March 13, "Revizor" (The Inspector); March 15, "Zaza;" March 16, "Love and Intrigue."

"The Chosen People" is a discursive tragedy, which was undoubtedly inspired by the massacre of Kishenev. It is a free and heated discussion of the condition of the Jews in Russia. It forcefully presents the arguments of factions, and there is introduced the love of Leah for a Gentile, and the consequent breaking with her aged father, and the love of Nachman for Leah, which she cannot requite. In the end there is a rising against the Jews, Nachman escapes in saving the life of a child, but Leser and Beresin are killed, and Leah shoots herself to escape dishonor. It is a grim, gripping tragedy, that impresses a language utterly foreign to the majority.

Tremont Theatre

To-morrow evening begins the second week of Mrs. Leslie Carter's engagement at the Tremont Theatre and her last week as Adrea. Her opening week has been a series of nightly triumphs. Plays of the quality of "Adrea" are rarely seen on the Boston stage, its plot, its characters, its stage settings and its spectacular effects all contributing their share to the perfection of the production.

Mrs. Carter has in Adrea, the blind princess who rules a mythical kingdom of fifth century Italy, a role that brings out to the utmost her great dramatic power. Never has she ranged the scale of emotions so widely, and never before has she had such control over her audiences. Her engagement here is a limited one and "Adrea" can be given for only a portion of it. Zaza being scheduled for the final performances of her season. The curtain rises promptly every evening at a quarter to eight, and Saturday matinees only are given.

Park Theatre

The coming week will be the last of May Irwin's engagement in Boston in "Mrs. Black is Back." Indeed it will be local theatregoers' last chance to see Miss Irwin in the most successful play of her career, for the Hobart comedy will be withdrawn at the end of the current season. The Park Theatre, where Miss Irwin is holding forth, has been the scene of almost riotous laughter the last week, and capacity audiences have been the rule. The performance next Saturday night will be the last one in this city.

An important part of a May Irwin entertainment are the Irwin songs, and as an exponent of ragtime the cheery comedienne has no peers. The company is practically the same clever one that was here last year when the play made its first success. The new coon songs that Miss Irwin sings are called "May Irwin's Ragtime Dance," "The Steamer Stoker," "Don't Argify," "Dreams," and "The Filipino Dance."

Lent w... the special appeal of "Mizpah," that beautiful drama of Queen Esther, which is entering upon the fourth week of its triumphant engagement at the Majestic Theatre. With its spectacular oriental splendor and charm and its universal human interest, this successful forthright retelling of that wonderful world story has been attracting crowded audiences ... the beginning of this new religious season even an added impetus will be given to its appeal. The most religious playgoer will find in its treatment of its majestic theme a commendable achievement in endowing the famous sacred legend with fresh beauty and impressiveness.

At the close of its present Boston engagement the piece will be taken to Chicago for a record run at McVicker's Theatre. There will be the usual Wednesday ... matinees at the Majestic Theatre.

Keith's Theatre

Perhaps no entertainer who has appeared at Keith's in recent years has succeeded in creating the sensation aroused by Harry Houdini. Handcuffs and manacles seem to have no terrors for him and even straitjackets are put to shame. At every performance during the past week he had something new and startling. Not satisfied with putting handcuffs and manacles to shame this wonderfully versatile entertainer broke jail also. It is a safe assumption to make that this clever artist will cause more comment during the present six days than at any time previous.

There will be many other strong acts of ... qualities on the bill, including ... posing by famous ... Edmund Day, the author-actor, in his ... sketch, "The Sheriff," ... trinners, ... Harry Edeson and a remarkable trained canine. The customary change of motion pictures will be made in the kinetograph.

Castle Square Theatre

"The Fatal Card" is somewhat out of the ordinary run of English melodramas. It is also one of the most popular plays of its kind ever given in this country, and it will ... at the Castle Square ... eight years. It was ... in Boston at the Museum in 1895 where its run was long and exceptionally successful.

The scenes are laid in Colorado and in England, and the plot involves the fate of a man who is leading a double life. Ostensibly an honest citizen, he is in reality an expert criminal, and the course of the plot follows him to his fateful doom. Comedy enlivens every scene, however, and the ... The leading characters will be played by John Craig and Lillian Kemble and they will be supported by the entire Castle Square stock company. The first performance will be given at the Castle Square to-morrow afternoon, and hereafter there will be regular Monday matinees at this house.

EVERY WANT FILLED BY THE SHOW MAN

By J. FRANK DAVIS.

WITH a typical Belasco production— which means magnificent settings, costumes and accessories and an adequate company—at one theatre, a Crane comedy at another, Frank Daniels and May Irwin as musical laugh makers at a third and fourth, "Mizpah" with its beautiful scenes, its poetic lines and its appropriately solemn music at a fifth, and good, old "Way Down East" at a sixth, the week has been one to "fill the long-felt want" of about any living theatre-goer. It isn't often Boston gets such a satisfying variety of satisfying shows.

• • • •

THERE may be differences of opinion as to whether Mrs. Leslie Carter is as convincing in such roles as "Adrea" as in her parts in "Zaza" or "Du Barry." There can be no question that David Belasco has given her as sumptuous a setting in the new tragedy as in any of the productions which have been the work of his brain and unexcelled stagecraft.

There was once an ambitious playwright who took the book of a play to a modern manager, desiring to read it. "How many are in the cast?" demanded the manager, before the author had fairly settled himself to read. "Twelve," said the playwright, "seven men and five women, three 'doubles.'" "Never mind beginning to read," the manager said brusquely. "If you can cut the parts down to eight, cut it and come back. If you can't I don't want anything to do with it. It will cost too much for salaries."

This is apparently never a Belasco argument. There are twenty-nine speaking parts in "Adrea" to say ... even those who have two lines to speak—who are not entirely competent. When you add to this the ... costuming and lighting effects, which may be termed "magnificent" without getting away from the dictionary definition of the word, you have an explanation of why there are ... rows of seats down in front ... rows of people standing in back and every chair and box filled at every performance at the Tremont. And the clothes! Mrs. Carter never dressed more magnificently than in the throne scene in this play, and that is certainly something.

• • • •

MAY IRWIN must have been ... in her ... days by ... May your ... It isn't ... and probably never will. What of that so long as her ability to sing coon songs and patter comically by the yard also retains its rotund health and vigor. "Mrs. Black Is Back" is not new—it was here last season. It isn't much of a show, but it gives Miss Irwin an opportunity to be on the stage most of the time, and to make a great many people laugh. As some thousands of people are looking for just that thing the play is certainly a success.

PERSONS who like statistics might be interested in knowing how many times Phoebe Davies has been brought in out of the raging blizzard in "Way Down East." I can't tell, although I know it is something well over a thousand. And the wonder of it all is that she plays the part with as much apparent interest to-day as ... when she ... ever, ...

Charles Dana Gibson Pictures

BY HENRI PENE DU BOIS.

CHARLES DANA GIBSON'S second picture of his series, "The Seven Ages of Woman," appears with to... issue of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. The picture is of "School Days."

It shows the school girl at recreation. She is walking through a field, carrying a golf stick on her shoulder. She wears a short skirt, a shirt waist, a flat brimmed straw hat.

She has the self reliant air that only the American girls have. One would know her anywhere in the world would recognize her as an American. This is not because Mr. Gibson has been faithful in his work to a certain type which is American by common consent.

There is no such type. This school girl's face is very classic. She is recognised as an American because of her expression which Mr. Gibson has made very individual. The school girl of the ... has to be ... and angelic and the complexion that is white and pink. The American school girl is a harmonious figure. Her individuality is not in a detail, but in her entire appearance.

Carolus Duran was the first portrait painter that made that theory explicit, but he had never the faculty to put it into practice in his work with the ability that is Sargent's and the correctness that is Gibson's. ... girl is ... But this fault, if ... regarded as an inevitable ... His ideal ... makes him popular. He may lose this idealism after a year of study of the real old masters that were not academic. He may not lose his popularity, which his conscientious work as an artist deserves.

A SWEEPING SUCCESS!

That's the story of the March Cosmopolitan.

"The Treason of the Senate," by David Graham Phillips' has proved one of the most tremendous successes in years.

Not a loose copy in the office—and we began Saturday returning money remitted direct for the March issue.

The only possibility of now securing this remarkable issue is to "speak" for one, immediately, at the nearest news-stand, before the newsdealers' supply also becomes exhausted.

After these few remaining copies at the news-stands are sold, it will be strictly impossible to secure a copy anywhere.

The sweeping, almost instantaneous success of "The Treason of the Senate" has been due in the main to its entire sincerity.

Mr. Phillips tells the facts—positively only the facts.

Every single one of the scathing statements he has made has been verified—doubly verified—by a re-enforced corps of research experts.

So, with "The Treason of the Senate," there will be no bickerings with the truth, no equivocations, nor aftermath of judgments or suits, either.

Mr. Phillips draws back the curtain with a firm, unwavering hand and exposes the situation in all its infamy and gross injustice.

He tells the truth—the cold, naked, verified truth—backed by documents as irrefutable as Holy Writ.

It is this reserved, self-contained but merciless exposure of gross injustice that has created an almost unprecedented demand for the March Cosmopolitan.

Think it over!—430,000 copies—over 2,000,000 readers, for March alone.

Try to secure at once from your local news-dealer this remarkable number containing the first of Mr. Phillips' wonderful exposures now just beginning in the March Cosmopolitan—and be sure to put in your order early for the coming April issue.

Remember—430,000 copies for March—more than 2,000,000 readers!

24 DEAD, 50 MAIMED BY TORNADO.

Total Loss in Stricken City of Meridian Now Figured at $5,000,000.

500 BUILDINGS PILED HIGH IN HEAP OF RUINS

City of Boston,
Office of the Mayor.
Chief of Police, Meridian, Miss.:

Boston expresses its sympathy in the terrible disaster which afflicts your township. Boston will be glad to render any assistance possible.
JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor.

(The above dispatch was sent last evening by Mayor Fitzgerald to the devastated city of Meridian. Mayor Fitzgerald said he would await a reply, in readiness to take any action that should be requested by the citizens.)

Meridian, Miss., March 3.—A systematic canvass of the territory devastated by Friday night's cyclone shows that the death list will fall far short of the early figures, and to-night the Mayor and city authorities are in a position to state that the dead will number twenty-four, of whom some are negroes, while the injured list will be less than fifty, many of whom are in a serious condition.

The district swept over by the cyclone has been placed under martial law, and national guardsmen are aiding the police in keeping back the crowds that are anxious to aid the searchers who are carefully going over the debris to ascertain absolutely that none are under the ruins. The relief work is going on rapidly and those who lost their homes are being cared for at the expense of the city.

There is an abundance of funds and the arrival of Governor Vardaman on a special train this afternoon, with outside help has greatly cheered the people.

Demolished Lumber Plant.

Before striking the city proper Friday night the tornado struck and demolished the plant of the Cotton State Lumber Company at Meehan Junction and caused damage there amounting to $150,000. The [illegible] was shattered to splinters and fire which followed [illegible] the work of destruction wiping out all of the out buildings.

The Board of Trade to-night asked that the outside world be notified that no more funds are needed and that Meridian is perfectly able to take care of her dead and injured herself.

Governor Vardman arrived shortly after 4 o'clock on a special train bearing forty convicts, ten free laborers and forty members of the Legislature. The convicts and laborers are to remain under command of General Fridge to assist in clearing the debris, while the Legislature members returned to Jackson to-night, the Governor following to-morrow.

Under Martial Law.

Martial law was practically proclaimed for the wrecked portion with General Fridge in charge and strict obedience will be enforced. A clash of municipal and State authorities is not expected, as absolute harmony prevails.

Four military companies have been called into service and all thoroughfares in the path of the cyclone are being guarded by the State militia.

The city is enveloped in gloom and sorrow. The people are stunned and bewildered and they seem unable to comprehend the full extent of the loss they have suffered, and yet all things considered, the percentage of mortality has been exceedingly small, as compared with the path of the storm and extent of property loss.

Total Loss $5,000,000.

Five million dollars would not replace the destruction.

Numerous estimates have been made and none are under the figure named. The principal manufacturing establishments, the largest wholesale houses and several of the principal buildings are completely ruined. The storm performed its most fearful work on Front street and in the Georgetown and Fewell Survey suburbs on Front street where the principal wholesale houses are located. The Georgetown community is inhabited chiefly by cotton factory employes, while the Fewell Survey is the residence district for employes of the railroad shops.

Relief has been most prompt. At a mass meeting this noon $8,000 was subscribed for immediate relief work, and subscriptions are pouring in from all cities and towns in Mississippi, Tennessee and Louisiana, while the State Legislature has appropriated some $5,000, which has been made immediately available.

The pathway of the storm, which came out of the southwest with hardly a moment's warning, was 200 yards wide and about three miles long. Much of this territory was occupied by factories and mercantile buildings, whence the employes had gone home. Otherwise the loss of life would have been enormous.

The greatest death roll was in the houses adjacent to the cotton mills in

LILLIAN KEMBLE, ANGRY, DENIES RICH CLUB MAN IS INVOLVED IN DIVORCE SUIT

Two pictures of the popular Boston actress, whose husband says her love for a rich club man is reason for suit for divorce.

BRANDS STORY BY HUSBAND MALICIOUS LIE

Declares She Had to Pay Will Rising's Debts Long Enough.

Lillian Kemble, leading woman of the Castle Square Theatre Company emphatically and indignantly denied the report that as soon as her divorce from Will S. Rising is granted, she [illegible] to marry a prominent Boston club man.

Mr. Rising maintains that a wealthy Boston clubman whose [illegible] been made public has alienated her affections, and a suit against this scion of a noted family will be brought by the husband. The divorce suit has been pending for about two years in New York courts. There have been [illegible] that Miss Kemble would wed as soon as she is free.

She is one of the most popular actresses who has ever played in a company in this city, and [illegible] most beautiful women on the [illegible]. Since she came to the Castle S[illegible] as leading woman, in the [illegible] of 1904, she has played [illegible] and won great praise. Karl S[illegible], her father, was an eminent [illegible].

"Malicious Lie"

"When I left him he said he would kill me [illegible] that I should never belong to any other man. I helped him in every way in his profession and tried to shield him in every way. Since I left him I have succeeded much better, and I have been happier because I have not been tormented by him."

"When did you see him last?" Miss Kemble was asked.

"When he was here with Elsie Fay's company," she replied. "He wrote me a note and asked to come to see me, not as your husband, but as a good pal," he wrote.

"I never replied to the note," her voice was full of contempt, "but he came to my dressing room, and caught me in before

GOMPERS FLAYS PRESIDENT ELIOT AS LABOR'S FOE

Declares Harvard Chief Uses High Position to Block Workmen at Every Step.

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has issued the following statement denouncing President [illegible] of Harvard:

[illegible] and actions of President [illegible] shown him to be not only [illegible] with labor, but positively [illegible] taking advantage of every opportunity afforded, creating the opportunity when it did not present itself, [illegible] his high position to vent his [illegible] to every effort of labor to [illegible] from the misery of the past, the [illegible] of the present and achieve its [illegible] and aspirations for a higher and a [illegible] life.

Long after the platitudes, sophistries and utter antagonism of the Eliots, by whatever name known, will be obliterated from thoughts of men, the glorious work and achievements of organized labor movements will be accepted as the moral law of man."

THE MAYOR, SAYS EYE WITNESS TO DEAL MARKED CHAIRMAN APPOINTMENT CARDS.

Notorious Deal, Declares Member of Board, Was Suggested by Fitzgerald.

MORAN WILL PUT CASE BEFORE THE GRAND JURY

City's Chief Executive Accused of Presiding at Lottery When Drawing Took Place.

How the notorious Aldermanic deal which resulted in the election of Charles M. Draper of Ward 21 as chairman was brought about was explained to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN last night by another Alderman.

He said that the deal was suggested by Mayor Fitzgerald.

The alderman accused the Mayor of marking and shuffling the cards and of presiding at the drawing.

The Alderman who makes these statements states that he was present when the lottery drawing took place on Wednesday afternoon.

According to his statements to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN, shortly before 3 o'clock, the hour at which the board was to convene, Aldermen Baldwin, Curley, Cauley, Hennessy and Kneeland were summoned to the Mayor's office. There the Aldermen were told that, although it was impossible to effect a deal with Aldermen Berwin, Battis and Bromberg, the other three Republican Aldermen, Bangs, Bell and Draper, were willing to enter into an agreement to divide the chairmanship under the same conditions [illegible] proposed to Bangs, Bell and Draper, but had positively refused to enter into any such deal.

Mayor Said Draw Lots.

To settle which of the five Democratic Aldermen should receive the support of his colleagues, the Mayor proposed that they draw lots. To this proposition Alderman Kneeland dissented, stating to the Mayor that he did not propose to be a party to any gambling proposition.

The Mayor then made the now notorious proposition that the numbers 1, 2, 3 and 4 be marked on cards and that the alderman drawing the card No. 1 should receive the support of the others for chairman. He produced four of the official cards of the Mayor's office and marked them himself after one of the aldermen whom he had requested to do the marking had refused.

The numbers were written on the side of the cards embossed with words "Mayor's office." The cards were then laid face downward on the big centre table in the [illegible] and "His Honor" shuffled them about. [illegible] Hennessy, having noticed when [illegible] were produced that one of them [illegible] mark on the back, became suspicious [illegible] deal had been put up in favor of [illegible] particular candidate and suggested that No. 2 instead of No. 1 be the lucky card. There he made the mistake which deprived him of the chairmanship, for when the drawing was finished he was found to be the possessor of the No. 1 card.

Curley Drew First.

Alderman Curley drew first, then Baldwin, then Cauley and lastly Hennessy.

The cards were then turned up and it was found that the cards were numbered as they had been drawn, Curley having No. 4, Baldwin No. 3, Cauley No. 2 and Hennessy No. 1. The choice was made at 3:10 o'clock.

[illegible] conference was [illegible] whether a Democrat or a Republican should serve the first half of the term a message arrived from City Clerk Donovan stating that it was four o'clock, one hour later than the meeting had been called for, and [illegible] the aldermen did not assemble in their chamber at once he would call the [illegible] to order and declare it adjourned [illegible] lack of a quorum.

No sooner had City Clerk Donovan [illegible] the meeting to order than Alderman [illegible] was on his feet with a motion to take a recess until 4.30 o'clock.

Then Aldermen Baldwin, Cauley, Curley and Hennessy, Democrats, with Aldermen Bangs, Bell and Draper, Republicans, proceeded to the Mayor's office and again went into conference with "His Honor."

After a futile attempt to convince the Republican members that Alderman Cauley should have the first half of the term, and that their choice, Alderman Draper, should take the second, Mayor Fitzgerald suggested that these retire and settle the question themselves with Secretary O'Connell as referee. This was agreed to and the trio repaired to Clerk of Committees Dever's office, where the coin was tossed which resulted in Alderman Draper's getting the first half of the term.

Deal Consumated.

The seven Aldermen then went into the aldermanic chamber and there the deal was consummated by the election of Alderman Draper as chairman.

The attempt of Mayor Fitzgerald to justify the deal by comparing it to that of [illegible] when Alderman [illegible] Dyer, Republican, served six months of the year and Alderman Joseph [illegible] the other six, was severely [illegible] last night by the Democratic members who were not parties to the Mayor's deal. They pointed out that the cases were not parallel. The board at that time was deadlocked, there being but twelve members and these were equally divided between the two parties.

Further, they pointed out that Alderman Dyer and Cosey each was the nominee of his party caucus, while in the present case neither Alderman Draper nor Cauley had been the choice of a caucus.

The story will be told in full to the grand Jury.

LONGWORTHS SOON WILL VISIT BOSTON.

Are to Be Guests of Bride's Maternal Grandparents, the George C. Lees of Chestnut Hill and Beacon Street

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth—the popular White House bride and her husband, debonair Nicholas Longworth, the Cincinnati congressman, who are due to return from Cuba to Washington to-day will include a visit to Boston in the itinerary of their honeymoon travels, according to dispatches received from Washington last night.

They will [be the] guests of the George C. Lees [at] Beacon [street and] Chestnut Hill [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Lee are the bride's maternal grandparents and have entertained her many a time.

The Lees spent the Winter season in their town house [illegible] country place at Chestnut Hill is [illegible] mirable retreat for a couple still in the first flush of their [honeymoon].

There are shaded walks [illegible] Lovers' Lane [illegible] Chestnut Hill grounds. There is [illegible] bride and bridegroom [illegible] they wish society [illegible] fill the house with a [illegible] eager to entertain the President's daughter and her husband.

It is considered only natural that on the long honeymoon tour the couple is making, they make a visit to the hospitable home of the bride's grandparents, with whom she spent so many happy girlhood days.

The dispatches say that Mr. and Mrs. Longworth will arrive in Washington to-day and will establish themselves in the Longworth mansion at the corner of Eighteenth and I streets, Northwest.

The furnishings of this house have been rather unostentatious, but since the wedding a great deal of the personal property of the bride, including the marvellously varied and costly wedding presents has been transferred there.

In this mansion the bride will be—for the first time—in sole control of the house that shelters her. Mrs. Longworth, Sr., the bridegroom's mother, is in Cincinnati, so the President's daughter will be the feminine head of the household.

Society has arranged several dinners, receptions and other social events for the couple, though extensive plans cannot be made until the intentions of the Longworths themselves become known.

MAYOR IS FOR A BETTER BOSTON FIRST.

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald last night told the members of the English High School class of 1880 at Young's Hotel that he cared more for making the city a Better Boston than he did for moulding it into a Busier and a Bigger Boston.

Mayor Fitzgerald then toyed with the Hepburn rate bill, passed lightly to the question of the commercial prosperity of the world, then [came] back [illegible] that he ever thought of doing away with the English High School, and concluded with [illegible] which he said, combined with a commercial high school would bring commerce to this city.

"A college education is a good thing," said the Mayor, "but a practical education is equally as good. Here in Boston we must go to work and bring back the lost trade. We need practical men."

James J. Storrow, chairman of the Boston School Committee, said:

"Our schools are good. We should strive to make them better. The quality of Boston schools will depend upon what the citizens demand. We [illegible] influence felt in a demand for a commercial high school."

Other speakers were John F. Casey, head master of the school; Edwin P. Seaver, ex-superintendent of Boston schools; Charles B. Travis and S. Curtis Smith, masters, and H. W. Warren, a former master.

IN SUMMER HEAT [illegible] STONE BOAT

W[illegible] Insane patients at [illegible] Insane Hospital are [illegible] forced to perform [illegible] horses is one of th[illegible] the administration of [illegible] at the Legislative [illegible] Charitable Institutions [illegible].

Hundreds of [illegible] Worcester, it is said, will [illegible] a score of insane men [illegible] an ice plough over the [illegible] of Lake Quinsigamond, [illegible] 7 o'clock in the morning [illegible] in the afternoon because [illegible] was not strong enough to bear horses.

Others will testify that patients are used in place of horses on hot days in Summer, hauling a stone drag or grubbing up stumps. This work is usually done on the hospital grounds, but the ice cutting was in full view of anyone who cared to go to the lake and of passengers on the trolley cars that run along its borders.

Horses Broke Into Lake.

Dr. Hosea M. Quimby, superintendent of the institution, admits, it is alleged, that patients were forced to do the work of horses, and that it was after the ice usually cut for hospital use had been harvested.

Not only had the usual amount of ice been cut, but there had been stored away 100 tons more than the usual supply. During the recent cold snap the hospital officials decided that it would be well to get in a little more. The ice cutting implements were taken to the lake and a pair of horses hitched to the plough. Near the shore one of the horses broke through the ice.

Realizing that the ice would not bear the horses, a number of insane patients were brought down from the hospital, the accusers declare.

Long ropes were fastened to the plough and the insane men were obliged to drag the heavy plough for ten hours.

They slipped and fell on the ice, and many of them, it is alleged, still bear the bruises.

Hundreds Watch Work.

Two [illegible] the [illegible] and shouted [illegible] at the men as they would at horses, using [illegible].

The news of what was being done reached the city and hundreds of persons went to the lake [illegible] were [illegible]. All day there was a stream of spectators from the city to watch the human horses and many were outspoken in their denunciation of [illegible].

Fifty tons of ice were harvested that day. This made the supply of the hospital [illegible] larger than in other years.

"We had our ice crop in a week or more ago," said Dr. Quimby to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter, "but during the cold snap we thought it a good chance to get a little more. We hitched two horses to the plough, but they broke through the ice. Then we put th[illegible] at it."

Men employed at the hospital say that last Summer, when the weather was so warm that it was not thought wise to take the horses out, insane men were forced to drag stone on a stone boat about the grounds to repair walks.

Have "Sane" Men There.

Some of the men who, it is claimed, were forced to do the work of horses on the ice were Patrick S[illegible], Perry Jones, Patrick Mc[illegible], Henry Carroll, [illegible], Hewston, Stephen [illegible], Evans, Lyman Adams, W[illegible], Perry Holbrook, Conrad [illegible].

W[illegible] to have been [illegible] of the hospital [illegible] in a Worcester paper [illegible] declared that [illegible] knew of several [illegible] who were perfectly sane, but who were kept in the hospital as insane.

He declared that during his term of employment [illegible] contact with [illegible] and asked that an investigation [illegible]. He further said that certain [illegible] in Worcester were in the habit of sending [illegible] to the hospital every person they were called upon to examine [illegible] to obtain the fees.

A special meeting of the creditors of Nathan B. Goodnow & Co., the Congress street banking house which recently failed, will be held in the near future for the discussion of the condition of the firm and to learn what are the prospects of any of the lost funds being recovered.

A meeting of creditors was held in the bank [illegible] East Cambridge, yesterday, and Joseph Smith, Jr., receiver of the defunct firm, was appointed trustee of the firm's funds and assets.

FALSE RUMOR THAT EMPEROR WAS DEAD

London, March 4.—Up to an early hour to-day there was no confirmation of the report circulated in Paris, Saturday afternoon, that Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria is dead. At the Austrian legation here it is stated that advices received there indicate that the report was set on foot for stock jobbing purposes.

POLICE TRAIL AUNT ON CHARGE OF KIDNAPPING LITTLE REITA SULLY

Office of Chief of Police.

WANTED FOR FELONY.

Malden, Mass., February 26th, 1906.

On Wednesday, February 14th, 1906, Reita Victoria Sully was kidnapped at Malden by a woman named Bella Fenwick; 38 years old; wears glasses; above the medium height; light complexion; inclined to be stout; quick motion; good talker; front tooth filled with gold; well dressed.

If found, arrest. Also take charge of the girl if found with her and notify the Chief of Police of Malden, who has a warrant for her arrest, and an officer will be sent at once with all necessary papers.

SIMON B. HARRIS,
Chief of Police, Malden.

KIDNAPPED SULLY SISTERS AND POLICE CIRCULAR.

Circulars Sent Broadcast With Description of Woman Believed to Have Taken Child.

Calling for the arrest of Mrs. Bella Fenwick as a kidnapper of eight-year-old Reita Victoria Sully of Malden, [illegible] of that city have sent broadcast [illegible] circulars bearing the woman's description and calling for her arrest.

[illegible] Reita Sully had [illegible] the home of Mrs. [illegible] Bishop [illegible] she was [illegible] February 14 [illegible] her way to school. She w[illegible] seen talking with a strange woman, and Mrs. [illegible] who is [illegible] on the mother's side was suspected. The police have learned that a woman resembling her with a child thought to be Reita took a train for New York. Spite is believed to be the motive of the kidnapping.

The father is in New York. Since the death of her mother the little girl has lived with Mrs. Bishop, who quickly learned to love here as her own child. Reita's thirteen-year-old sister, Mabel, was kidnapped last year and has not been located since.

ACTRESS DENIES RICH CLUB MAN INVOLVED IN DIVORCE

At [illegible] have called [illegible] and I told [illegible] at any time [illegible] under any circumstances.

Miss Kemble told of various instances when she had paid bills contracted by her husband, and [illegible] when he was ill and she had cared for him.

The story that she had been seen riding [illegible] company of a well [illegible] Bostonian [illegible] the "rich [illegible] absurd [illegible] been on a horse in three years, [illegible] since I left California [illegible] love to ride and did talk [illegible] I never have.

No actress in Boston [illegible] than Miss Kemble. She [illegible] lives in a modest apartment in New Castle court, and goes out in society very seldom, although some of the best homes in Boston are open to her.

It is probable that her divorce suit will come up at the Spring term of [illegible] court. It was her original intention to bring suit in New York, but she [illegible] to seek her freedom in Boston courts.

"And when I get my freedom it will be [illegible] carrying again," she says. "For the present I have no intention of committing matrimony."

WIDOW SUES AGED LANDLORD FOR BROKEN TROTH.

North Attleboro, March 3.—Sensational testimony is expected [illegible] the $10,000 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Ellen Dowd, of No. [illegible] street, Attleboro, against her former landlord, Thomas Knott. The case comes up for trial at the March sitting of the Bristol Superior Court, which has [illegible].

Mrs. Dowd alleges that [illegible] repeatedly promised [illegible] was married in Providence [illegible] Elizabeta Perred. As soon as she learned of the marriage she brought suit.

According to Mrs. Dowd, who is forty-nine and a widow, Knott promised to marry her before Christmas, 1904, and she says she expected that he would keep his promises until she learned of his marriage to his present wife. Knott is seventy-three years old.

For seven years Mrs. Dowd was a tenant in one of the defendant's houses. The latter is reputed wealthy and was a widower at the time of his second marriage.

The plaintiff alleges that she performed housework for the defendant and that during his illness, while she was still employed there, he had said to her:

"Don't you worry, you will be well taken care of."

She further states that last June Mr. Knott said to her, "I am going to marry a Providence woman."

She answered that she would do away with herself if he did.

Hundreds in Peril.

There were hundreds of narrow escapes. Conductor Stone sat in the railroad restaurant eating when the tornado struck. Everybody about him was killed or injured; he was absolutely unhurt.

Meridian, the capital of Lauderdale County and the most important manufacturing centre of the State, has a population of about 20,000. Because of its position in a valley between Mount Barton and the Sand Mountain Hills it has always been regarded as tornado proof.

Turned Down by Kennedy.

The other reply was from Mr. Kennedy, who [illegible] turns down Mr. [illegible] saying that Donovan did not ask [illegible] Kennedy to intercede with Mayor [illegible].

This repartee has stirred [illegible] wrangle again and further and [illegible] heated assertions are not unexpected [illegible] involved.

[illegible] East Boston streets. Mr. [illegible] I was instructed to shut down [illegible] between 10 p. m. and [illegible] I resigned [illegible] East Boston [illegible].

This brought forth the following from Mr. Logue yesterday morning.

What Logue Says.

[illegible] statement made [illegible] William [illegible] Donovan as Superintendent of Ferries [illegible]

[illegible] Mr. Donovan's [illegible] was [illegible] William J. Smith. This report showed Mr. Donovan's management of the affairs [illegible] extravagant [illegible].

"While the number of passengers carried, owing to the opening of the tunnel, had decreased, [illegible] the cost of the running of the [illegible] had been increased quite a few [illegible].

[illegible] incompetency of the worst kind was shown and the administration figured that the sooner Mr. Donovan could be relieved of his duties the better it would be for the city.

Mr. Donovan begged to be permitted to remain until February 1 and asked Mr. Patrick J. Kennedy to make such a request of the Mayor, which request the Mayor granted. Mr. Kennedy knows who is telling the truth [illegible].

Here is how Mr. Kennedy stood by Mr. Logue:

Mr. Donovan never asked me to make a request of the Mayor that he be permitted to remain as superintendent of ferries [illegible] 1, but I did make such a request on my own responsibility and without Mr. Donovan's knowledge.

Inspired by Mayor.

Mr. [illegible] did this at the home of [illegible] where he was [illegible] Donovan [illegible] said [illegible] report [illegible] Mayor Fitzgerald [illegible] the odium possible [illegible] for the strenuous [illegible] Donovan [illegible].

MAY ASK MORAN TO PROBE GRAFT.

Chelsea Citizens Threaten Action if Investigation Is Not Soon Reported.

COMMITTEE READS THE TESTIMONY OF SIX WEEKS

The [illegible] investigation committee of Chelsea Board of Aldermen met last night, [illegible] testimony taken during the hearings of the past six weeks and may [illegible] awaited document to [illegible] to-morrow night at [illegible] meeting of the aldermen.

[illegible] has been so much delay, in the [illegible] of many Chelsea citizens, over the completion of this "graft" report, that [illegible] heard of taking the matter over [illegible] of the investigating committee [illegible] to the hands of District Attorney John H. Moran.

It is hinted that a movement is on foot [illegible] of the Board of Aldermen to [illegible] a "star chamber" session out of any meeting at which a "graft" report is offered. On a vote of eight members of the board the aldermen can go [illegible] committee of the whole, thus excluding press and public.

The committee has expended the $1,000 appropriated for its investigation, and is awaiting the result of its request for $500 more. The finance committee reported favorably on the motion of Alderman O'Brien for this additional appropriation, and the matter will come before the board to-morrow night providing a committee report does not obviate the necessity of it.

The "graft" charges, which resulted in the appointment of this committee, were made the first of the year by Alderman [illegible]. He declared that corruption was [illegible] that bribery had been used [illegible] of some city officials. A committee was appointed, consisting of Aldermen O'Brien, chairman; Young, Dela[illegible] and Warren.

The committee has held several hearings. Eighty witnesses have been examined. Extraordinary care has been taken to maintain secrecy. Policemen were stationed at the doors of the hearing chamber to keep away reporters and others. Witnesses were sworn to secrecy.

Testimony covering 1,200 typewritten pages has been taken. These are said to [illegible] related to street lighting matters, [illegible] of policemen and firemen's salaries, [illegible] of supplies and selling of junk [illegible] in addition to the primary question of bribery.

$1000 BONDS GONE; POLICE AT SEA

New York, March 3.—Thus far the police have not been successful in solving the mystery surrounding the disappearance of two $1,000 bonds from the house of [illegible] H. Richard & Co., bankers and [illegible] forwarders, No. 31 Broadway.

[illegible] of the missing securities is a four per cent bond, No. 14,50[illegible], of the Long Island Railroad Company, and the other [illegible] Chicago, Burlington & Quincy four per cent "joint bond," No. 75,6[illegible].

The bonds were in the bank up to 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Their absence was noted when the close of business came and preparations were made to place the valuables in a vault.

"PRINCE PRO TEM" BY R. H. WHITE CO. STARS.

Coming Play at Bijou by Big Department Store Talent

GEORGE V. LORD [illegible]

On the afternoon and evening of April 19 the comic opera of "Prince Pro Tem" will be given at the Bijou Theatre, [illegible] cast to be made [illegible] entirely of the employes of the R. H. White Company.

The opera is one of the best of R. A. Barnet's works. [illegible] and strictly up to date, it has been secured by special arrangement with the owner, W. W. Sargent. It will be produced under the personal direction of George V. C. Lord, who has staged the piece several times professionally with great success. Rehearsals, which are now in progress, are proving that the big department store has many embryo dramatic stars.

MRS. MARY MAG

Saved From Threatened Catarrh of the Lungs By Taking Pe-ru-na!

Mrs. Mary Mag, 423 College Ave., E. Pittsburg, Pa., writes:

"Last spring I had a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. I went to the doctor for some time, but his medicine did me no good.

"Having read in the paper some testimonials of the value of Peruna, I decided to try it, and at the same time wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice. I took five bottles of Peruna and am now entirely cured.

"Before taking Peruna I was so run down that I could do no work and could not stand on my feet. My head ached and I could not sleep—I would wake up and cough. In the morning, on rising, I would cough for at least ten minutes. I was alarmed.

"But, thanks to Peruna, I am now enjoying good health. I would not be without Peruna. I keep it in the house and give it to my little boy when he has a cold." —MRS. MARY MAG.

WOMEN SHOULD BEWARE OF CATCHING COLD.

A NEGLECTED cold is generally the first cause of catarrh.

Women are especially liable to colds. These colds occur more frequently during the wet, sloppy weather of winter and spring than any other time of the year. Often they are not considered serious and so are allowed to run on, or they are treated in such a way as to only palliate the symptoms, while the cold becomes more deep-seated and the patient finally awakens to the fact that she has a well-developed case of catarrh.

By reason of their delicate structure the lungs are frequently the seat of a cold, especially if there is the slightest weakness of these organs. The treatment of catarrh of the lungs is also more difficult and discouraging than catarrh of any other organ of the body.

It would be wise, therefore, to guard against it by every precaution possible.

Peruna has been found the most reliable of all remedies for coughs, colds and catarrh, by reason of the fact that it goes at once to the very seat of the trouble.

PE-RU-NA THE REMEDY FOR CATARRH OF THE LUNGS.

It searches out every crevice, every duct of the body. It quickens and equalizes the circulation of the blood, thus relieving the congested mucous membranes. It exercises a healing and soothing effect upon the mucous membranes, no matter whether they are the more exposed membranes of the head and throat, or whether they line the remotest cells of the lungs.

LAWSON CALLS THE INSURED TO ARMS.

POINTS OUT DANGER IN MARCH EVERYBODY'S

Thomas W. Lawson in the March number of Everybody's Magazine, has written a stirring call to arms for the policyholders of the big insurance companies. He points out the great and fatal weaknesses of the Armstrong committee report, and how little it has accomplished or promises to accomplish for the policyholders. Their funds, he says, a[illegible] m[illegible] [illegible]ly peril than ever before.

[illegible] and directors.

He says the last state of the great insurance companies is infinitely worse than the first. The "System" had the New York investigation committee muzzled. All trails leading to big steals were smothered and public indignation was shunted upon the minor thieves.

The Rogers-Ryan-Morgan combine, NOW IN SUPREME CONTROL, seriously menaces policy holders' interests, and is a deadly bar to their real control and influence in the companies.

[illegible]

Woods Full of Bear.

[illegible] the old [illegible] were [illegible] the family. At [illegible] plundering spread syst[illegible] brought [illegible] that has [illegible] [illegible]titutions.

"Where Was the Barrel Tapped?"

That Richard McCurdy and John A. McCall paid themselves colossal salaries and used the companies' revenue to support hordes of relatives, we know, but such extravagances are only the leaks. Where was the barrel tapped and how? Millions were [illegible] of syndicate part[illegible] few thousands [illegible] credits that stock spe[illegible] went no f[illegible] swinging [illegible] immense profits [illegible] manipulat[illegible] funds of bank [illegible]

"Over and beyond all this, to what extent has the investigation rescued the control of the great insurance corporations from the combination of capitalists and banking institutions headed by 'Standard Oil,' [illegible] the 'System'?

"A laying bare of corruption is the necessary first step toward extirpating it. The surgeon must uncover the cancer before cutting it out. I shall show that, though progress has been made, policy-holders' funds are in more deadly peril than ever before. While McCalls and McCurdys and Alexanders have been deposed, their organizations and their methods remain. What is worse, all check has been removed from the giant grafters of 'the System,' who, in the minor evolutions that have just occurred, have tightened their hold on policy-holders' millions, and, more surely than ever before, are supreme in authority and power."

MOTHER BRAVELY BATTLES DEATH AS BABE IS BORN AT GEORGIAN COURT

NEW HEIRESS TO GOULD RICHES

WEE MISS WITH STORK'S LAST VISIT

Seventh Child of George J. and Edith Kingdon Gould a Sturdy Miss.

FORGET TO WEIGH MIDGET

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 3.—That the [illegible] to the world of the wee miss who [illegible] her appearance in the home of George J. Gould to-day almost cost Mrs. Gould her life became known to-night, although no intimation of the mother's grave condition was given the friends and relatives who kept the telephone in the Gould town house [illegible] and Sixty-seventh street [illegible] all day with con[illegible]

[illegible] the birth of the child [illegible] a. m., the mother [illegible] comfortably and [illegible] that all danger [illegible] Mrs. Gould [illegible] relapse and began to [illegible] that Dr. William [illegible] was attending her, be[illegible]

Mother Battles With Death.

For two hours the patient battled bravely with death and at times it seemed to those who were in the room that the end had come. There was no pulse and the flutterings of the heart were so faint as to be scarcely discernible. [illegible] to revive and at a late hour in the afternoon it was announced that she was out of danger.

Those friends of the f[illegible] until evening to call [illegible] and express felicitat[illegible] event of the [illegible] stood the ring of genuine sincerity in Mr. Gould's voice as he said, "Both mother and daughter doing well," nor perhaps did those who had called up earlier in the day detect the perfunctory note.

Dr. Anderton spent the entire day and evening in the Gould home. To patients who called at his office, No. 34 West Forty-Seventh street the statement was invariably made:

"Dr. Anderton is with the patient; he cannot leave and can see no one until to-morrow."

Hurt in Auto Crash.

To intimate friends of the family it had been known that the coming birth of the seventh child was viewed with considerable uneasiness as late in the winter. Mrs. Gould was yet suffering some of the ill effect of the automobile accident in which she was injured in Normandy last August.

The birth of the new Miss Gould serves to establish her parents even more securely in their position as practical opponents of race suicide among the ultra rich. Since the beautiful Edith Kingdon bade good-bye to the footlights twenty years ago and became the bride of George J. Gould, the greatest figure in the railroad world and successor not only to his father's millions but his resource and energy, seven children have come to bless the union. The disposition to shirk the responsibilities of parenthood, which forced the chief executive of the nation into a world crusade, could not have been charged against the George J. Goulds, even by a Cassatt.

Forgot to Weigh Babe.

Through the worry and anxiety over Mrs. Gould's condition, the important functions of determining the initial weight of the new little Gould heiress was neglected.

The end of Miss Gould's first day of life also finds her without a given name. It was learned that several had been considered, among them Olga and Sydney. It is not believed to be the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Gould to name the little girl after any member of either family.

That more than the fortunate lot which falls to Silver Spoon babies will be the portion of the new Miss Gould can be understood when both her fathers and mothers talent for making childhood a veritable Golden age for their children is considered at Georgian Court the magnificent country estate of the Goulds, at Lakewood, every device which would tend to ward the further happiness of the children had been installed.

When strange, new and enormously expensive toy is first imported from Europe it is invariably one of the Gould children who becomes the proud possessor of it.

The six children, whose number has now been made an even divisor of their father's $35,000,000, by the birth of their sister are Kingdon, Jay, Marjorie, Gwynne, George J., Jr., and Helen Vivian.

Kingdon, the eldest, is nineteen years of age, while Helen Vivian, who will probably feel more keenly than any of the other the addition to the family circles, was born in 1901.

DEATH BY INDIGESTION.

A Long Train of Fatal Ills is the Direct Result of Undigested Food.

Undigested food, by fermenting, forms a poison in the stomach and this is absorbed in the blood. If this goes on very long, and your heart happens to be weak, you'll be found some morning dead in bed, or you may fall back down the stairs about an hour and a half after dinner, and the doctor will call it heart disease. Yes, that may be the result, but not the cause. The cause is indigestion. Indigestion is a simple, common word, but it has a terrible import.

And so you may get apoplexy, and die suddenly while you're standing.

If you have a weak liver, the poison of undigested food will attack it and you will get jaundice. If you have weak kidneys, you will get Bright's Disease or diabetes, from which there is no rescue for any man.

It was a learned physician who said that the progress of a race depended upon the stomachs of its members.

And you have at some time in your life eaten a heavy meal, or eaten in a hurry, and felt that "lump of lead" immediately afterward. That lump of lead is a hard ball of undigested food. The stomach can't digest it, and finds it hard to throw it out. And so it sours, and it makes you sour and everybody sour who talks with you. It gives you a bad breath and is building for you the road to dyspepsia and death, unless you stop it.

Stop it with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Just think, these little tablets are every bit as powerful as the gastric juice in your stomach. One grain will digest 3,000 grains of food. Isn't this wonderful? And it is true, just try it, and prove it.

If you have any brash, gas on the stomach, fermentation, burning, bloaty feeling, indigestion, dyspepsia or heart-burn, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will make it disappear before it can do any harm to your heart or other organs.

They will invigorate the stomach, relieve the stomach of two-thirds of its work and give it a chance to rest. They will increase the flow of gastric juice, and if you will ever "live" in your lifetime, it will be after you have eaten a good, hearty meal, and taken one of these little tablets immediately afterward. You'll just feel fine.

Take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after your next meal to-day and you will use them ever afterward. You will be cheerful, vigorous and your mind will be clear; you'll have snap and vim, and add many a day to your life.

You can get these wonderful little tablets at any druggist's for 50c a package.

PURIM ASSOCIATION WILL GIVE BALL FOR CHARITY

With most of the social gaiety of the Winter season ended by the coming of Lent, the leading function now to come is the charity ball of the Purim Association. It will be held in Symphony Hall on Wednesday evening next, and is for the benefit of the Federation of Jewish Charities.

This affair draws together many social sets of Boston and other cities, and is attended by the high officials of the State and city. Governor Guild and Mayor Fitzgerald, as well as other prominent men, will be present.

The Salem Cadet Band will furnish the music at the ball. The promenade concert begins at 8.30, and the grand march will start at 9 o'clock. Julius Eisemann, chief marshal, will lead the march.

The patronesses of the ball are: Mrs. N. L. Amster, Mrs. Julius Andrews, Mrs. Louis Baer, Mrs. G. San F[illegible] [illegible] the islands of the [illegible] swept [illegible] night of February 7 [illegible] tidal wave was followed by one of [illegible] strucive [illegible] South Seas.

More than [illegible] devastated, the principal island, Tahiti, probably suff[illegible] portance [illegible] any of the others, and about 28,000 persons were affected by the great disaster.

[illegible] Captain [illegible] full extent of [illegible] there is only [illegible] done. At Papeete there was little loss of life, but almost th[illegible] was destroyed.

100 Islands Doomed

Nearly a hundred neighboring islands more exposed than Tahiti to the force of the sixty foot tidal wave are reported to have been practically swept away. The smaller islands are of coral formation with about twenty-five feet of soil above sea level at the most. There are reports that these islands have been cut down to the level of the sea, and if that is the truth probably not less than [illegible] persons perished.

The steamship M[illegible] of the islands [illegible] but was unable [illegible] making [illegible] tragedy in the south [illegible] times and it is [illegible] tale devastation [illegible] about 125 years ago was of such serious consequence.

Sweeps Away Power Depot.

The water front of Papeete suffered terribly, being almost destroyed and houses swept two or three hundred yards up town. The postoffice and the harbor master's residence were entirely destroyed. The streets are obstructed by broken houses, furniture, lumber and bedding. What was once a thriving town is now a howling wilderness.

When the sea rose to an enormous height and was washing the houses and everything else from the island, this man sought to save his life, but when he went to get the boat he found it had been washed away.

With a lantern he made distress signals to the shore, which were duly noted by the people there. The [illegible] Seele did not send a boat [illegible] save him but the pilot of the Pap[illegible] had to go and beg a boat of th[illegible] the gunboat. The pilot manned it and tried heroically three times to get to the poor man's assistance, but the task was already hopeless and the island guardian was doomed.

American Consulate Gone

The American Consulate fell like an old pack of cards half an hour after its occupants had left, saving very little except their lives.

In the outside districts havoc was wrought, houses being blown away, trees uprooted and [illegible] washed away.

The storm did not [illegible] itself to Tahiti but raged also in the Leeward, the [illegible] motus and the other islands around Tahiti. The Leeward Islands suffered mostly from wind.

MORAN TO PRESENT ESSEX LIQUOR CASE TO JURY.

[illegible] has been obtained by District Attorney Moran to be presented to the Grand Jury, which begins the March session to-morrow, on which he will seek [illegible]dictment of the management of the Hotel Essex for alleged violation of the liquor law prohibiting the use of screens in windows on premises where liquor is sold.

Lieutenant Lee, of police headquarters, with Patrolman Richard Fitzgerald and Jonathan Murphy, obtained the evidence yesterday. A number of experiments were made by them at the Hotel Essex to test the transparency of the screens used there before the district attorney began his anti-screen crusade.

In the report that Lieutenant Lee made to Mr. Moran it is understood he substantiated Mr. Moran's claim that the screens obstructed a clear view of the interior of the Essex Cafe. Several tests were made. The most conclusive, it is understood, was when Patrolman Murphy sat at one of the cafe tables a short distance from the window and Lieutenant Lee peered in at him.

Without the screen on the window Murphy was plainly visible. Then the screen was put up. It is said that Murphy could hardly be distinguished from the fixtures.

If the Grand Jury decides the screens are an obstruction, the Essex management may be liable, not only for violation of the "screen law," but, in the opinion of District Attorney Moran, it may be charged with selling liquor without a license.

Mr. Moran has contended that the present license became void by reason of screens in the windows.

CADETS OF BOSTON WIN PROVIDENCE

Providence, R. I., March 3.—The Boston Cadets came, saw and captured Providence this afternoon and to-night with their latest production, "Miss Pocahontas."

At the matinee performance there was a large society contingent, which almost burst its gloves in appreciation of the clever local hits presented by the Cadets.

W. E. Anderton's falsetto solos were perhaps the most entertaining feature, but "Cheek" Fox as "Powhatan" and Charles A. Shea as "Capt. Smith" were frequently encored.

In the interval between the matinee and the evening performance a private entertainment was given.

HALLET & DAVIS PIANO CO.'S GREAT FACTORY

FIRE SALE

Of Slightly Damaged in Finish and Marred in the Rush of Moving

PIANOS

AT SALVAGE PRICES

January 9th the South Boston fire destroyed the Wormwood Street end of the building in which our factory is located, making a loss of thousands and thousands of dollars. Fortunately most of our loss was damaged by smoke, rush of firemen, broken glass and cold from the broken windows.

The closing out of this stock is not altogether optional with us. In settlement of our insurance we arranged to finish up all stock not destroyed. The insurance companies' loss is your gain and relieves us of a weighty financial responsibility.

Many families for years keenly desiring a piano have hesitated about purchasing until they were able to own a piano of unquestioned merit such as the Hallet & Davis.

Established in 1839, this firm stands almost alone, in these days of commercialism, among the few who have clung to the old high standards of tone and construction.

Scores of people have already grasped this opportunity to secure an artistic and beautiful tone piano at a price hardly deemed possible.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY, NOT OURS

It is your one chance to secure a piano of the most celebrated make at a saving of from $85 to $200.

It is quality first and then the price that make this the greatest piano event ever known.

Not an instrument is injured internally. Many of them, very slightly damaged, are practically perfect.

We hold ourselves responsible for your satisfaction. We guarantee, for 5 years, the interior works of every instrument and furthermore agree that at any time within 2 years, should you desire, you can exchange any of these pianos at the purchase price, for any other new Hallet & Davis piano in our warerooms. This is the strongest of guarantees.

PUT CHILDREN TO BED, DRANK FLUID

Springfield, March 3.—Much mystery surrounds the sudden death of Mrs. Eliza beth C. Bennitt, wife of Dr. Francis M. Bennitt. While her husband was attending the performance of Richard Mansfield with two of his sons, Mrs. Bennitt put the remaining children to bed and swallowed an ounce of chloroform.

On his return from the theatre Dr. Bennitt found his wife unconscious. He summoned two other physicians and they worked over her till she died.

Medical Examiner F. A. Bates gave the cause of death as chloroform poisoning. Dr. Bennitt feels sure that his wife took an overdose of chloroform by accident. Their relations had been of the pleasantest. Mrs. Bennitt has had fits of melancholy and suffered from neuralgic pains since the distressing death of her only sister two years ago.

It is thought by Dr. Bennitt that his wife took the chloroform to alleviate pain. The fact that she swallowed it, instead of placing it on a sponge or handkerchief is rather a strange circumstance.

Mrs. Bennitt was 40 years old and prominent in society and as a club woman.

Before her marriage she was Miss Eliza beth Avis, of Nutting, Conn. After her marriage she lived in Chicopee for a number of years, but came here in 1897. She leaves five children.

LIGHT PLANT OWNED BY TOWN PROFITS ON CUT RATES.

Light furnished consumers at less than half the rate charged by private corporations, and a profit of $1,200, is the showing made by the municipal electric light and gas plant at Ipswich during the past year.

A further reduction of three cents per kilowatt hour, making the rate twelve cents, is now recommended by Senator George A. Schofield, the manager of the plant, to date from the first of last January.

The success of the plant financially is all the more marked because the town was under private ownership would have to pay $15 for each sixteen-candlepower street light, and at present is paying but $10. If the rate now fixed is put down still further, and under private ownership the town had light only a portion of the time.

Senator Schofield, in his report, states that to show the profit it should be charged with an annual expense," said Senator Schofield, "as we have to prove that the plant does not make a profit. It must be borne in mind, however, that the town appropriates but $6 a year for each sixteen-candle power street light that is kept burning all night. This sum was fixed by the old understanding that the interest charges and depreciation would not be charged up against the plant, as private corporations must price paid for similar street lights to private companies is about $15 per year. If the $6 rate were printed at the same rate for its street lights, the profit of the plant would be $2,700 larger than they are now.

"The interest charges, $1,518.66, and 5 per cent, depreciation amounting to $2,000, makes a total of $3,518.66, which deducted from the additional $3,700, would leave an additional balance of $2,178.34 in favor of the town. Figure as you will, the plant has been a pronounced success.

"The low price charged has brought much additional business, with the result that on December 31, 1905, there were 108 meters in use, against 90 the preceding year."

PILES

Can Be Cured and We Can Prove It

Sample Package Free—Prove It Yourself.

When we say that we can cure Piles we mean just exactly what we say—nothing more, nothing less. We say it because we know it and stand ready to prove it to you or to any other person just as we have said it and proved it to thousands already.

It is because of those thousands that we have cured that we are able to say this.

We have done our part in calling your attention to this fact and it is up to you to disprove it. And we offer you the means of doing so, knowing that you can't and that when you try our wonderful Pyramid Pile Cure you will be so well pleased with it that you will go straight to your druggist and get a box of it.

And more than that, if at any time in the future any person tells you as you have told so many yourself, that they are suffering the agonies of the damned from piles, you will not rest until he or she has bought and is using a box or getting the cure you tried and cure that you got. We have seen it done.

Here, for instance, is a sample of what a sample did and shows very conclusively that we are dealing in cold, hard facts and not empty assertions. A person who gets a sample never fails to buy.

Mr. John Price of 2306 2nd Ave., New York City, writing under date of Jan. 17th, 1906, says: "I received the sample and found it right away. I got so much relief from it after 20 years suffering that I bought a 50 cent box. The almost unbearable pain is almost gone and my little boil has almost disappeared. I had given up all hope of ever being cured. I assure you, gentlemen, I will use every effort to make any of my friends try them, as I can guarantee they are a sure cure."

Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale at every druggist's for 50 cents a box and it is cheap at ten times the price to any one who needs it.

Perseverance Steadfastness Faithfulness

FIGHTS ILLNESS AND POVERTY TO SUCCESS

Walpole Train Hero Is Lawyer by Day, Switchman by Night.

Perseverance, steadfastness and faithfulness to duty have been the stepping stones over which Cornelius E. Hale, twice a hero in preventing serious crashes on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who was last week nominated as candidate for selectman of the town of Walpole, has passed from poor circumstances through trouble and difficulties to the position of attorney-at-law and, ultimately, success.

Stricken in his early youth with a severe hip bone disorder which confined him to his bed for eighteen months, and forced to work for his daily bread from an age when most boys are still pursuing their courses in the grammar schools, "Connie" Hale, as he is affectionately called by hosts of friends, has left no stone unturned in his search after knowledge and earning.

Working at home, canvassing during his early working days and studying nights, and, in latter years, working nights as a towerman on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, "Connie's" success is due entirely to his own efforts.

Pluck Wins Friends.

That his star of success has but just begun His ascension is conceded by all who know him. His pluck and push have won the hearts of those who jeered and taunted and tore with his friends, are encouraging to note for the benefit of being a good statesman of Walpole.

"Connie never knew failure. After recovering from his hip disease which still left him somewhat of a cripple, he found it necessary for him to secure employment that would not tax him for any distance.

Accepting a position in a factory he worked faithfully until something better turned up, studying telegraphy for three months. At the age of nineteen he was appointed an operator for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company. He was soon assigned to care for the switches at Whittenden tower.

Late one night he heard an unusual sound. Running out of the door and ascertaining that it was caused by the rapid descent of a runaway caboose which had broken from a freight train climbing a steep grade, he thought of an express due in less than a minute.

Saves Express.

Hastening into the tower he seized the lever controlling a nearby switch and threw it over just as the wheels of the caboose struck the frogs. The caboose swung on to a siding at Hadlyme, and the express appeared around a curve a short distance away.

Had he hesitated but a moment a serious accident would have occurred.

His second opportunity came on February 21, 1902, when a train from Providence stopped at Norwood Centre, to which station he had been promoted after his action at Whittenden tower. The train was filled with passengers.

Orders for this train to "rest off" on a siding and give the Line Limited-from New York a clear rail were received by the trainmen while at the centre.

By some mistake the orders were misread and instead of "resting off" the train was signalled the train to speed the tower a short distance south, without sending the rear flagman back to protect the flyer.

A blinding snow storm was raging. "Connie" Hale heard the express rire it on an announcer two miles away. He set signals in safety for the flyer. Having handed the "setting off" orders to the conductor of the local and believing that they had been obeyed

Rescues a Flyer.

Taking a lantern and going outside the tower for a moment to watch the freight go and to secure himself if all was well, he was horrified to find the long passenger still on the main track and backing slowly in the direction from which the flyer was approaching. He hurried the rear brakeman of the train, who applied the air to the local and brought it to a stop.

Then Hale hurried toward the approaching flyer, waving the lantern. The engineer of the express saw the lantern. The air was applied on the engines and the express was brought to a standstill barely fifty feet from the rear of the local.

The passengers presented "Connie" Hale a gold watch inscribed in commemoration of his quick wit.

Studying days after spending nights in the tower he took up a private course in law. He bought books and thirty dollars loaned them to him. Nothing could win him from the study of law. He presented himself for examination in two year and was passed by the State Board of Bar Examiners and admitted to the bar of the Superior Judicial Court of Massachusetts in July 1, 1903.

"Will Be Elected."

Switching strikes at night, he practices law during part of the day

The time is soon to arrive when he can say to his companions in the tower, "Boys, I'm going to leave you now for the practice of law."

They're expecting to hear this in the tower very soon. When the time comes his former companions will give him a "rousing send off."

"Connie" will doubtless be one of the selectmen of Walpole at the March election, for his many friends know of his perseverance and will not qualify-shall receive the re-nomination they meet.

Mr. Hale is prominent in the Knights of Columbus.

One man lost $1,000 which he gave the banker to send to Russia. Another man lost $250 which he had saved to bring his wife to America. He now believes that he will never be able to again accumulate enough money to bring her here.

A woman saved $70 at the sacrifice of the necessities of life that she might pay the way of her sister and brother to America. It is gone. Another man, fearing that his father and mother were destitute, gave them $37 to send for them. This money is also gone.

Cassel's Safe Empty.

According to the police Cassel defrauded the White Star Line Steamship Company out of over $1,000. Agents of the company have been in Worcester since the disappearance and Cassel's safe was opened at their request. There was nothing in the safe but a few old postage stamps and a wedding ticket.

Cassel is the same man who startled Worcester soon after he opened his office at No. 106 Millbury street a year and a half ago, by declaring that agents in his employ had smuggled a Bulgarian princess from the castle of the Sultan of Turkey and brought her to America. He also declared that in performing the marvellous deed his agents were forced to slay several soldiers of the Sultan and steal from the castle under the eyes of darkness and row for over fifty miles in an open boat with danger of being swamped every second.

NAVAL MEN SAY SPY IS WATCHING U. S. SUBMARINES.

Newport, R. I., March 3.—Naval officers believe that a foreign spy has been sent here to watch United States submarine boats, and every effort is being made by government secret service men to learn the identity of the distinguished looking strangers who hired a small craft to closely scrutinize the submersibles at Goat Island Wharf at Newport.

"An official report," said commander Albert Gleaves, U. S. N., inspector in charge of the torpedo station, to-day to the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter, "was made to me by Lieutenant Charles P. Nelson, U. S. N., that the submarine boats the Porpoise and Shark were being constantly watched by an unknown man in a small boat. They were making surface runs in the Newport harbor and were keeping close to the boats, but we do not know as yet who he was or what is his purpose."

Lieutenant Nelson is the naval officer who made himself famous by taking President Roosevelt in the submarine Plunger for a trip on Long Island sound.

He was a well thirty five years old and had a handful of brown hair. He wore a thumbprint of whom the stranger hired his craft was an English cap. He also wore a ... for a few days. I have a ... that he was employed by ... purposes and want to go out into the harbor ... The man was constantly seeking information. He was a gentleman.

In naval circles it is believed that the strangers are sent to the United States to learn what the two boats can do. The report that the Shark can run 600 miles on the surface before her storage batteries has exhausted proved interest abroad.

A NOTED TRAINER OFFERS HEALTH TO ALL

A letter, remarkable in many ways, has come to our office from Mr. T. J Leary, trainer at the celebrated Mc Donald Stock Farm at Wheaton, Ill., and all who value their health will give it a careful reading:—

Wheaton, Ill., Feb. 5, 1906

"Just about a year ago, I was almost in my grave. I was taken ill early in the fall with a severe cold, which completely run down and worn out, as much so that I had to stop working where I was trainer on a large stock farm.

"I took a vacation in December, 1905, and started to recuperate, travelled in different states, doctored with different doctors, but could not get rid of the cold. It ran into catarrh of the stomach; my kidneys and liver were about ruined.

"I finally met a friend who told me to take Father John's Medicine. I went back to work the 1st of February, 1906, and could hardly crawl, could eat scarcely anything and all my friends said I had consumption and would not live two weeks. I doctored and took all kinds of medicine, but it did me no good.

"I started to take Father John's Medicine and could see a big improvement after the first bottle. I kept on until I had taken eight bottles, when I felt better than I had in ten years before. I gained in weight and color, as I clear, could stand more cold than any man in the neighborhood. I felt ten years younger, was pleasant and cheerful, and an entirely new man.

"If there was only one bottle of it and it cost $100, I would buy it; in fact, would have it at any price.

"I will guarantee to any person who is sick and run down, or who has coughs, colds, catarrh of the throat or stomach, weak stomach, or disease of the kidneys or liver, in fact, any internal disease, if they will take from six to twelve large bottles of Father John's Medicine that it will cure them and make a pleasant, cheerful life for them, at a cost of from $6 to $12. If it doesn't do as I say, let them send to me and I will pay for the medicine they bought.' (Signed) T. J. Leary, Wheaton, Ill.

Sold in 50c and $1.00 bottles. The $1 size contains three times the quantity of the 50c size.

NEW MYSTERY STORIES BY FUTRELLE START TO-MORROW

Boston American Offers $100 a Week to Readers Solving Plots in Remarkable Series of Tales.

Jacques Futrelle, author of "The Gray Ghost" and "The Madness of Barry," and creator of Professor Van Dusen, "The Thinking Machine," has written a new series of mystery stories, even more thrilling than those which a few weeks since engrossed the minds of readers of this newspaper. The BOSTON AMERICAN has arranged with Mr. Futrelle to publish them, and they will start in to-morrow's issue.

One Hundred Dollars a week will be paid in awards to those who guess best how these stories end. Contest will start on Monday morning and run through the week. It will end on Sunday paper. On Saturday everyone will have a chance to guess the ending and solve the mystery.

Mr. Futrelle is by many regarded the best short story writer now before the public. No work done in the last few years has attracted such attention as Mr. Futrelle's stories in McClure's, Everybody's, the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines.

The readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN are to be congratulated that they are to have these stories, written by Mr. Futrelle, expressly for their benefit.

Even without the award of $100 a week for those guessing the endings, this series would be bound to attract wide attention.

This week's story is entitled "What Love Can Do." It is the story of a Bad, Bad society woman, written in a vein which suggests Balzac.

The opening chapter, which will appear to-morrow, contains one of the most fascinating and awful scenes ever depicted in a work of fiction.

Start it, and even if you do not compete for the prizes you will not stop reading the story until you have read the final chapter in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

JAMES A. SWAN'S CONDITION ALARMING

Newport, R. I., March 3.—There is no change for the better in the condition of James Andrew Swan, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Newport Hospital. His friends are alarmed. Mr. Swan, who formerly lived in Columbus, has resided in Gibbs avenue in Newport for many years.

HOD CARRIER CLAIMS PART OF $1,000,000

Meadville, Pa., March 3.—James Rabel, a hod carrier, to-day filed his papers as claimant to part of the Maria Corss estate in New York, said to be valued at $1,000,000. Rabel's father and Miss Corss were brother and sister.

HARVARD EYES ON ASTOR SCION.

Heir to Millions Will Work for $60 a Month

STUYVESANT FISH, JR., MILLIONAIRE'S SON, WHO IS TO BECOME $60 CLERK

STUYVESANT FISH OF YALE HIRED TO RAILROAD.

Says He Will Take His Share on Society Follies—Every Man's Duty to Make Himself Useful in World of Labor

Many Harvard men who knew Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., as a personal friend, and were almost as proud of the athletic prowess of this famous son of Eli as if he had been of their own Alma Mater, are discussing his latest manifestation of democratic spirit that made him so popular at Yale.

He is the heir to millions, but the American spirit which made him one of the blackest caravan that ever cut in a shell is too strong for a life of idleness and luxury. He is going to work in the offices of the Illinois Central Railroad, of which his father is president, as a clerk at $60 a month.

He is a direct descendant of John Jacob Astor, founder of the Astor fortune.

Young Fish dressed plainly and did not live extravagantly. It is said that Hogan was somewhat worried when he did with all his money. It never did, but members of the class of '05 might have some information to give, if not sworn to secrecy by the generous classmate who was such fame as a college man.

"What are you going to do as a clerk?" asked a skeptical friend when young Fish said he was going to work for a living.

"I'm going to show that I am as good as any young boy who hasn't a dollar," he replied [illegible] and study railroading. I shall not [illegible] I think it is every man's duty to make himself useful in the world, whether rich or poor."

"EXAMS" FOR NEW MIDDIES IN APRIL

Washington, March 3.—Next week the Bureau of Navigation will send out 310 [illegible] to Senators and Representatives asking for names of boys who may be fitted at the Naval Academy after March 4. The first examination [illegible] will be held on the third Tuesday in April, in various parts of the United States.

Haverhill, March 3.—An undistinguished looking man in the Merrimack River at Washington square this afternoon, and he is at the Haverhill Hospital [illegible]. The physicians announce his condition as critical.

Heirs to Millions Who Began Like Poor Boys

STUYVESANT FISH, JR., just started as clerk in a railway office.

ROBERT H. ALLERTON, son of Samuel W. Allerton, great Chicago packer, began as farmer.

THOMAS CHALMERS, son of W. J. Chalmers of the Allis-Chalmers Co., began as apprentice in the concern's shops.

JOSEPH M. CUDAHY, son of Michael Cudahy, began as clerk in Kansas City packing plant.

R. T. CRANE, JR., began as clerk and became second vice-president of the R. T. Crane Company.

CHARLES M. FAIR, son of Robert M. Fair, began as clerk, now assistant manager, in Marshall Field & Co.'s wholesale house.

STANLEY FIELD, nephew of Marshall Field, began as clerk, now manager.

EAMES MACVEAGH, began as clerk, now partner in the wholesale grocery house of Franklin MacVeagh & Co.

ALBERT A. SPRAGUE, 2d, began as clerk, became debutant head for Sprague, Warner & Co., wholesale grocers.

OGDEN McCLURG, began as clerk, now vice-president A. C. McClurg & Co.

EDWARD HOWLAND ROBINSON GREEN, son of Mrs. Hetty Green, the richest woman in the world, began as railway store clerk, now a railroad president.

FISH LEADS IN BATTLE FOR MUTUAL REFORM.

Has Enough P... to Oust Present ... in Control.

BRITISH PO...OLDERS COME TO HIS ASSISTANCE

R... Seeks ... Recommendations of Armstrong Committee.

New York, March 3.—In the great battle for the control of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, the indications to-day all pointed to a victory for the ...ces led by Stuyvesant Fish.

From London he received assurances ... the British Policyholders' Associa... would support him in his fight with practically all the proxies of those in... ...el in the Mutual in Great Britain, Belgium, Germany and France. From ... parts of this country policyholders ... ding him assurances that he can ... their proxies in any attempt to ... the Mutual and clean out the ... management.

His friends in ... city are ... working along the lines originally laid down, and it was stated by a Wall Street banker thoroughly familiar with the situation that Mr. Fish will absolutely control the next election of trustees in the Mutual.

Fight in Legislature.

Such is the apprehension of the present management of the Mutual that Mr. Fish ... move to oust them from ... but they will ... their influence ... defeat of legis... ...mended by the Armstrong ... all proxies ... authorizing ... at that ...

If this recommendation is enacted into ... it will mean the complete rout of the ...

The ... will insist upon the ... in any bill carrying out the provisions of the report of the Armstrong committee. The first fight will come to this hearing before the legislative committee of March 9.

The cablegram from Sir Alfred Harmsworth, Lord Northcliffe, reached New York Friday night, but, as Mr. Fish had gone to his country house at Garrison-on-the-Hudson and had cut all telephone connection, the cablegram did not reach him until to-day. In effect the cablegram states that Lord Northcliffe accepted gladly the suggestion of Mr. Fish that he, Northcliffe, should represent the British policyholders and that he would arrange to have representatives of the Belgian, German and French policyholders appointed at once.

British Influence Important.

It was also learned to-day that the British Policyholders' Protective Association has been remarkably successful in procuring proxies and now has practically all those of the Mutual policyholders in Great Britain.

What this support of the united policyholders of Great Britain, Belgium, Germany and France means is best understood when it is remembered that nearly $11,000,000 a year was paid several years ago, and the business has increased enormously since then. This fact was developed when Robert H. McCurdy admitted on the witness stand that he had received $217,000 in one year as a payment of 2 per cent. on the premiums paid by English policyholders.

Several weeks ago there fell into the hands of Mr. Fish a proxy blank, hundreds of thousands of which had been sent out to Mutual policy-holders. These blanks were sent out on the second of January.

As soon as Mr. Fish came into possession of one of these proxies he recognized the character of the plan of campaign that was being arranged by the ... in the Mutual. His resignation from the investigating committee followed soon after, and his resignation from the Board of Trustees a week later.

FERVID APPEAL MADE TO ALL OF CATHOLIC FAITH

In God's name, you are asked to notify all careless Catholics of this mission.

The saving of their souls may depend upon your zeal.

Bear in mind your responsibility. God has given you these immortal souls that you may save them.

Pray for them continually; call for them and bring them with you to the mission.

Do your best, that every man, woman and child of the Cathedral parish may, with God's help, make this mission successful.

After them, outsiders will be welcome, too.

TROOPS CALLED TO SHOOT ON OHIO MOB.

Race Rioters Now Face Array of Gatling Guns at County Jail.

Springfield, Ohio, March 3.—All points where trouble is anticipated are heavily guarded by troops to-night, especially the county jail, where gatling guns are placed. The soldiers are ... to quell any disturbances that may occur. Orders have been given to shoot if necessary. Colonel Ammel says no reports have reached him that any organized effort is being made to-night to reach the jail where the rioters are held.

Fearing that there might be trouble over the death of Martin Davis, which occurred early to-day, it was decided at a conference of officials to retain all the eight companies in this city until Monday, when it is probable that half of them will be sent home.

Fourteen to Face Trial.

After lingering 101 hours, Davis succumbed to peritonitis. Davis's assailant is said to be Edward Dean, who is in the Dayton jail. Davis was twenty-two years old and was a brakeman.

Late this afternoon a special venire was issued by Police Judge J. J. Miller, containing the names of twenty of Springfield's most prominent citizens, who will report to court at 8.30 o'clock Monday morning, when a jury will be made to try the fourteen prisoners charged with rioting. Among those named in the venire are President Charles G. Heckert, Wittenberg College; N. K. Fairbanks, president of the Commercial Club; George W. Winger, cashier of the First National Bank; John L. Bushnell, son of the late Governor.

Start Crusade on Saloons.

Both the police and militia are making strenuous efforts to prevent the sale of liquor and during the last twenty-four hours six saloons have been raided.

To show that the better element of colored people believed in law and order, the colored citizens' law and order committee adopted resolutions expressing its desire to help in the maintenance of order in the city.

In many of the churches to-morrow special sermons will be preached about the acts of the mob. Two of the topics are "The Reign of Anarchy," and "Lawless Souls and Lawless Society."

WOMEN WAGE FIGHT FOR SCHOOLS.

Brookline Matrons Register in Order to Carry "Parents'" Battle to Polls.

Brookline women are all politicians, these days. Never have so many registered to vote for candidates for School Committee as plan to cast their ballots at the town meeting a week from Wednesday. Yesterday's registration of women was 101, and many of them drove to the place in carriages, accompanied by maids and servants. The total number of women registered in the town is now 614. There are 4,377 men eligible to vote.

Wage Fight At Polls.

Although beaten at the caucus, the Parents' Association of Brookline has determined to continue its fight against the local machine in that town, and its candidates, Mrs. Helen B. Flanders, Thomas Van Ness and Edward C. Mills, will be candidates for the office of School Committee.

The machine's victory is believed by the Parents' Association to be largely due to the weight of influence of a great corporation that was thrown into the scale for at least one of the machine's candidates. The association expects to have to fight this interest at the polls, as it did in the caucus.

There is an indication that the organization is frightened at the storm of protest its management has aroused, for it is said to be preparing a statement which shall promise some of the reforms it has so persistently refused. The Parents' Association has issued a platform as follows:

Parents' Platform.

1. No political methods to be used in the management of our public schools or in the choice of candidates for School Committee.
2. An adequate representation of parents on the committee.
3. Nomination of independent candidates at town elections for membership of the committees, in order that voters may exercise the privilege of choice, a condition that has not existed for five years.
4. That the curriculum of the public schools shall be adjusted to meet the practical educational needs of pupils without overtaxing them physically, as present conditions oblige many parents to send their children to private schools or be at additional expense for tutoring, to keep their children in the grades to which they have been promoted.
5. That educational, not commercial methods, shall dominate the management of the schools.
6. That changes in the personnel of the School Committee will contribute to improve methods in the management of the schools.
7. That the compensation of those having charge of pupils shall be sufficient to secure and retain the best possible service.
8. That the action of the committee shall be open to reasonable discussion and criticism by the citizens.

The old School Board, which won at the caucus, is composed of Franklin C. Hobb, chairman; Mrs. Edyth C. Baker and Thomas B. Fitzpatrick.

BILLBOARD "ADS" FOR CATHOLIC MISSION

PAULISTS BEGIN REVIVAL AT THE CATHEDRAL

Noted Members of the Order ... Meetings at Holy Cross To-day.

With the purpose of conducting what will ... biggest religious campaign ever held ... New England, the Paulist Fathers, ... the clergy of the Holy Cross ... enter to-day upon a two weeks' mission at the Cathedral.

Extensive preparations have been made for this series of meetings. Bill-board space has been used all over the city, posters have been circulated and circulars sent to every member of the parish. There has been a special effort on the part of all concerned to make the mission one long to be remembered for the good it will accomplish.

CATHEDRAL OF THE HOLY CROSS WHERE PAULIST FATHERS BEGIN MISSION TO-DAY AND POSTERS USED TO ADVERTISE THE SERVICES.

The first week will be for the women of the parish and the second week for the men. There will also be a special mission for children during the afternoons of the second week. The principal morning services will be at 5 and 9 o'clock, and the evening service will be at 7.45.

To-day there will be special services, with masses at six, seven, eight and nine o'clock. These will be conducted by the Rev. Fr. P. J. O'Callaghan, the Rev. Fr. Richard S. Cartwright and the Rev. Fr. William T. Walsh. The Rev. Fr. A. P. Doyle, of Washington, D. C., will conduct a high mass at quarter past ten.

Father Doyle is one of the leading Paulist fathers of this country and also head of the mission college of the Catholic University at Washington. Father O'Callaghan is a Harvard graduate.

The object of this mission is to offer opportunities to all for hearing the word of God and for worthily receiving the sacraments. Catholics are asked to so arrange their daily affairs that they can attend every session, as for many it may be the last spiritual warning which they will receive.

While the mission is for Catholics, non-Catholics are specially welcomed. The Paulist Fathers are famous for the energy in which they carry their gospel to all parts of the United States and for the vigor of their missions among non-Catholics.

NIGHT OF LEGENDS AND MYTHS AT SYMPHONY.

By Kent Perkins.

It was a night of myth and legend at Symphony Hall last night. Mr. Gericke had arranged for the seventeenth concert of the season one of his harmonious programmes with just enough spice of contrast in the manner in which the different composers treated their legendary themes to heighten interest and prevent monotony of gracefulness and beauty.

Mendelssohn's overture to the legend of "The Fair Melusina" with its exquisitely modulated and melodious delineation of fairy transformations and the love of a proud man for a beautiful creature, half woman and half serpent, began the romantic procession. Its shimmering, fluent mermaid theme, closely resembling Wagner's Rhine maiden motif, was played with singular grace by the orchestra.

After this came F. S. Converse's ballade for baritone solo and orchestra, "La Belle Dame Sans Merci," based on Keats's immortal poem of that name. The work was heard for the first time last night at a Symphony concert. David Bispham was the solo singer.

Mr. Converse has produced a work of high merit, of rare suggestiveness and much originality. If he falls short of accomplishing completely satisfactory results, it is because he has attempted something which only a genius of the very highest order could accomplish in music—the portrayal of the wan, spectral passion and despair of Keats's unmatched lines. The sedge seems verily to be "withered from the lake and no birds sing." The music vividly aids the picture.

And there I shut her wild, wild eyes,
With kisses four—

There is enough of harmony and a clever modern use of dissonance, but the temptation to shriek is not sufficiently resisted and with the lines beginning "I saw pale kings and princes, too," you can hear their deathly horses gallop and their swords and armor clank too materially for a cavalcade of spectres.

Mr. Bispham sang expressively and well, but there could have been more imagination in his portrayal. He took liberties with the text, too, reversing the order of words at will. With an ordinary form like "Meet Me Where the Daisies Bloom" this might be permissible, but in "La Belle Dame Sans Merci" the ... sphere of unreality is largely conjured by the peculiar arrangement of the words. If this is changed the picture is spoiled.

Mythology was represented by "Ulysses' Departure and Shipwreck" from "The Voyage of Ulysses," op. 6, by Ernst Boehe, a young German composer of strength and virility, who is not afraid to employ those good old elements of music, harmony and melody. His work of last night was heard for the first time here and created an appetite for more.

Mr. Bispham sang "Upon That Day," an aria from Marschner's opera, "Hans Heiling," with the fervid passion that text and music call for.

The programme closed with Richard Strauss's symphonic fantasia, "From Italy," and its glories, tinged and infused with the tragedy and decay of Rome, were sounded as only the Symphony players can produce them.

$500 RING MISSING GIRL SERVANT HELD

Charged with the larceny of a diamond ring valued at $500 and $70 in money, Mary Bailey, arraigned before Judge Churchill in the Dorchester Municipal Court to-day, waived examination and was held under $300 bail. The young woman had been employed as a servant by Mrs. Harry Tannehold at No. 19 Hewins street, Dorchester. About a month ago, she left the house and the ring and money were missed.

BOY RAN AWAY FOR FEAR OF DUNGEON

Young Clarence Wood of Northboro, Who Set Fire, Found in Worcester.

Northboro, March 3.—Frightened at visions of being put into a dark, deep dungeon, where terrible punishment would be inflicted on him for setting the grass on fire and ringing ... year-old Clarence Wood of this town ... away from home and caused his family great anxiety and trouble until he was located to-day in the home of a relative in Worcester.

Little Clarence is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. James Wood of Main street. He started a small bonfire in the rear of a neighbor's home on River street. The grass caught fire and the boy admitted that he rang in an alarm. It is charged by the boy's relatives that the neighbor frightened the child with stories of how naughty little boys were dealt with, and the next seen of him he was making rapid headway down the railroad tracks toward Worcester.

ST. GAUDENS SHOWS PARNELL STATUE

New Monument to Irish Patriot on Private View in the Sculptor's Studio.

Claremont, N. J., March 3.—Augustus St. Gaudens, the famous sculptor, who ... in the town of Cornish, will receive a number of prominent Irish citizens of New England in his workshop to-morrow afternoon, and will for the first time exhibit his statue of Charles Stewart Parnell, the great Irish leader. The statue is finished and will be shipped away next week.

The statue of Parnell is the latest of a long list of statues which St. Gaudens has produced, among which is the Robert Gould Shaw monument opposite the State House in Boston. The sculptor's work on the Parnell statue was largely a labor of love, as St. Gaudens is himself an Irishman, having been born in Dublin in 1848.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

AT LAST! I HAVE IT!

I Now Offer to the Public My Latest Invention — PORCINLAY — A Perfect, Natural Enamel Filling for the Teeth.

Dr. T. J. King, Originator of the King Safe System of Painless Dentistry.

For the past four years Dr. King has worked hard on that tremendously difficult problem of making a filling for the teeth that would have all the properties of the tooth itself—that in fact would put back into the tooth what the decay had taken out, and do it in a way that the filled tooth could not be detected from the natural or whole sound tooth. He has succeeded. By producing Porcinlay he has accomplished what the dental profession has been striving for for years.

The place in the filled tooth where the natural enamel and Dr. King's Porcinlay meet cannot be detected; neither can the Porcinlay part of the tooth be detected from the natural part, either in color, shape, polish, transparency or in any particular.

The process of ... Porcinlay ... no pounding, grinding ... than gold fillings ... Porcinlay ...

Quality, Quantity and Price The Three Important Factors When Purchasing Whiskey

Most people, when purchasing any class of goods, try to get the best value for their money—they also want the most they can get for the price, without sacrificing the quality. This is only human nature. Callahan Home Whiskey offers to the user of whiskey these three important factors combined—quality, quantity and price.

Callahan Home Whiskey is the finest quality of whiskey that can be bought. It is an excellent home whiskey and is distilled from the finest grains procurable. A thoroughly matured and scientifically blended whiskey, which is conceded by connoisseurs to embody every whiskey virtue.

The process of blending a whiskey is necessarily a lengthy one. It is the one important detail after a whiskey has been thoroughly matured. In the blending of Callahan Home Whiskey only the most expert blenders are engaged, and the acme of perfection has been attained in excellence of flavor, bouquet and uniformity of tonic strength.

Callahan Home Whiskey is distilled, clarified, blended, bottled and sealed by us. It passes through no other hands than ours, and you purchase directly from us. There is absolutely no possibility of adulteration. You get a thoroughly honest whiskey free from all impurities.

Another thing—you positively get a full quart when you buy a bottle of Callahan Whiskey, for Callahan methods mean a "square deal" every time.

Callahan Home Whiskey is sold only direct to the consumer. This is our advantage. We ... deliver it to you, no matter where you live, at exactly the same price ... to our Boston customers ... pay the express. Judges of good ... buy no other than Callahan Whiskey, and they continue to use it. If they did not get value for their money they would not come back for more.

We ask you to sample Callahan Home Whiskey at your home, without cost; if it is not satisfactory, return it to us at our expense.

Read Our Liberal Offer

Send us $3 for four (4) full quarts of Callahan "10-year-old" Home Whiskey, Rye or Bourbon, and we will promptly ship the goods to any point in New England, express charges prepaid. Sample a bottle, and if not thoroughly satisfied with your purchase, return the case to us, at our expense, and your $3 will be returned without argument or delay.

We mean exactly what we state. The entire risk is ours. You have no expense if we do not please you.

Bright's Disease Cured

Mrs. Flora Walker, of Ashtabula, O., Who Suffered From This Dread Disease, After Doctors Were Unable to Aid Her, Cured by

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

A TRIAL BOTTLE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY CURE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE TO EVERY READER OF THE BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN WHO SUFFERS FROM KIDNEY, LIVER, BLADDER OR BLOOD DISEASE, OR WHAT IS COMMONLY KNOWN AMONG WOMEN AS "FEMALE WEAKNESS."

MRS. FLORA WALKER.

In a letter brimful of thankfulness for her remarkable cure, Mrs. Walker writes:

"I was taken ill last January with a bad diarrhoea and terrible pains through the bowels. I was treated by three different doctors, but they were unable to aid me. My husband finally advised me to try Warner's Safe Cure, so I bought a bottle. When I had used about half of it my pains ceased and I began to feel better. I have steadily continued to improve and can now walk to town and back, a distance of over a mile and a half. I firmly believe that I am permanently cured of Bright's disease."—Mrs. FLORA WALKER, Griswold St., Ashtabula, Ohio.

Warner's Safe Cure

Does your back ache? Do you have scalding pains? Are you troubled with vital weakness? If the answer is "Yes," your kidneys are diseased and your life in danger. Warner's Safe Cure is the medicine that will help you. Thousands of wonderful cures attest its merit and thousands of people voluntarily commend its use as the best cure and sure preventive of all forms of kidney and bladder trouble, female weakness, Bright's disease and all diseased conditions of the liver and blood.

IF IN DOUBT MAKE THIS TEST:

Put some urine in a glass; after it stands twenty-four hours, if you find a reddish, brick-dust sediment in it, or particles floating in the urine, or the urine is milky or cloudy, you will know your kidneys are in a diseased condition and are unable to perform their work, the result will be the bladder and urinary organs will become inflamed, uric acid will poison the blood, the stomach will become affected and unable to digest the food, the system will become weak, and the result will be a breakdown of the general health, with Bright's disease or diabetes, which will prove fatal if not treated with promptness and great care.

Warner's Safe Pills taken with Warner's Safe Cure move the bowels gently and aid a speedy cure. WARNER'S SAFE CURE is now put up in two sizes, and is sold by all druggists, or direct at 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs, which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE. To convince every sufferer from diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will cure them, a trial bottle will be sent, ABSOLUTELY FREE, postpaid, to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in the Boston Sunday American. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed. Our doctors will also send medical booklet containing descriptions of symptoms and treatment of each disease, and many convincing testimonials free to every one.

EX-GOV. HOGG, TRUST FIGHTER, DIES OF HURT.

DROVE STANDARD OIL FROM STATE

Houston, Texas, March 3.—Former Governor James Stephenson Hogg, who had ben ill a long time, died to-day, at the age of 55, from injuries received in an International and Great Northern railway wreck, for which he sued for $100,000 damages.

Comment is caused by the fact that the man who struck the railroad corporations the hardest blows they ever received should die as the result of injuries received on a train.

Hogg was an orphan boy in Smith County. Until he was fourteen years old he worked on a farm for his widowed mother. Then he became a compositor, and was elected road overseer. Successive offices he held were justice of the peace, State legislator, district attorney, attorney-general and twice Governor.

When attorney general he became famous for his fights on monopolies and railroads. He recovered thousands of acres of lands to the State School Fund. He was elected Governor by 150,000 majority.

In 1900 he drove the Standard Oil Company from Texas and caused charges which to this date keep Henry W. Flagler out of the Lone Star State.

A few days ago Hogg's suit against railways and express companies for violating the trust law was decided in his favor and the State stands to recover $600,000 in penalties for them.

He was elected attorney general of Texas in 1886, holding that position four years. Then he ran for governor. His campaign was eminently successful. He was one of the leading Democrats of his State, and one of its foremost orators. He was particularly noted for his picturesque campaigning, speaking in his shirtsleeves and swaying the voters by his rough and ready methods. He was a tremendously large man, weighing nearly 300 pounds.

He was elected governor for five successive years, retiring to private life in 1895 and pursuing his law practice. He was remarkably successful in oil land speculations, and was one of the principals in the formation of the famous Hogg-Swayn syndicate which held millions of dollars worth of oil properties.

What Sulphur Does

For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall.

It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and, mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium (Calcium Sulphide) and sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver and excretory organs, and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the crudity and impurity of ordinary flowers of sulphur were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most widely used.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patients and physicians alike.

Dr. R. M. Wilkins, while experimenting with sulphur remedies, soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation or malaria, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article and sold by druggists and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called blood "purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

JAIL BREAKER'S ROMANCE MAY BE SNARE FOR CAPTURE OF FUGITIVE

JAIL BREAKERS AND WOMAN WHO WED ONE OF THEM TO AID IN THEIR ESCAPE

The sketches represent scenes in the romantic life of the jail breakers and the devoted woman who made their escape possible. No. 1 is the wedding in jail. No. 2, cutting the wedding cake in which the saws were hidden. No. 3, the escape from jail. No. 4, the trouble in New York when Carr took Mrs. Howard's side against her husband.

Remarkable Story of Woman Who Married Prisoner and Smuggled Saws in Wedding Cake.

Boston police have a dragnet out to-day for Edward H. Carr, alias "Boston Al," who escaped from Charles street jail on December 13. They believe him infatuated with the woman who aided him and her husband to break the bars and that he will return to seek means to liberate her.

In the mean time, a prison cell and the prospect of a long term in jail is the price which pretty May Coyle Howard paid for her love for Carr's partner. He is Charles Howard, said by the police to be a desperate burglar. Both he and Carr owe their escape to her ingenuity and daring. She is the heroine of one of the most romantic of prison dramas.

Hidden in the wedding cake which she took to the jail to celebrate her marriage to Charles Howard were sharp little steel saws with which he cut his way to freedom, according to the indictment upon which the bride must face a jury. She is held in $2,000 for trial and locked up in a cell in the jail from which her husband and his "pal," Carr, made the first escape in half a century.

The police say that Howard married the devoted girl as the price of his liberty, and that when he proposed deserting her when all three were at liberty in New York, harsh words passed between him and his "pal." Carr, it is claimed, stood by the girl until the police got too near, and is still at large. But the girl's love for her husband was so strong that after she was captured she would give no hint to his whereabouts. To-day when both are in the same jail, she shows more concern over his fate than her own.

"Won't you let me see my husband—if only for a minute?" is her daily plea to the jailers.

CHAPTER I.

May Coyle is a pretty girl of eighteen. Her winning face is crowned by a mass of wavy blonde hair. She has a slender, graceful figure and is refined in manner. Years ago, when but a child, she first met Howard, who is a dashing, well groomed man. He dresses like a clubman and always had a pocket full of money. The police say he is a noted Chicago cracksman.

He won the girl's heart completely. But he never asked her to be his bride. He was a wanderer. Many cities knew him and he did not work. He would turn the corner at the sight of a policeman and when he met May it was always surreptitiously. But her love was too great for her to care for his mode of life. She only knew that she adored him.

When he was arrested in this city on December 6 with Carr, May Coyle went to his rescue. The jailers let her see him.

Wed to Get Saws.

"When will you get free, Charley?" she asked tearfully.

"I don't know, little girl," Howard replied gloomily. "I'm afraid I'll get a long stretch in prison."

"Can't I help you—can't I do anything to open these cruel doors?" asked May, her blue eyes shining with hope.

"Yes," he said, "I could get out if you could bring me some saws."

"How can I get them to you?"

"Oh, in a pie or a cake," he replied.

"A cake?" she repeated thoughtfully. "A wedding cake? Would you marry me, Charley—you know you ought to."

Howard paused before he replied.

"Yes," he said at last. "I'll marry you, May, if you'll bring the saws."

CHAPTER II.

Jail weddings are rare. Jailers are not sentimental. But the girl's love and fidelity touched the hearts of the guarders of the Charles street bastile. They consented to have a wedding in the jail corridor.

A priest performed the ceremony within the high, gloomy, granite walls and it was witnessed by turnkeys and prisoners, who peered curiously from their cells.

"We must have a wedding cake," said the bride gaily to those who were grouped around her and her husband. Where she had had it baked she has refused to tell, but cleverly concealed within it were the bright, keen little saws which were to sever cell bars. She cut the cake with skill, and it must have had some mark upon its surface which enabled her to tell in what slice the saws were hidden. Howard got the right piece.

On the night of December 13 he and Carr sawed their way to freedom. They cut through cell doors and a bar over a corridor door. They scaled a high gate and reached the street.

CHAPTER III.

Young Mrs. Howard joined them somewhere in New York. The police believe that it was in some resort where crooks congregate. She was happy at last, but the honeymoon was brief. Her husband, for whom she had put her liberty in jeopardy, was [illegible] and [illegible]. He accused [illegible] was [illegible] far away [illegible] could earn an honest living and she could make a home for both with loving hands.

"You got to saws. I watched you. We both made good. That's all there is to it," he answered Carr [illegible].

"You ain't treating the little girl square," said Carr. "She's the best ever. Where would we be now but for her?"

"Mind your business," snarled Howard. [illegible] and added, "You ain't trying to interfere between man and wife, are you?"

But Carr was sympathetic. Perhaps he wished that the girl cared for him. She turned to him in gratitude, the police say. They have not learned just how the trio came to separate. The wife was not with [illegible] when arrested [illegible] by the detectives [illegible] ferry house [illegible] New York [illegible] serving a big term.

"What were you going to do?" [illegible] asked Detective Sergeant [illegible].

"My partner did me dirt," [illegible] Howard. "I was trying to [illegible]."

CHAPTER IV.

"We'll get Carr," the New York detectives repeated. "He is in love with the girl himself and will [illegible]."

"Where is your husband?" they asked Mrs. Howard.

"I don't know," she answered, tears welling into her eyes. The stern faced New York sleuths were used to such denials, but they studied her face before asking further [illegible]. They did not ask them. They did not give her the dread "third degree."

"She is telling the truth," they said.

CHAPTER V.

Pretty Mrs. Howard's eyes are swollen with weeping and she sits disconsolate in her cell in the Charles street jail. Her tears are not for herself but for her [illegible].

He is in another cell in the same gloomy building where many [illegible] a broken [illegible] wayward son. But there are no tears in the eyes of the man suspected of committing many burglaries in [illegible] and other parts of the State. He [illegible] and broods. He thinks of how he might have eluded the detectives who are swarming on his trail, of the wrong that he maintains Carr did him, and of many other matters.

[illegible] the little wife [illegible] love and [illegible].

[illegible] what his self-sacrificing wife [illegible].

"Does he—does he every ask for me?" [illegible] asks the turnkeys.

They pity her and make no reply.

She has three great sorrows: her love, [illegible] and plight and [illegible] leads to [illegible] born in prison.

ROXBURY PARISH TO GIVE HOLY PLAY

Fifty Young Women in Lenten Drama, "Pilate's Daughter"

Father Kenzel's Production to Be Presented for Fifth Season in St. Alphonsus Hall.

"Pilate's Daughter," a widely known Lenten play by the Rev. F. L. Kenzel of the Mission Church, Roxbury, will be given again in St. Alphonsus Hall this year, and great interest is taken in the event in religious circles. This will be the fifth season of its production. It was first played in 1902, and has been given each succeeding Lent.

The dates for the coming production are the Thursdays coming on March 8, 15, 22 and 29, and on Sunday, March 18. There is no male character in this solemn drama, which has not the faintest trace of comedy, and is a Passion Play pure and simple. All of the fifty persons who will enact its stirring scenes [illegible] girls or young women. The proceeds will [illegible] for the benefit of St. Gerard's Chapel in the Mission Church and tickets are to be had only at the rectory.

Father Kenzel has written other religious plays, but none which have attracted such attention as this. The play is also known as "The Mystic Rose." Father Kenzel has shown strong dramatic instinct in his playwriting and for a clergyman a surprising understanding of stage technique. "Pilate's Daughter" has direct and convincing action throughout and the characters are vivid. Both piety and a priest's knowledge of the human heart are exemplified [illegible] many touches. The first act deals with the [illegible] passion of [illegible] [illegible] was cast at the [illegible] daughter [illegible] palace in Jerusalem and [illegible] the foot [illegible]

DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO PROBE POISON MYSTERY

Hyde Park Police's Failure to Solve Black Death Puzzle Arouses County Official.

The failure of the Hyde Park police to clear up the mystery surrounding the death from poison of J. Herbert Blake last Monday night has caused District Attorney Thomas E. Grover to declare that he will investigate the case personally and will order an inquest and an autopsy if necessary.

Mrs. Blake, who is prostrated by her husband's death, said that she had tried every means to ascertain how the poison came into the house.

"I wish that I could clear up the mystery," she said to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN reporter. "I know absolutely nothing of how my husband came to his [illegible]

[illegible] his reply: 'No [illegible] to blame.'"

Mrs. Blake said [illegible] prepared an early supper Monday evening and journeyed to Boston. There had been no trouble between her and her husband, whom she left in apparently good spirits.

Mr. Blake's remark to Chief Betters, "There's no one to blame," is taken to indicate clearly that there was no family trouble.

"The responsibility for this death must be placed where it belongs," said District Attorney Grover to a Boston Sunday American reporter. "If Blake committed suicide, we should know it. If he was murdered we intend to prove that fact and find the murderer if possible. In a case of this kind it is the duty of the government to see that nothing is left undone which can in any way help to solve the mystery."

As far as the District Attorney knows no evidence has been [illegible] to show whether Blake's death was [illegible] or murder [illegible] from the police [illegible] investigation is [illegible]

Will Exhume Body.

The police [illegible] they admit that they are at a loss are still working on the case. Chief Betters personally has devoted much time to it but has arrived at no solution.

It is believed that it will become necessary to exhume the body and examine the organs. If other means fail this action will be ordered by the District Attorney.

Blake's death caused a sensation in Hyde Park, where he was well known. His friends say that he was happy and fair prospects and had no reason to take his own life. Only a few hours before swallowing the fatal dose he was talking and laughing with fellow workmen. When he arrived at his home he helped his wife and her sister in their preparations to go out before he ate his supper. He ate the meal alone, drank the coffee which contained the arsenic, and died within a few hours.

During his last hours he insisted that he did not put the poison in the coffee himself and that he did not know who did. To all inquiries he said that to him it was "all a mystery."

MAY COMPROMISE WEAVERS' STRIKE

Providence, March 3.—It was announced this afternoon that the strike of weavers at the Peacedale Manufacturing Company's plant, Peacedale, may be settled next Monday by a compromise.

The mills employ over 700 operatives, and as the management did not desire a tieup during the busy season, some of the weavers' grievances will be adjusted. The ninety-two weavers had a meeting this afternoon and appointed a committee to wait upon President Rowland G. Hazard on Monday.

EXPRESS ROBBERY SUSPECT ARRAIGNED

Springfield, March 3.—Charles Miller, one of the two suspects held in connection with the $1,900 theft which occurred here yesterday in the office of the Adams Express Company, was arraigned to-day in the police court. His case was continued for trial and he was held in $2,100 bail, which was furnished by Willis L. Miller, his father.

The money was taken while the man in charge of the office had gone out to meet an incoming train.

THE HOLCOMB AUTOMATIC STEAM ENGINE.

This engine is the marvel of the century. Distinguished engineers have examined it and state without hesitation that it is bound to revolu[illegible] methods of power production.

[illegible] is incorporated every valuable feature found in the Corliss [illegible] economy, perfect regulation, instantaneous reverse and [illegible] features a speed much greater than has ever been attained [illegible] engine, and this with an entire absence of vibration, requiring [illegible] necessary to sustain its own weight. All moving parts [illegible] and are perfectly balanced. The [illegible] of steam [illegible] engine but the power is continuous instead intermittent. [illegible] multiple cylinder and is attached to the power shaft revolves [illegible] is fixed, allowing of very high speed without vibration or dead [illegible] and reversing at any point.

The [illegible] to these peculiar motions, are capable of producing the quick opening a[illegible] admission ports and full opening of the exhaust ports, and are capable of a much wider range of cutoff than is practical in the Corliss Engine, and this is accomplished by a single valve.

The Holcomb Engine has been put to the severest test for efficiency, economy and wearing power and not found wanting. Its simplicity is beyond criticism.

The Holcomb Engine can be built compound, either tandem, duplex or cross compound. [illegible] class of work it is especially recommended for electrical plants [illegible] and lighting boats, automobiles, tram lighting, [illegible] pumps, blowers, air motors and [illegible]

[illegible] the cost of the old-style engine and [illegible] one instance the selling price of the [illegible] is $300.00. The Holcomb Engine of equal power costs [illegible] You can draw your own conclusion. WE think [illegible] be made on this [illegible]

LEWIS INSTITUTE TESTS ENGINE.

These features have made the Holcomb Engine the perfect engine. Recent tests made at the Lewis Institute of Technology, Chicago, Illinois, and various tests of efficiency made by ourselves, warrant us in believing that the world's record for economy and efficiency will be ours.

Our high pressure super-heating steam generator, continuous water tube type, which has developed under the supervision of an expert of years of experience in marine service will give us a combination for Auto Trucks and Auto Express Rigs, Launches, Tugs and Lake Vessels that is not now equaled. It will also solve the problem of suburban railway power.

Wall Street has reaped [illegible] Dead Sea fruit and has found it [illegible] After having carefully [illegible] tree for months it has shaken [illegible] bitter apples.

The more expert of the stock market gardeners have been predicting [illegible] for weeks. They said [illegible] last November [illegible] the liking of [illegible] owners of [illegible]

In other words, the wild speculation which prevailed for over three months is having the anti-climax that was to be expected. For two weeks prices have declined steadily. The only thing that has increased is pessimism, and those who were the most optimistic before are now the most discouraged.

A duller, bluer week than that which was ended in the stock [illegible] could hardly be [illegible] steadily all the week and took a further drop during the short session yesterday. Amalgamated and Anaconda, which for long had been the strong features even in a weak market, were among the worst sufferers.

Bulls Are Scarce Now

This break in the market has [illegible] a decided change [illegible] sentiment [illegible] the speculative situation. Traders who were bulls to the last are bears now, and their short sales have helped the [illegible] the buying for recovery of stock sold during the week has not yet [illegible]

And in any event the prosperity of the country is sufficiently assured to make it certain that the trend of prices cannot be permanently downward.

The only dark cloud on the speculative horizon at the present time is the monetary situation. It is a fact that bankers have been disappointed because money did not become [illegible] after the turn of the year. Call money rates are not abnormal [illegible] the money [illegible] and difficult to borrow [illegible] In Boston the banks are not lending money to any except their own [illegible]

The most favorable feature of the monetary situation is Secretary Shaw's deposit of $10,000,000 in national banks. This will have a sentimental effect for the better but the amount is only a drop in the bucket. Some bankers believe, however, that the result will be slightly easier rates for call money, which rose yesterday at [illegible] per cent.

The banks which receive the $10,000,000 from Secretary Shaw will be asked on to [illegible] the money about July 1 [illegible] but by that time the money sent West for Spring [illegible] should have returned. Here Is a Life Income for You Without Speculation

I Have Made Millions of Dollars for Thousands of People by My Patents. I Expect to Make Millions More. Come in With Me If You Want to Share in These Enormous Profits

Hetty Green, the Richest Woman in the World, Says: "The Way to Get Rich Is to Invest in Necessities."

The Bidwell Cold Motor is one of the greatest necessities of the 20th Century. This stock has already taken four jumps up. Now is the time to buy. It will go higher in about thirty days. The profit is yours. Don't speculate—invest. Here you have a necessity. Look at this list below. Every one of these people made his fortune by supplying some great necessity.

PETER COOPER	PILLSBURY	MACKAY	EDISON
McCORMICK	STUDEBAKER	MARSHALL FIELD	STANFORD
CARNEGIE	FAIRBANKS	LEITER	MOORE
ROCKEFELLER	VANDERBILT	ARMOUR	LEEDS
HEINZE	WHITNEY	FRICK	PULLMAN
	BELMONT	MORGAN

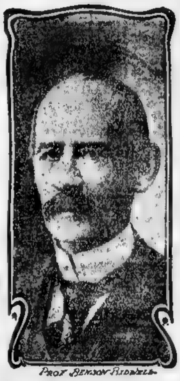
Here is the way manufacturing stocks in necessities jump:

	First sold at	Now sold at
The Electric Trust	15c	187
Quaker Oats, common	45c	145
American Radiator, common	33c	100
American Smelting	30c	155

And this is only a few. Safer and surer than life insurance or trust stocks. All this advance has been made in ten years and less.

THE BIDWELL COLD MOTOR.

I will supply the greatest necessity now known in the business world. The demand is so large that it will make all of us rich. If you want to get in with me on this you will have to be quick about it. The stock is selling like hot cakes.



PROF. BENSON BIDWELL.

Inventor of the Trolley Car System.
Inventor of the Railway Car Telephone System.
Inventor of the Bidwell Cold Motor.
Inventor of the Water Electric Generator.

I never made an unsuccessful invention. My first invention was the electric fan just as it is run all over this country in hot weather. I didn't get a patent on it, but see what a tremendous success it is!

I next invented the Trolley Car System, just as it is run to-day. I made it perfect and successful right from the start. It has never been improved since I invented it. Look at the millions of money it has made for the stockholders. The stock in the [illegible] manufacturing companies sold below 15 cents a share in 1893 and 1894. Poor men could buy that stock then. Thousands of them did buy it and every one who held on to it is a rich man to-day.

No Man on Earth Ever Lost a Penny He Invested With Me.

Next I invented the Railway Car Telephone System. It is a system by which passengers or train crews can telephone from still or moving cars anywhere the same as if seated in an office. It is a more perfect system in operation than any other telephone you ever saw. This is on the road toward [illegible] for the stockholders.

This Is My Greatest Invention.

Now I have invented something bigger and greater than either of the above. It is called the Bidwell Cold Motor. It is guaranteed not to burn out and is exactly the kind of a motor the steam railroad people have been looking for. It will change all the steam railroad systems over to electric roads, because it will be cheaper to run than steam and can be run faster and more safely than any present method.

The one drawback the railroads have had in changing over to electricity has been that no motor as at present made can be run 150 miles at 60 miles an hour without burning out. It would melt the very wire.

By using the Bidwell Cold Motor a train of cars could be run from New York to San Francisco without a stop at the rate of 60 or 80 miles an hour and not even warm up and without a hitch.

Besides running faster they would be more safe and sure than steam, cost less to operate, and would last longer than any other motor now known.

The Bidwell Cold Motor is the greatest invention out since I invented the trolley car.

The Opportunity of a Lifetime.

I want to give every man and woman a chance to come in with me on this, for I expect to make millions for the stockholders out of this new patent.

The stock will be sold on the square. There will be no hocus pocus about preferred or common stock, nor any other scheme, trick or wrinkle by which anybody can be frozen out.

Every dollar invested will represent one hundred cents of the best stock. Every share will be exactly like every other share. The profit on every share will be the same as the profit on every other share. In short, there will be nothing but a square deal all around. The stock is fully paid and non-assessable.

I have a life long reputation for square dealing. I will personally see to it that every stockholder gets a square deal on this.

In order to make it possible for every man and woman to get in with me on this big deal I have decided to sell the stock for a short time only at the following prices.

100 shares, $50; 250 shares, $125; 500 shares, $250; 1,000 shares, $500; 5,000 shares, $2,500; not over five thousand shares at this price to any one person.

OUR MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN.

100 shares, $5 cash, nine monthly payments of $5 each; 250 shares, $15 cash, nine monthly payments of $12.50 each; 500 shares, $30 cash, nine monthly payments of $25 each; 1,000 shares, $60 cash, ten monthly payments of $45 each; 5,000 shares, $310 cash, ten monthly payments of $224 each.

Send all money by bank draft, express money orders, P. O. order or registered letter.

Special to Electric Light Men and Manufacturers.

We are now prepared to fill your orders in our own factory. We are now manufacturing the Bidwell Cold Motors. We are taking orders for cold motors and cold generators for arc and incandescent lights on a guarantee not to burn out for 10 years.

Be a Safe and Sane Investor and Get as Much of This Stock as Your Means Will Allow. It Will Pay You a Life Income in Handsome Dividends.

More money is made every day by good judgment in investing money than by all the labor and wages in the country. Safe and shrewd investments in this stock will make fortunes.

You will never get rich on wages. No one ever did. Every man in this world who ever got big money got it either by speculation or investment. Speculation is unsafe. You stand more chance to lose than you do to make. Investments are right the other way. Make a safe investment and it is sure to bring you returns.

Here Is a Vital Point to Remember!

There never has been a failure of consequence in electrical manufacturing. Stop and think of that. All are immensely successful. All pay big dividends and have made their investors wealthy.

This company will soon be one of the biggest in electrical manufacturing in the world. This is bound to be so, because there is not a place now where a motor or generator is used but it will have to sooner or later change for the Bidwell Cold Motor or Generator. Why? Because we make something better than any other kind now known.

These Are Cold Facts—You Must Act Quickly.

If you want some of this stock at the present low price you must come in now. There is only a small amount to be sold at this price.

I firmly believe that within five years the stock will be selling at $3 a share. This is your opportunity. It is a case of come quick or not at all.

Grand Orchestra Concert

Tuesday from 3:30 to 4 P. M.

Under the Direction of John C. Mullaly

We have arranged to give a musical treat to all visitors to this store by the engagement of the well-known director, John C. Mullaly, and his peerless orchestra. The main portion of our magnificent Fifth Floor Restaurant has been converted into a recital hall, with sufficient seating capacity to accommodate all who may wish to enjoy this complimentary musicale.

We Drop Prices On This Fine Furniture

Action all the time on our furniture floor. No dull moments. Always something new. When furniture, no matter how beautiful, substantial or desirable, has been in our show rooms a couple of weeks, it is time to dispose of it, and we do so quickly by reducing the prices to an irresistible point.

We want the latest things produced to take the places of the pieces advertised to-day. That's the way we keep to the front and surpass everbody in furniture display. This ambition costs us profits, but it's advisable and you reap the benefit.

Be First to Have One of These Ultra Stylish French Voile Suits at $47.50

Just arrived. Haven't been in Boston long enough to form the acquaintance of any one but ourselves, and we won't introduce it to a single person until Monday. It's one of the most attractive suit styles we have ever met. Our fashion artist made a sketch of it, which we publish in this column.

It is made of French voile over taffeta, in the most exclusive Eton model we have seen. It is trimmed with soutache braids and ornaments; also knife plating of taffeta. It has the new sleeves and the fan plaited circular skirt. The colors are black, navy, rose, white and Alice blue.

LEADERS OF INTELLECT TO PROMOTE SOCIALISM

THINK SOCIETY WOMAN BURNED CRIME CLUES.

Arrest Is Expected in Lynn of Person Who Destroyed Bloodstained Clothes.

Shadowed by police officers her every movement closely watched a prominent society woman of Lynn is suspected of being the person who crept into the woods off Essex street, Swampscott, built a bonfire of wood and papers and destroyed the contents of a dress suit case which she brought with her. The woman hurriedly left the woods when, as she supposed, she had destroyed every particle of the property.

"The body is good for one operation."

Pieces of burned silk and cotton cloth were also found among the ashes. It is known definitely that the contents of the dress suit case included women's clothing.

When notified by the gypsy moth hunter of his find, with a dark hint of a tragedy of a "murder den," Chief Harris, of the Swampscott police, at once set on foot an investigation which has resulted so far in the trailing of the Lynn society woman.

"I expect to make an arrest soon," said Chief Harris last night. "I fear that a great sensation will be caused in Lynn."

Alfred Farnum, one of the men employed by the Moth Commission, watched every movement of the woman from the time she entered the woods.

"The woman was very deliberate when she entered the woods," Farnum told the police. "She was tall, and had a most commanding presence. She was dressed in a long black coat, and a red velvet hat. She placed the suit case which she carried on the ground, and, carefully gathering all the sticks and papers she could find, built a fire.

"When this was burning, she opened the case and dumped into the flames a quantity of women's clothing. I could see that there were bloodstains on the garments. When the fire had died out, the woman left the woods."

Farnum notified Special Officer John Mahon of what he had seen, and a search was made for the woman, but it was too late.

MRS. SIEGEL TO GIVE $50 FOR GAME FOR GIRLS

Philanthropic New York Woman Seeks to Improve School Children's Health

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 3.—What sort of a game shall girls of twelve play in order to obtain recreation in the ordinary school room, where desks are fixed?

Mrs. Henry Siegel has offered to the girls' branch of the Public School Athletic League a $50 prize to the person presenting the best solution to this problem. The game should call for considerable exercise and should not take more than fifteen minutes.

The girls of the Athletic League are greatly excited over the offer, and have requested the American Public School Physical Training Society to conduct the competition. Dr. Luther H. Gulick, president of the society, will receive all papers in the competition at No. 500 Park avenue.

Mrs. Siegel has become interested in the fact that while there are many games that can be played out of doors there are thousands of class rooms so situated that it is impossible for the pupils to go into the open air.

The need in New York City is more games that can be played in the class room in a school which has 2,000 or 3,000 girls. It is impossible to have them all go out and play at once.

N. Y. '400' PREFERS RAGTIME MUSIC TO CLASSIC AIRS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 3.—"I guess the people that Mrs. Astor had at her dinner didn't understand chamber music and did not appreciate it. They would rather have had ragtime. But if Mrs. Astor wanted a German band or a hand organ, why didn't she get one or the other? We only play the most beautiful kind of music—chamber music."

This caustic criticism of society's musical taste or lack of it, explains, according to Jacob Altschuler, a member of the Marum quartette, why musicians had refused to play dance music at the last dinner musicale of Mrs. John Jacob Astor.

"You see, Mrs. Astor's guests could not appreciate classical music, apparently. After we had been playing a little while some one, the butler, I guess, came up to us and asked that we play some dance music. This hurt us. So we told him that we did not play dance music.

"Pretty soon one of the guests came up and said the people did not want any more of that stuff we had been playing. We told him he probably wanted a German band or a hand organ to grind out dance tunes.

"I guess he did not know very much about that kind of music, because he said that chamber music might be all right in a chamber, but it was not for a big ball room. Think of it! Well, after that we played the lightest music we had, but pretty soon they all put on their coats and went home."

PRAISE FOR KAISER FROM HARVARD PROFESSOR.

E. G. Peabody Says Feeling of Distrust Is Due to Misunderstanding, and That the Emperor Is Really for Peace

Professor F. G. Peabody, of Harvard University, in an address before the Twentieth Century Club, yesterday afternoon, made a spirited defence of Emperor William and his motives, and declared that the distrust and suspicion of Germany which exists throughout the civilized world to-day were the result of a misunderstanding of her Emperor and his aims.

In Professor Peabody's address, which was his first public expression since his return from his recent trip abroad, he lauded Germany's ruler, declaring him to be the most remarkable intellectuality of any of the rulers of the world and said that if people had an opportunity to view him at close range the distrust would quickly vanish.

"I have found him," Professor Peabody said, "a most agreeable man personally and one of high intellectual pursuits and lofty motives. He is often portrayed as a military genius. Such is not his true character, however. His one desire is to preserve peace. In the twenty-five years that he has been emperor no wars have come to disturb the industrial prosperity of Germany. His opening words in an address to the Reichstag are indicative of his present state of mind. At that time he said: 'It is to me a most sacred duty to preserve peace in my empire.'

"His is a naturally gifted mind, capable of absorbing information on every conceivable subject. He is an idealist, an enthusiast, a universal genius, in short he has, perhaps, the most remarkable intellectual personality of any of the more prominent rulers of the world."

CYNTHIA ROCHE OFF TO BUY TROUSSEAU

Mother Joins Her in Trip to Europe—Calve Also a Passenger.

New York, March 3.—Miss Cynthia Burke-Roche sailed on the Hamburg liner Princess Irene to-day, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Frances Burke-Roche. Before the ship left the pier, Miss Cynthia said she and her mother were going abroad for pleasure only and would spend the greater part of their time in the south of France. It was learned, however, that the chief object of their trip is to purchase the trousseau for Miss Cynthia's coming marriage to young Arthur S. Burden.

Mme. Emma Calve was also a passenger. She said she would spend several weeks at her Castle in Southern France, sing in London in May, and return to this country next season. She does not yet know, however, under whose management.

PLOT TO MURDER COLOMBIA'S CHIEF

Former Secretary of War and Chief of Police Are Under Arrest.

Washington, March 3.—A new conspiracy against the life of the President of the United States of Colombia has been discovered.

This is the startling information received by the State Department from United States Minister Barrett in a cablegram, in which he says that a group of prominent men, including Fernandez, the former secretary of war, and Ramiriz, the chief of police, have been arrested because of the plot.

COLD WEATHER DUE AFTER RAIN

He in Boston who grumbled because last night was stormy might have grumbled much worse in a good many other places in the country. Although the drizzle of the afternoon turned into a steady downpour in the evening, Boston was not the stormiest place in the country.

In northern Maine, where the centre of the storm was located, the rain came down by the gallon. Also the wind blew, which wasn't true of Boston, to any uncomfortable extent.

The weather sharps said the rain would still be falling at daybreak to-day, but that it would be clear and cold toward night. They look for a drop in temperature—not a cold wave, but a considerable change.

BADOT EXTORTION CHARGE DISMISSED

Joseph G. Badot of Quincy says that Russell Wilder, Charles E. Breen and Robert Kelly of Boston extorted $300 from him by threatening to make a statement to the police in which the name of a married woman would be mentioned, but when Judge Avery heard the case in the former city yesterday he dismissed the charge. The judge refused to have the mysterious woman brought into court. Her name was not disclosed. After the hearing was over Breen was arrested on the charge of fraudulently obtaining money from Badot. Breen was held in $500 for a hearing on March 10.

CARDS TO RECEPTION ANNOUNCE SECRET WEDDING.

Announcement of the secret marriage of Miss M. [illegible] Smith, nineteen years old, of No. 17 Port Norfolk street, Neponset, and Joseph Outram, aged twenty-one years, of Washington avenue, Dorchester, was made yesterday in the form of invitations to a reception to be given by the young couple on March 7.

On February 21 the couple met by appointment at the Neponset railroad station and went to Boston. Arrangements were made with Rev. Dr. Fred C. W. Parker of the Tremont Temple, who married them.

In the evening both returned home. The next day—Washington's birthday—they attended the theatre. Upon returning to the new Mrs. Outram's home that evening they determined to tell their secret to Mrs. Smith. The latter had to be shown the certificate before she would believe that it was not a joke.

Mrs. Outram is a member of the Episcopal Church choir of Dorchester and is very pretty. The groom is employed by the Goodyear Machine Company, on Albany street, and is very popular among the young set of Dorchester.

"DUKE" FARRELL TO BE A BONIFACE

Marlboro, March 3.—Charley Farrell, for thirteen years one of the greatest catchers of the major leagues, has finally laid down his mantle and will confine his future attention to business.

The big backstop has entered into partnership with Frank W. Leary, in the management of the Beaudreau Hotel, in this city. Farrell's last engagement was with the Boston Americans.

30 NOTABLES MEET TO SOLVE BIG PROBLEMS

Convinced That Old Parties and Systems Offer No Hope to the People.

Noroton, Ct., March 3.—One of the most remarkable gatherings of thinkers of the higher forms of governmental control ever assembled under one roof is holding a three-days' session, ending to-morrow, at the beautiful home of J. G. Phelps Stokes here.

The conferees have calmly and dispassionately discussed the most feasible means of solving the grave problems of the day. Thirty men and women were the guests of Mr. Stokes and every one is known throughout the length and breadth of the land, even of the world, for his or her utterances on social problems.

"The purposes of this meeting," said Mr. Stokes to-night, "was to bring together men and women who have accomplished something along the lines of political reform throughout the country, and to obtain an interchange of their views with the idea of seeing how best we can profit by their experience. I cannot go into the details of our conference, out of regard for the wishes of the guests, but I can say that the principal object of our meeting has not been to promote Socialism per se, but rather to have a full and free discussion of all political questions by men who have been foremost in political battles, particularly within the last year. Socialism, amongst other things, was discussed, but the Socialistic organization is by no means the object of the conference."

Many Noted Names.

A partial list of those who were at the conference was obtained, and contains names of men prominent in both elements of the Socialist movement—the conservatives and the radicals. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Phelps Stokes, the latter formerly Miss Rose Pastor, whose writings of the Ghetto are well known, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunter, the latter Mr. Stokes's sister; George Fred Williams, of Massachusetts, Ernest Crosby, John Brisbane Walker, David Graham Phillips, former Senator John Ford, E. J. Ridgeway, publisher of Everybody's Magazine, Victor Berger, leader of the Socialist movement in Milwaukee, Maurice Hillquit, of the Socialist party, of New York, H. G. Wilshire, publisher of Wilshire's Magazine, and known as the "millionaire Socialist," John F. Butler, author of the "Cry of the Children"; Leonard E. Abbott, of "Current Literature," and Alfred J. Bolton, of Brooklyn.

Joseph Medill Patterson, of Chicago, was expected early to-day, but did not arrive until late to-night. The following were invited to attend, but were unable to do so: Jack London, Edwin Markham, Eugene V. Debs and Tom Watson.

There were other men who have wielded trenchant pens or delivered incisive speeches on political and social problems, who also attended this meeting. All walks of life were represented, from the student and the settlement worker to the millionaire thinker like Mr. Stokes or Mr. Patterson. Differing widely in their idea of details, they were still held together by the single bond of desiring a solution of mighty questions raised by labor and capital, by government ownership and private control.

Great Questions Dissected.

"Great good has been accomplished by this meeting," said Mr. Stokes. "We had a full and free discussion of the problems that confront us, and we shall have more such meetings in the future. Our work was one of analysis. We dissected the questions that came before us. At some future time we may build from these fragments, but that may be a long time to come. Briefly, it was a philosophical discussion of the problems. We planned no campaign and outlined no programme for the future. We simply laid foundations deep and strong for our future work."

The keynote of the meeting has been its intense seriousness. In groups of four or five or assembled in a united body the guests have discussed the questions that came before them with an intensity of purpose born of lofty ideals and bred of a generous desire to help the great world that does not think. In the magnificent halls and the library of the millionaire host or sauntering through the gardens that surround the house, these men and women developed theories and their ideas for the practical advancement of the race.

Socialism was but a single feature in the broad scope of their discussion. Wages, poverty, competition, railroads, education, concentration of wealth, trusts, all were gone into by these thinkers. Municipal ownership, socialism, government control of utilities, private ownership and all of the other great problems of modern civilization were discussed and brought to a focus by the students of these questions, and to each discussion each man brought his broad and accurate knowledge of ideas and principles to add to others in their thoughts.

"People Must Own the Sources of Wealth"

There is going to be a campaign in Chicago soon, and the Socialists are going to put a ticket in the field. I am in for the real brand of Socialism—public ownership of the real sources of wealth. The postoffice, the police force, the public schools and the water department are public ownership ideas. We must remove all forms of ruinous competition by having the sources of wealth owned and operated by the people. Then we shall reach perfection. Then there will be jobs for everybody.—Joseph Medill Patterson to BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN correspondent.

MR. AND MRS. J. G. PHELPS STOKES; OTHER SOCIALIST LEADERS.

PATTERSON'S WIFE SAYS HIS LIFE WAS THREATENED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Chicago, March 3.—Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, wife of the young Chicago reformer who resigned from the office of Commissioner of Public Works, told a writer for the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN to-night that the reason for the resignation was that Mr. Patterson was so trammelled by politics and the graft system that he could not perform his duties, and besides he had repeatedly been threatened with death. Young Patterson is now in New York. Mrs. Patterson leaves Chicago to-morrow to join him at Hampton Terrace, Ga. They will go abroad soon and remain in Europe perhaps a year.

Mrs. Patterson, who was Alice Higinbotham, daughter of Harlow N. Higinbotham, is rich in her own right. Her father is said to be worth $10,000,000. Young Patterson is prospectively wealthy. Mrs. Patterson says she is in entire sympathy with the Socialistic ideas of her husband.

By Evelyn Campbell.

"I don't know much about Socialism, but I am sure of one thing. Whatever my husband is, I am. I share his views, so if he be a Socialist I suppose I'm one."

So spoke Mrs. Patterson to-night as we sat in the artistic reception hall at the Patterson home, No. 473 Elm street.

She was the most daintily incongruous ideal of a socialist one would wish to see. With her delicate oval face, her heavily fringed violet eyes, of petite figure, she looked in her floating blue draperies like a butterfly poised for flight rather than the wife of the most talked of young socialistic recruit in the city.

There was almost a mournful cadence in the exquisitely modulated voice of this heiress daughter of one of Chicago's famous millionaires.

"Even Threatened with Death."

"My husband has been harassed nearly to death," she said, "since he took the office of Commissioner of Public Works. He tried so faithfully to do his duty by the office, but he could not accomplish what he wanted to do, he was so trammelled, so opposed.

"Why, he was even threatened with death." The heavily fringed violet eyes widened with terror at the thought of those dread menaces and the fluttering hands, small and white as a child's, were pressed to her heart as if to quiet its beating.

"It seems so thankless, so terrible, that a man should make so many enemies just by doing what he believes to be right," said the child wife of the man who has given up the struggle to bring civic righteousness into Chicago.

"Maligned and Persecuted."

"From the day he took the office, he has been cruelly maligned and persecuted. He has been called a liar, a thief and a scoundrel. He has been accused of being a traitor and everything else imaginable. [illegible] preciated the sacrifices he made to take up the office, [illegible] one word of thanks did he get for anything he tried to do. Abuse was his only reward. And now, worn out and exhausted, he has given up the job and will rest for a long time."

"Will you tell me what his future plans are?" I asked.

"I don't think he has any at present," she replied. "All this has been in opposition to the wishes of his family. His mother wished that he should represent her interests upon the Tribune, but that is impossible now, of course."

"There is a rumor concerning a socialist magazine of which he is to be the head," I suggested.

"Oh, I think that must be without foundation," she replied. "At least I know nothing about it. I never heard him mention such a thing, and I am sure if he had any such idea he would have told me about it."

CHICAGO OFFICIAL RESIGNS TO ADVANCE CAUSE OF SOCIALISM

New York, March 3.—Joseph Medill Patterson, although he says with pride that he is a Socialist, and although he resigned the commissionership of Public Works in Chicago because his views [illegible] with Mayor Dunne's administration, says he is not an [illegible].

"[illegible] I have some half formed ideas of [illegible] newspaper work again and of following out an educational campaign along the lines of Socialism," he said. "I have not fully decided on my future plans.

"I shall not select New York as my field, however. It would not be a good place to preach my doctrines. It is not a representative American city. It's too neutral. Chicago, on the other hand, is the most radical city in the world.

Detail Yet to Be Worked Out.

"When, 200 years ago, universal suffrage was talked of, they didn't discuss the present Australian ballot. They hadn't advanced that far. So it is with Socialism. A sound, practical plan remains to be suggested and worked out in detail to perfection.

"People ask me if my father is in sympathy with my socialistic ideas and whether there is no difference between us on this subject and a certain constraint in our relations. I can only say that our personal relations are of the best. If you want to know my father's opinions on any other subject you'll have to ask him."

Then Mr. Patterson was asked:

"Are you an Anarchist?"

And he smiled and replied:

"No; not yet."

Mr. Patterson's father, while strongly opposed to the views held by his son, declares that there are no personal differences of any kind between them.

"Old Enough to Form Own Views."

"My son is of age," he said to a BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN correspondent, "has had a good education and has served a term in the Legislature of Illinois. I believe him to be perfectly competent to take care of himself and form his own views of life and his conduct.

"If [illegible] ever differed from their fathers in [illegible] way of thinking we would soon drop back to the times of Abraham.

"My son is entitled to his own beliefs, and I would be a poor father if I tried to hinder him. There is absolutely no difference between us growing out of any ideas he may hold."

THREE MILLIONAIRES AND BRIDES DEVOTE LIVES TO WORK FOR THE MASSES

Three remarkable young men, two millionaires by inheritance, and one through his marriage, are the notable figures at the conference of Socialists which is being held at Noroton, Conn.

Not only are these men noteworthy because of their careers, but in the case of each has been an unusual romance which culminated in marriage.

The eldest of the trio, J. G. Phelps Stokes, who is the host of the conferees at his Summer home, is 31 years old. His brother-in-law, Robert Hunter, is a year younger. The youngest of the three is Joseph Medill Patterson.

The beautiful romance of Mr. Stokes, who, although "born to the purple," devoted his energies and his great wealth to alleviating the suffering of New York's East Side poor, and the young Russian Jewess, Rose Harriet Pastor, settlement worker, cigar marker, newspaper writer and poet, touched the hearts of the whole country.

Fifteen years ago her family came to America, settling in Cleveland. She went to work in a cigar factory. She developed herself, cultivating her mind, studying, practicing that self-denial that poverty entails, until she made herself one of the most brilliant women of her race.

The wedding of Mr. Stokes and Miss Pastor followed the romantic marriage of Mr. Stokes's sister, Miss Caroline Phelps Stokes, and Robert Hunter, a Settlement worker and a comparatively poor man. In the Spring of 1902 Mr. Hunter became the head worker in the University Settlement. J. G. Phelps Stokes was his assistant. Through him Mr. Hunter met Miss Stokes in the settlement work they were thrown much together.

They were married in 1903 and went to live at Noroton. Their baby was born there the next year. Then they moved back to New York. They made their home among the people for whom they worked in an old house on Grove street, in the very heart of the slums. There they took up what they had determined should be their life work—the bettering of the conditions of the poverty stricken ones who live on the lower West Side.

The last of the trio, Joseph Medill Patterson, wealthy in his own right, married Alice Higinbotham, daughter of Harlow N. Higinbotham, one of Chicago's richest men, and a former partner of Marshall Field. They were married in 1902.

FIND HARVARD MAN DEAD BY GAS.

FRIENDS SAY GARDNER YOUTH ACCIDENT VICTIM

To take soldiers without ambition is to take off their spurs.

Good commanders in the wars must be taken, be they never so ambitious, for the use of their service dispenseth with the rest.

There is no use of ambitious men in pulling down the greatness of any subject that overtops.

From Francis Bacon's Essay on "Ambition."

Dead from asphyxiation, with his hand resting on a copy of Bacon's Essays, open at the essay on "Ambition," the body of Arthur W. Noyes, of Gardner, a Harvard graduate, was found in his room at No. 233 East Ninth street, New York. Gas was pouring from a small heater in the room.

At the police station the death is recorded as suicide. Mrs. Maxwell Sunderman, who has charge of the house, believes it was accidental.

Noyes was the son of Edward P. Noyes of Gardner. He was a brilliant student, being graduated from the high school in 1900 and, after attending the Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard. He was obliged to abandon the course when he broke down from overstudy.

About a year ago he went to New York. He was well supplied with money and always appeared in good health and spirits. When he engaged the room on Ninth street he said that he wanted to be near the Cooper Union and Astor libraries as he desired to study in the evening. He was employed as a stenographer by a Broadway lawyer.

In the house he was known as the "silent man." He seldom spoke to anyone, although he was not gloomy or despondent. Occasionally he would remark that it was difficult for a stranger to win success in New York, but not as if he were disheartened.

His death was discovered by Mrs. Sunderman and a policeman. The former noticed the odor of gas coming from his room and called the patrolman. He broke down the door and found Noyes lying across the bed dead. A purse containing a considerable sum of money was on the floor. In the room were several hundred books, all by noted authors, and under the pillow was a card bearing his father's name and address.

Mr. Noyes was notified of his son's death and has gone to New York to take charge of the body.

TENANTS AROUSED FROM SLEEP FLEE FROM FIRE.

As a climax to a night of fires, the Roxbury companies were called out at an early hour to-day to fight a stubborn blaze in the stores Nos. 2,209 to 2,211 Washington street.

The fire was confined to the stores occupied by Starr Bros., haberdashers, Mrs. Gray and Simon Goldsmith. Mrs. Gray [illegible] a loss of $500. Goldsmith suffered the same damage and Starr Bros. were damaged to the extent of $200.

The cause of the fire has not been ascertained.

Occupants of dwellings adjoining were roused from their slumbers by the arrival of the engines and sought the street to make sure of safety.

Five alarms in various parts of the city were sounded last night within an hour, and in each case the damage was slight. The largest loss was at a fire on the first [illegible] building, No. [illegible] occupied by [illegible] W. [illegible] Grozialski, where an overturned lamp set fire to the woodwork of the parlor and caused a loss of $100.

A [illegible] on his way to supper discovered [illegible] in a stable on Hyde street [illegible] Rogers street, South Boston, and sent [illegible] alarm. The building was badly [illegible].

Five dollars' damage was done by a fire in the house of D. A. Sullivan, No. 11 Grace street, Dorchester, caused by spontaneous combustion among rags.

POOR TO SUFFER BY TRUST JUMP ON ICE

The price of ice in Boston during the coming Summer will be from ten to twenty cents per hundred pounds higher than it was last Summer.

Already the American Ice Company of New York, the Ice Trust, of which the Boston Ice Company is a branch, has announced that the price this Summer will be forty cents a hundred.

As usual, the poor will [illegible] the advance in price. The [illegible] will pay the smallest price and [illegible] who buy only small pieces will be charged the highest.

BELIEVES PRISONER HARVARD ROBBER

Chief Pullen of the Cambridge police has sent an inspector to New York to see if James P. Morgan, held by the police of that city, is the man who committed the thefts at Harvard dormitories. Morgan was arrested while trying to force the lockers at Columbia University gymnasium. In court he was identified by a detective from New Haven as the man who had got $3,500 worth of property from students at Yale.

Morgan's picture is in the rogues' gallery, and it is thought that he is responsible for thefts at Princeton and Harvard, as well as Yale.

KING INSISTS ON COURT UNIFORM.

Edward Commands That Visitors to Windsor Castle Shall Come in the Clothing That an Old Custom Prescribes

HENRY WHITE INVENTED DRESS FOR HIMSELF

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

London, March 3.—[illegible] is determined that the Windsor uniform shall receive the respect to which it is entitled, for he has [illegible] that while the court is at Windsor [illegible] who are entitled to use the [illegible] are commanded to the court [illegible] in it.

The history of the uniform is somewhat [illegible] of [illegible] George III [illegible] it was [illegible] by the consort of Queen Victoria [illegible] of having a distinctive dress [illegible] ministers in attendance upon the sovereign. The uniform is a double breasted [illegible] with a scarlet collar and [illegible] the royal [illegible]. The trousers are of [illegible].

The public never see it, for it is worn only when the court is at Windsor, and even experts have often mistaken the [illegible] privy councillor's garb for this [illegible] honorable dress.

The great stickler for court etiquette, Henry White, now Ambassador to Rome, invented a modification of the Windsor coat which he wore at Windsor, and endeavored to [illegible] other Americans to do likewise. [illegible] the scarlet collar and cuffs, but alike in other respects.

Lord [illegible] who cared little for dress, [illegible] for the honor of wearing the Windsor [illegible]. Once when dressing in a hurry [illegible] appeared at court in a very [illegible] the coat of an Elder Brother of the Trinity House, the trousers of the Deputy Lieutenant of Hertfordshire, a [illegible] of the Royal Archers and with his sword hung on the wrong side. His waistcoat belonged to the days when he was of less ample girth, so that there was a gap for all to see between the hem of this garment and the waist of his trousers.

SCOTIA'S RICHEST HEIRESS TO WED MASTER MARINER

But Lady Mary Hamilton's Fiance Is Marquis of Graham as Well as Sailor of the Big Yacht Sunbeam

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

London, March 3.—The engagement of the Marquis of Graham, the eldest son of the Duke of Montrose, and Lady Mary Hamilton, the richest heiress in Scotland, is the society event of the season.

Lady Mary Hamilton has just come of age and [illegible] in Scotland. She is the only daughter of the late Duke of Hamilton and was left an immense fortune. She is also heiress to the French Duchy of Chatelherault, a title which dates back to 1548.

Her property includes the whole of the beautiful Island of Arran, where she is loved for her kindness. She spends many months of the year among the islanders.

The Marquis of Graham is also of proud lineage. Determined to make himself able to earn his own living, he left Eton to join the mercantile marine. He gained a master mariner's certificate, which qualified him to take charge of Lord Brassey's yacht, the Sunbeam, which competed in the Atlantic race for the Kaiser's Cup.

He served in the South African War and last year acted as private secretary to the Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was a candidate for election to Parliament on the Unionist side for Stirlingshire, but was defeated by the Liberal nominee.

London Starts Cry to Open Restaurants until 1 a. m.—American Visitors Approve Project to Satisfy the Theatregoer

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

London, March 3.—There is a proposal on foot that will meet with the approval of every American visitor in London. It is to keep the restaurants open until 1 o'clock instead of closing them, as now, at 12.30 o'clock on week days, 12 o'clock on Saturdays and 11 o'clock on Sundays.

New Yorkers in particular, used as they are to leisurely making their way to a restaurant after the theatre and sitting until the spirit moves them to go home, very much object to the hustle of London in this respect.

The theatres [illegible] anywhere from 11 to 11 [illegible] time a restaurant [illegible] secured and order [illegible]. The food has to be [illegible] the quick lunch [illegible]. PARIS STREETS KEPT CLEAN FOR $5,200,000

City Owes $500,000,000 as a Legacy of the Commune.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday American.

Paris, March 3.—What it costs to govern Paris, one of the most scientifically administered cities in the world, is shown by the latest statistics of the Paris Municipal Council. Paris has a huge public debt, the legacy of the "Haussmanising" educational and sanitary reforms which followed the Commune. It amounts to $500,000,000, and $25,400,000 are annually assigned to the interest and sinking fund, which is a heavy drain on the municipal exchequer.

The following are some of the chief items in the expenditure: Street cleaning, $5,200,000; cemeteries and burials, $1,000,000; architecture and fine arts, $800,000; street lighting and tree planting, $2,800,000; education, $8,500,000; hospitals, asylums and charitable relief, $10,000,000; and police, $8,000,000.

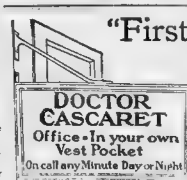
"First Aid" to the Bowels



When Heartburn, Sour Stomach, Headache, Bad Breath, Coated Tongue, Belching of Stomach Gas, or any of these forerunners of Indigestion appear, Old Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot in your pocket.

He wants to check the coming trouble instantly before it can grow into a habit of the Bowels to be costive.

Ladies, who extend to Dr. Cascaret the hospitality of their Purses or their Dress Pockets, will be rewarded with a fine complexion, and healthy Happiness.

These will about fifty times repay for the trifling space occupied, and the ten cents per week at cost.

* * *

Because it is not a "Bile-driver," nor a Gastric-Juice Waster, but a direct Tonic to the Bowel Muscles.

Old Dr. Cascaret goes directly after these Bowel-Muscles. He wakes them up just as a cold bath would wake up a lazy person.

Then he works them (through the nerves) till they get so strong from that Exercise that they don't need any more help to do their duty.

But Dr. Cascaret wants to be right on the spot, in your Pocket or Purse, where he can regulate these Bowel-Muscles all the time, in health, and out of health.

Because even the strongest Bowel-Muscles may be overworked.

Heavy dinners, late suppers, whiskey, wine or beer drinking, nervous excitement, sudden exposure to cold or heat and a dozen other every day likelihoods tire the Bowel Muscles.

In such cases a little Cascaret in time is worth fifty dollars worth of Treatment later on, to say nothing of the suffering, discomfort, loss of Business Energy, and loss of Social Sunshine it saves.

RIOT OF KISSES GREET 2,700 EXILES.

New York, March 3.—The street in front of the barge office at the Battery this morning was a scene of tears and kisses [illegible] of joy and kisses of welcome [illegible] rather, it was a complete drama, with an act every hour.

The actors were the relatives of the 2,700 immigrants who arrived here on the steamship Pennsylvania, most of whom were Jewish refugees from Russia. They were being discharged from Ellis Island this morning, the ferryboat bringing several hundred every trip.

As early as seven o'clock there were half a hundred fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, uncles and cousins of the refugees waiting in the drizzling rain outside of the barge office gate for the arrival of the first boat, and in spite of the inclement weather this number grew into fully 500 as the morning wore on. The single policeman on duty found himself helpless when he tried to make a passageway.

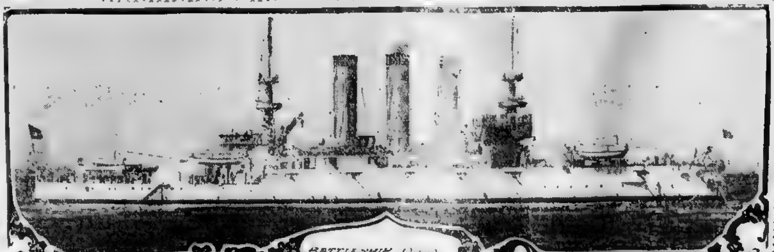
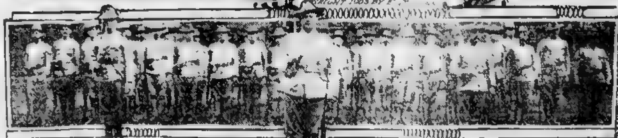
Army Plans Rushed for War with Chinese

Bloody Massacre May Bring Crisis at Any Moment; Troops Are Ready for Invasion



BATTLESHIP OHIO



COMPANY OF AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS IN CHINA

TYPICAL CHINESE BOXERS

AMERICAN BLUEJACKET

U. S. FLAGSHIP IN EAST; FACTORS IN EXPECTED WAR

PHILIPPINES FORCE WILL BE FIRST ON GROUND.

Washington, March 3.—Army officers say the American army will soon be in [illegible] that [illegible] of the passive resistance offered by the Chinese people during the [illegible] several years ago, the mass of the population will [illegible] ald the Boxers and secret society men who are fomenting the trouble.

[illegible] Englishmen who have [illegible] the Flowery Kingdom [illegible] that the eruption [illegible] will be one of the [illegible] in history. That the advices of the State Department are [illegible] shown by the activity in the War Department.

It is likely that the 12,000 or 15,000 United States troops now in the Philippines will be ordered to China at the first [illegible] of them as can be spared from garrison duty. No small army will answer the needs of the occasion, it is said here.

Since the massacre at Nanchang, when the homes of missionaries were attacked and several Europeans were slain, war preparations have been pushed here with feverish activity. United States Minister Rockhill has not withdrawn his warning to all American citizens to rush to treaty ports, although his latest advices are that [illegible] think the situation quite so critical.

In the Navy Department there is the same activity. Ammunition has been rushed to the Asiatic squadron and the ordering of the battleship Ohio to the waters where the United States squadron will rendezvous in another significant sign of the foreboding hour. It is known that plans for an invasion of China have been made by the War Department and submitted to President Roosevelt. He is now going over the details of a scheme devised by the best strategists in the United States army. Not only have preparations been made to hurry troops to China from Manila, but everything is in readiness for forwarding reinforcements from the United States.

Chinese diplomats here are viewing the situation with the deepest concern. The Chinese government is not held responsible for the acute tension. On the contrary, it is as desirous of peace and protection for missionaries and traders as the American government. Back of the attack on foreigners is a plan to overthrow the present dynasty. China is honeycombed with secret societies, for whom the Boxers are the rank and bloody band. The leaders are using Chinese hatred for "foreign devils" to provoke a crisis, which they intend to use for the destruction of the rulers, who are now dominating their land.

Native Army May Join Boxers.

In the rioting at Nanchang Chinese soldiers are reported to have protected the missionaries, but how long they will remain loyal is a question of the gravest moment. If they join the Boxers the American army will have to fight well armed men whose discipline has greatly improved since Japan defeated China.

The success of Japan over Russia is believed partly responsible for the situation. The Chinese have learned that a [illegible] [illegible] Minister Wu [illegible] [illegible] in Washington [illegible] are all [illegible] cussing the prospective war in China day and night. All seem of the opinion that the United States army will have to fight some desperate and sanguinary battles before it can drive the Boxer army back.

The Chinese hatred of the Americans is partly due to [illegible] and partly to a desire [illegible] cause of the stringent [illegible] force in this country [illegible] argue with the [illegible] are excluded from the United States no American should be allowed in China. There is also a deep seated [illegible] cause of commercial [illegible] sions granted foreigners.

But for the intervention of the United States after the allied army entered Pekin, the partition of China would have followed, but this not known by the masses and the [illegible] tionary movement [illegible] fomenting revolt by any sense of gratitude.

The trouble in China appears to extend over a wide area. It is believed that the bands of Boxers reported as murdering and pillaging around Jehol, Kwantung, Fokien and other more remote places are really Boxers. There is great fear for the safety of every American missionary in the Yangtse valley. The Chinese revolutionary society has its headquarters at Hangchow and is sending [illegible] all parts of the kingdom. These [illegible] are stirring up the [illegible] [illegible] missionaries [illegible] [illegible] fully blown [illegible] reach of a [illegible]

HAPPY MANHOOD!

I restore Weak Men and do not ask one penny in advance or on deposit. I accept their word to pay me when cured.

Happy, glorious Manhood, the strength that pushes the world! Success in its completeness! And what is weakness? Failure, despair! But why be weak, when a cure is within your reach for the asking?

I know the terrible mental torture of the nervous debility sufferer, but I also know his gratefulness when restored, and that is the basis for my free treatment until cured. Can any such sufferer come to me and be made a man among men, and then refuse to pay a few dollars for aiding him to become so? I say no, and my wonderful success backs up my judgment. I wish that every sufferer knew that the effect of Electricity upon the weak, debilitated man is the same as rain upon the parched field in summer. He may be debilitated from varicocele, losses, impotency; may have confusion of ideas; fear to act and decide, gloomy forebodings, timid and fretful, avoid friends and company, without confidence in himself to face the slightest responsibility; and let I am properly apply Electricity for but a few hours and all these symptoms vanish—giving way to glowing, soothing vigor through every weak part. A few weeks to a couple of months' use of this treatment banish them forever, and make strong, confident, manly men out of the puniest weaklings. For nearly 40 years I have treated and restored weak men through my world-famed invention, and am still doing so with greater success than ever. In fact, I do not expect to fail in any case [illegible] kind, and therefore [illegible] more or less sceptical I will continue to give my Hercules and, as said, not one cent is to be paid me in advance or on deposit. Call or write and get the belt and use, say, for 60 days, and if cured pay me price of belt only—many cases low as $5—if not cured return the belt and the deal is ended. But I know what the belt will do, and will take the risk of my pay when you are cured, unless you wish to buy for cash in which case I give whole[sale] discount. I also give my belts on same terms in Rheumatism, Lame Back, Stomach, Kidney and Liver complaints, &c. Think of a remedy that has stood every possible test for 40 years—the only one ever successfully given to sufferers on its own merits!

Dr. Sanden Electric Belt Free Until Cured

As the originator and founder of the electric belt system of treatment, my 40 years' success is the envy of many, and my belts of course are imitated. (What good thing is not?) But my great knowledge to advise and direct my patients is mine alone, and free to all who use my belt until cure is complete.

Call or send to-day for my belt. Or if you want to look into the matter further, I have the two best little books ever written upon Electricity and its medical uses, and send them free, sealed, upon request.

Very soon the [illegible] diamond fans will once more be swarming to the [illegible] Huntington avenue and South End to root for the home gladiators, but meantime the one topic that is attracting the fans while the teams are in the South preparing for the heavy campaign is the great baseball contest in the SUNDAY AMERICAN whereby twelve fortunate fans are to be the recipients of season passes which will take them through the gates up at the ball parks along with the other owners of the same who occupy the armchairs in the big grandstand.

In every little corner of every State in New England where a fanning bee is in progress the plan of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN is [illegible] and the contest voted one of the best tributes that could be given [illegible] Hub teams.

Up to Collins and Tenney.

Now Jimmy Collins will be the judge as to how the Boston Americans will bat against the Highlanders when they meet in New York on April 14, the opening game for the [illegible] and Fred Tenney will do [illegible] for the Nationals when they cast with the Brooklyns April 12 to begin the big grind.

Now the [illegible] the fans should be to [illegible] diamond [illegible] the teams [illegible] in touch with every move [illegible] Collins and Tenney.

But the readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN want to remember it is the first twelve coupons received with the local line-ups inscribed that will draw down the passes, so it behooves the live fans to get a hustle on and [illegible] off showing their [illegible] baseball situation [illegible] out the batting order of the home teams.

AUTOMOBILES ALL THE LATEST NEWS AND GOSSIP HUB SHOW READY FOR THE GREAT SHOW WHICH OPENS SATURDAY PHILADELPHIA 150,000 ATTEND THE EXHIBITION IN THAT CITY

150,000 PERSONS ATTEND SHOW IN SLOWTOWN.

Manufacturers and Dealers Pronounce Themselves Well Satisfied with What Good the Exhibition Has Done for Trade

Philadelphia, March 3.—Although greeted on its last day with a typical March rain, which persisted all day, the fifth annual automobile show of Philadelphia closed here to-night, the greatest success of any exhibition of its kind ever held in Philadelphia. When compared with last year's Boston show, however, it does not take the front rank, the sales amounting to barely a million dollars.

In point of brilliancy and attendance, however, due to the management of Director Campbell of Boston, the Philadelphia show compared favorably with any other of the country. Fully 150,000 people visited the exposition building where the show was held during the week.

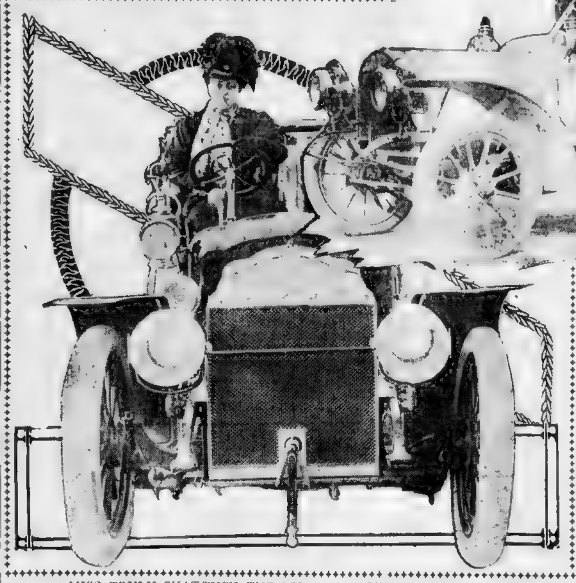
Only the fact that Philadelphia is two years behind any other city of its class in the development of its automobile industry kept the sales down. Manufacturers and dealers in spite of this express themselves as well satisfied with what the show has done towards the future good of the motor car business in this city and in Eastern Pennsylvania.

Mr. Campbell said to-night that he will devote his full time now to the coming Boston show and he predicts a gross attendance of 300,000 people for the coming exhibit here.

Boston and New York exhibitors at the Philadelphia show say they are well pleased with what has been accomplished here from an educational view point.

BOSTON'S GREAT AUTO SHOW WILL OPEN NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

More Than 300 Exhibitors Have Taken Space, and All Well-Known Cars Will Be Seen.



MISS TRULY SHATTUCK, THE ACTRESS, IN HER "THOMAS FLYER."

BY A. H. C. MITCHELL.

A week from to-day and thousands will have seen the opening of Boston's great automobile and power boat show. Mechanics Hall will be a busy place this week. Scores of decorators and electricians and carpenters will invade the structure, exhibits will be arriving every day, and Manager Chester Campbell will have the time of his life straightening things out for the opening on Saturday night.

Owing to the concert Symphony Hall will not be available for the autoists on Saturday night, but as soon as the musicians pack up their fiddles and flutes, the rows of chairs will be removed and preparations made for the invasion of cars and accessories. Symphony Hall will be ready for the auto lovers on Monday.

In preparing for the show Manager Campbell has been ably assisted by the show committee, George H. Lowe, E. A. Gilmore and J. H. McAlman. These three men have found time between selling automobiles to help Mr. Campbell, and all are convinced that the Boston show will be the biggest, busiest and best ever.

More Than 300 Exhibits.

More than 300 exhibitors have taken space [illegible] about every thing in the world that has to do with [illegible]. In addition to all the well known cars there will be exhibited some that have never been shown before.

Preparations have been made to handle a record breaking crowd. Hotel clerks say they expect a tremendous influx of visitors; the management has arranged for excursion rates for New Englanders who can not spend more than a day at the show.

More than 40,000 persons attended the opening of last year's show. With the experience of that opening night in his mind, Manager Campbell is ready for all comers next Saturday night. He says:

The attention of the entire country is upon this show; every manufacturer of automobiles from California to Maine is preparing his best and most finished product for exhibition here, for New England has become a tremendous factor in the motor car industry.

An End to the Secrets.

[illegible] riding season, the Boston show is the natural occasion in which to spring those improvements of the year which have been guarded with secrecy until the last moment that they might not be copied by other competing manufacturers.

For those who were not privileged to attend the New York show in January, a genuine surprise is in store during the week of March 10.

The past twelve months have [illegible] marked [illegible] point in automobile construction and finish, which is now nearing perfection by leaps and bounds.

"The motor car is no longer a complicated, crude, cast iron uncertainty, so indebted for its sale to a coat of bright paint. Rather it is to-day a simple practical, enduring vehicle, designed for long and faithful service. It is a delightful combination of scientifically processed steel or gun metal parts, finely machined, highly finished and intelligently assembled. Even the [illegible] of body [illegible] in the general effect [illegible] increased attention to symmetry and comfort.

Nothing Like the Old Shows.

"Formerly an exhibit of automobiles was [illegible] interesting only to those directly concerned. Others attended, to be sure, but merely from a sense of curiosity, such as would induce attendance at a flying machine exhibit to-day. How [illegible] sentiment has changed!

"An automobile show to-day [illegible] [illegible] really in our midst."

New Device to Warn Auto Drivers of Speed Limits

An ingenious device to warn drivers of automobiles when they have reached the legal speed limit of the districts through which they may be traveling is the very latest invention to add to the convenience and pleasure of automobiling. It is in the form of an improved speedometer, the inventor of which is Wesley Trafford of New York.

The rigors of the law which have been enacted for the protection of the public and the fact that speed limits vary according to location makes it necessary that an operator of a car have always an exact knowledge whether or not he is running the car [illegible] within the prescribed speed limit of the locality in which he happens to be. Most speedometers indicate on the dial face of the instrument the different speeds at which the car is moving, besides giving [illegible] miles per trip [illegible].

In the circuit is a clock. The contact maker on the axle of the wheel makes an electrical contact every one-sixtieth of a [illegible] the indicator, on the dial face one point. As both the clock and the dial face on the speedometer are each divided into sixty equal parts, it is evident that if the indicator moves one point in one minute the car will be going at [illegible] speeds.

The clock throws the pointer back to zero at the end of every minute and the exact speed made the previous minute is [illegible] shows the extreme speed reached, and by the pressure of a button either or both pointers can be returned to zero.

Hemmery, now that he is back to that dear Paris once more, says that he took his disqualification in Florida in the most philosophical manner, and made no fuss whatever. Those who saw the gesticulating Frenchman at Ormond are wondering what he would have said and done if he had really become excited.

• • •

An enterprising Parisian photographer has just issued a series of picture postal cards of the Sarthe Circuit, where the Grand Prix will be decided next Summer.

The prospect of track racing with big cars this Summer is not very bright, but there will probably be a number of events for regular stock touring cars. President M. J. Budlong of the Electric Vehicle Company believes that best results come from competitions of touring machines, and he will enter Columbia cars in [illegible] and racing events in all the Eastern [illegible], particularly in New England, where last Summer these cars made the unusual record of six victories in six weeks.

• • •

It is interesting to note that, though the city of Cleveland turns out more high grade touring cars than any other district in America, if not in the world, its proportion of shaft driven cars to chain-driven cars is [illegible] to two. The Winton, Peerless, Royal, Cleveland and Gaeth gasoline cars, and the White steam car are all shaft-driven, while the Stearns gasoline and Baker electric are chain driven. Thus the proportion among gasoline cars is five shaft-driven to one chain driven, and the success that is being enjoyed by Cleveland-made cars is decidedly emphatic evidence of the fact that the shaft-drive stands on its own merits.

Mr. H. M. Richards of 40 State street has purchased a Pryor [illegible] runabout, speed fifty miles an hour.

E. J. Parker, 470 Broad street, Providence, R. I., has taken the agency for the Imperial Company's line of cars.

Mr. B. B. Conrad, the Winter street cloak [illegible], will make a tour through the Lake Superior [illegible] in his Stoddard Dayton which he just purchased from F. J. Farr.

[illegible] N. M. Perry of Chicago, being interested in [illegible] Napier runabout, sent a representative to Boston February 22 to examine it. He was so highly satisfied that he placed his order immediately.

[illegible] Imperial Auto Company have taken the [illegible] story building at 29 Cambria street for a [illegible] and repair shop.

[illegible] Ford Auto Company has received a car of touring cars, and their salesrooms are [illegible] on a particularly busy appearance.

[illegible] Essex Auto Co. of Lynn sold three Pierce [illegible] on Thursday last.

The Butler Motor Car Co. have just received a [illegible] load of Pierce-Racines. Mr. Butler has received advice that the trucks of the Rapid commercial vehicle are in transit and will arrive in [illegible] for exhibition at the show.

Senator Guy W. Currier's Cleveland auto is en route from the factory and should be ready for [illegible] in a day or two.

Simeon Baker of the Baker-Comerais Co. took the visiting fire commissions of Bridgeport, Ct., on an inspecting tour through Boston in Premier cars Thursday.

The Bay State Auto Co., agents for Queen [illegible], have located salesrooms at No. 1008 Boylston street.

E. P. Blake, at the Haymarket auto station, has received the Jackson model D and model C. They had taken orders for quite a number of these models, even before the demonstrating cars arrived.

The Haynes Model "O," 4 cylinder, 30 horsepower demonstrating touring car, has arrived, and [illegible] S. Breed, New England agent for the company, [illegible] justly proud of it. The body is the French tulip design and is one of the most graceful and pleasing ones seen in the city to-day. The tonneau is 48 inches wide and accomodates three persons comfortably. Judging from the great interest shown in this car, together with the well-known reputation of the Haynes Auto Company, Mr. Breed will undoubtedly be one of the most successful dealers in Boston this season. This car will be on exhibition at the show, together with their 50 horsepower Model "R," which made a 6,000 mile trip early in the Winter, from Kokomo, Ind., to New York and Boston, via Albany, returning over the Allegheny Mountains by the National road, the repair expense being but $1.50.

L. F. Whitney, manager Park Square Auto Station, has taken the New England agency for the National Battery Company of Buffalo, N. Y., and will carry a complete line of the latest sparking batteries.

Mr. J. W. Linscott, manager of the Linscott Motor Company, made a [illegible] National [illegible] at Indianapolis [illegible] prominent automobile owners, at [illegible] great est of spirits, he having [illegible] every assurance from the factory that they will fill every one of his orders. While at the National factory Mr. Linscott had the pleasure of seeing the Nationals destined for exhibition at the Boston Automobile and Power Boat Show shipped together with several other cars consigned to prominent Boston parties.

Advices have been received [illegible] Motor Car Company of Lansing [illegible] loads of Reos are on their way [illegible] be duplicated twice [illegible] Motor Company have [illegible]. As the Reo Company are working night and day and will turn out 1,000 cars between now and the first of May there is no doubt but the Linscott Motor Company will be able to fulfil every promise made to customers now and during the Automobile Show.

At Pasadena, Cal., on George Washington's Birthday, the Automobile Club held their first annual hill climbing contest with the Reo winning two first prizes. The two cylinder $1250 Reo touring car won the first prize in the four passenger class, defeating by a big margin the popular makes of cars, both steam and gasoline. The little one cylinder Reo runabout also won first prize in the runabout class.

New England dealers are [illegible] great deal of difficulty in securing [illegible] proper size to ship touring cars [illegible] quite a great many customers [illegible] over the road from the [illegible] tories when the time for deliveries [illegible] than put up with the delay at the [illegible].

A special notice inserted in the trade [illegible] the past two weeks, which offered $250 premium to agents for their early deliveries on Thomas "Flyers," shows that the demand for high powered cars is far greater than the supply. This offer was made by C. S. Henshaw, who says that customers last year were willing to pay that, and in one case twice that amount was offered in addition to the regular list price for a quick delivery.

Many of the Boston dealers took a trip to Portland, Me., automobile show this week, among them R. D. Henshaw with the Thomas, and George Campbell, manager of the Fisk Tire Company.

It will take three express cars to deliver the Thomas "Flyer" exhibit for the Boston automobile show. A complete line of this company's models will be shown, and all the exhibition cars are already sold.

THE PIERCE ARROW is a car built for American roads, American conditions and the American temperament.

ONE THOUSAND MILES without a single adjustment is what the Pierce Arrow accomplished in the Glidden tour. This is not a phenomenal performance for Pierce Cars

DOLLARS INVESTED in a Pierce Arrow bring a better return for the money than twice the number invested in a [illegible] car.

Greenbrier 11 YEAR OLD Whiskey

There's just one thing that will make whiskey right, and that is age. The older it is, the better it is. Ours is made by Greenbrier Distillery in 1895 and it is a whiskey you will have hard work to beat. It is absolutely better than this 11 year old Greenbrier.

Distilled in 1895 { 5.00 Per Gallon Ex. Paid

If you think this same whiskey three years older would be worth more, you have the 8 year old Greenbrier. Take our word for it.

A MAGNETIC BUST!

NODDLE HEADS cannot realize that the "Magnetic" attraction which exists between the sexes is the greatest and most vital of all the forces which govern humanity. Love is necessarily "Magnetic" in its very essence. If Love has met you, you have a keen regard for your personal appearance, and desire a large, plump, charming, voluptuous and "Magnetic" Bust, the true mark of real womanly charm and beauty. How about the thin, flat-chested, scrawny woman, with pale cheeks and no bosom? What an "ideal" to inspire a man's love! Stripped of pads, frills and furbelows. Oh, how magnetic to lavish his affection upon! Real Love must have healthy, natural "inspiring" conditions, which come with an enchanting bust, and makes the foundation of home and happiness. Dr. Conway's Bustoids is the only remedy on all earth which will restore, enlarge and develop the breasts every time, without injury or failure. Investigate Dr. Conway's Bust Treatment, which makes a woman's breasts full, firm, plump, large and entrancing. Brings us a case we can't enlarge 4 to 10 inches or more, and we forfeit 1,000. Call for FREE INSTRUCTIONS. Sealed facts 4c stamps. CONWAY SPECIFIC CO., 406 Washington street, Boston, Mass. Take the elevator to the top floor, inspect our new offices and enjoy a delightful view of "Newer Boston" and its busy harbor.

JUNE WILKES—$125

BUYS THIS FAST trotting and road mare, coal black in color, age 6, stands 15-2½ hands high, fearless in every respect, as fat as a seal, has beautiful mane and tail, small head, clean symmetrical limbs, very stylish in harness, natural roadster of 10 miles per hour, knows nothing but the trot and can step three times better than 2:20 with no preparation whatever; this mare was sired by Colbert, 2:07¾, dam Cricket, 2:14¼, who has started in 40 races and never has been behind the money; present owner paid $500 for this mare in Kentucky within one year's time, and she is cheap at that price to-day. Can be seen at 120 Dover street.

$100 BUYS LADY MAY.

This is a handsome brown mare, 7 years old, stands 15-2 hands, wt., 1,000 lbs.; is perfectly sound and safe for a lady or most timid person to harness and drive, is broken to all city sights and absolutely fearless; can road 20 miles in 2 hours, and stepped a mile over the Syracuse track in 2:18, last half in 1:07½, last quarter in 33 seconds; she is round turned, compactly made and strongly built, well proportioned mare, and cost $875 at the late sale at Madison Sq. Garden; she is a gem for any one wanting a private driving horse and speed combined. Can be seen at 120 Dover st.

AFRAID OF ELEVATED.

$75 BUYS FRED WILKES.

COLOR bay, age, 6, stands 15-3¼ hands, wt. 1,075 lbs., beautiful conformation, very breedy looking, goes on the trot, wears no boots, drives with open or closed bridle, does not pull or tug on the bit, but has good feet and legs as any horse living, not having even a speed puff; this horse cost $350 a short time ago; was left standing under the Elevated and ran away, and owner will not drive him again, but we will warrant him perfectly safe in every way, away from the Elevated; this horse would be a great horse to take to the country to get the money. P. S.—Stable suit, track suit, boots, etc., will be given to purchaser. Can be seen at 120 Dover st. Show this ad.

$90 BUYS TROTTER.

STORAGE WAREHOUSE

NO PROFIT PIANO SALE

Of Pianos and Furniture sent from Storage Rooms to Storage Salesroom to be sold during the week beginning Monday, March 5th—Notifications having been duly given according to contract—Sale Positive—Nothing held back or reserved.

We quote in our weekly announcement of Piano Sale only the names of the first-class makers with whom Boston and New England people are familiar. That is why we give the names of same makers week after week. We have also many fine Pianos by makers who stand high in New York, Pittsburg, Philadelphia and Chicago. Their instruments are unexcelled. They are exquisite both to eye and ear. There are not so many Pianos in this week's lot as in last week's. All the pianos last week sold on sight with the exception of a few which we held for tuning, which go in this week's sale. "No Profit Sale" means sold to cover expenses only.

PIANO SLAUGHTER

STORAGE SALE

A great many people are ignorant of the fact that the best possible opportunity to buy a piano at the lowest possible price is to get one at the Storage sale. Sometimes the finest pianos that are made go almost for a song. Some pianos of the best makes that have been used only slightly, and at that in the best of homes, are sold for prices that seem impossibly low. New and second-hand pianos are sold regardless of price.

Pianos go for prices much lower than an auction would bring. There is no one to bid at a piano storage sale, the price is simply put on, first come, first served, and the careful, economical man or woman who wants to buy a piano economically, in fact more than economically, will watch the storage sales carefully.

The gilded piano stores with their costly appointments, their high salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

Several nice upright pianos which must be sold at a sacrifice; 2 nice uprights, Chickering and Vose, $40 and $50; nearly new mahogany uprights, 3 pedals, latest style at ¼ Boston prices; reason why, no large rents, no salaries or commissions to be paid, no fancy floors, our expenses about $5 a day; Boston warerooms' expense $300 to $500 daily; our terms the most liberal; free carting, free tuning and 3 months' lessons with each piano; why not see us at once and thus save the agents' enormous profits? GRAVEDIGGERS IN HEART OF CITY EXCITE CROWD.

For First Time in Fifty Years Vault Opened in St. Paul's Churchyard, While Curious People Peer Through Fence

By Boston American Leased Wire.

New York, March 3.—The unusual sight of gravediggers turning up the sod in St. Paul's churchyard, and handling in their work in the driving rain made the crowd of hurrying pedestrians along Broadway stop today. Several of the more curious tried to enter the churchyard but found all the gates locked. As the gravediggers were at work close to the iron fence near the Broadway entrance to the memory of Thomas Addis Emmet the crowd found little difficulty in satisfying its curiosity.

The vault being opened the open graves have been dug in St. Paul's churchyard in fifty years was that of the Staples family. On February 26 Ernest Staples died at his home in New Rochelle, and at eleven o'clock to-day his body was lowered into the tomb and laid beside the remains of his father, William J. Staples, and of his grandfather, John Staples, who died in 1858.

It took the workmen more than an hour to remove the five feet of turf before the heavy stone slab covering the stairway leading down into the tomb was uncovered.

IF THE DOG FISH EAT 'EM, CHAIN UP THE BRUTE.

"BROILED LIVE" MAY SOON BE MILLIONAIRE'S DISH

Crustacean, Fast Being Driven from the Sea, Likely to Disappear from Tables of Cafes, Except for the Rich

"Broiled live" is in great danger, and according to state and government reports, not to mention the rise in price at fish markets, the day is not so far away when the most popular crustacean now doing stunts on the dining table will be as rare as the dodo, the mastodon and any fifty legged critter of prehistoric age. The insatiable appetite for this shell fish is so great that unless drastic legislation is forthcoming its extermination is inevitable, and the best he will be so scarce that only multi millionaires can afford to eat it.

There was a time when John D. Rockefeller would probably have given $1.000 a pound to have been able to eat "broiled live." It wasn't because it was scarce, but because of the billionaire's indigestion. When he was living on baby food and experimenting with hair restorers he bought a wig soon after he was able to eat steak again and announced that there was the greatest thing ever evolved in dietetics. If is lobster views are unknown.

TYPE OF LAUNCH USED IN LOBSTER TRAFFIC ALONG COAST OF NEW ENGLAND

Three Lobster Bills.

The lobster is now before the Massachusetts Legislature and is going to be the object of great consideration and much discussion on March 7, when there will be hearing on the three bills now pending in his behalf. All of them were written for the protection of the lobsters along Cape Ann, in Massachusetts and Buzzards Bay, the Vineyard and Nantucket Sounds, Fish and game commissioners say lobster fishermen are recklessly exterminating the clawed source of their bread and butter.

The first measure, who has not as yet made much regard for fish and game boards, reads that it shall be unlawful hereafter to remove how many lobsters they catch, or whether they are long or "short." They say that the awful work of destruction is going done by fish, especially fishermen, who peddle up the small lobster fry by the bullboats. All this will be talked over at the State House on Wednesday, when an act to prohibit the selling in this State of any lobster meat not in the shell, or hermetically canned, comes up before a committee.

Another measure due for discussion on the same date is intended to make it more difficult to catch "short" lobsters. This is a bill to prohibit traps that little fellows can't crawl out of. If it becomes law, lobster fishermen will have to have all traps branded or sealed and there will be a new batch of officials appointed to see that the law is enforced. Penalties are instituted.

Calls for Bigger Traps.

This act, which accompanies a petition by Charles E. Davis, will knock out the "short lobster" law. It provides that lobsters shall not be measured, but that the breed shall be saved by bigger traps.

"The State ought to do its own share toward increasing the natural production and increase of lobsters," the bill says, "by removing the nezzament from lobsters and placing the measurement on the traps, where it should have been placed fifty years ago, according to an expert study on the subject. It has been shown that the old lobster trap and dogfish have been the chief causes of lobster extermination."

DRAG THE RIVER FOR MISSING GIRL OF FIFTEEN.

Police Unable to Throw Any Light on Mysterious Disappearance of Student Now Lost for Nearly a Month

Fall River, March 3.—Lillie Palmer, a fifteen-year-old schoolgirl, who has been living with her grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Sinclair, at No. 110 Borden street, is missing from her home. It is supposed that unestudy has affected her mind.

On the afternoon of February 12 she visited her aunt, Mrs. Agnes E. Armerad, on Bursee street, and left there supposedly to return early in the evening. Her absence was not noticed until late in the evening when she failed to return.

J. W. O'Neil, of South Somerset, who knows the girl, saw her at the Slade ferry on the afternoon of February 16. After speaking to him she turned toward the railroad station. That is the last time anyone has heard of her.

Her relatives have had the river dragged and have notified the police, who have so far been unable to throw any light on the disappearance.

NEW JERSEY TO HAVE TRIAL.

Washington, March 3.—Arrangements have been made by the Navy Department for the trial trip of the new battleship New Jersey, built by the Fore River Company, of Quincy, Mass., over the Rockland, Me., course on March 28.

Uncle Sam Refinery No. 2, on the Banks of the Missouri, Nearing Completion

From Northern Texas to the Great Lakes Uncle Sam's company, backed by the common people of the Nation, will secure and maintain supremacy of the oil trade regardless of the dirty millions of the oil trust. One hundred and twenty-two more distributing stations will be established during the next six months in Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Northern Texas, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

Refinery No. 1, at Cherryvale, Kan., now in successful operation. Refinery No. 2, on the banks of the Missouri by Atchison, now partly built and being rushed to completion, will be ready to refine oil in less than 100 days. Land secured and specifications submitted for Refinery No. 3 at Tulsa, I. T., on the banks of the Arkansas, where foundation work will commence in ten days.

Cash paid in for stock and refined oil for the past three days average a little better than TWO (2,000) THOUSAND DOLLARS per day. FOUR ($439,000) HUNDRED THIRTY-NINE THOUSAND DOLLARS now paid in cash, and FIVE THOUSAND ($5,400) FOUR HUNDRED stockholders now enrolled; besides, public sentiment is with the company. Strong effort will be made to secure the BALANCE of TEN THOUSAND STOCKHOLDERS and ONE MILLION DOLLARS CASH during the next sixty days. This is a poor man's company, fighting for principle as well as financial gain. If you are in favor of a square deal in the oil fields, better invest your mite and use your influence for the Uncle Sam Company, as it is the only formidable foe to oil trust oppression west of the Appalachian mountains.

From the Northern Indian Territory oil fields, clear across Kansas from its southern to northern border a main trunk pipe line will be completed to the banks of the Missouri at Atchison, where, by light draft barges, the great trade centers of Northern and Central Missouri valley states will be reached by river free from the great railroads, while from the great refinery soon to be built on the banks of the Arkansas at Tulsa, Indian Territory, a refined oil line will be built down the Arkansas river to Fort Smith, where barges will be loaded and taken to Little Rock, Arkansas, and on down to the Mississippi river to the Gulf and Uncle Sam sold all over the lower Mississippi valley states, where Uncle Sam already has over ONE THOUSAND stockholders to defend its rights and more joining every hour.

Dividends Commence June 20, 1906

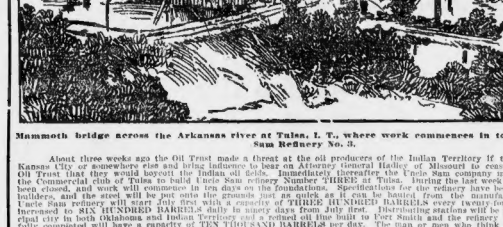
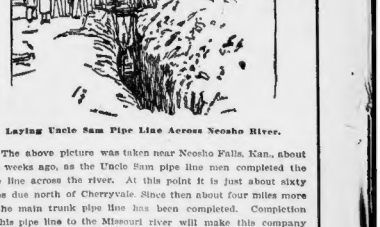
When the Uncle Sam company secured the 38-acre farm on the Missouri river just south of Atchison, and announced that it would build refinery No. 2 at this location, certain wise guys said the Uncle Sam company would never build the said refinery. Well, it has a record of making good again and of throwing the lie back into the teeth of these liedlings. Go up to Atchison now and you will find from ten to thirty men rushing the work on the foundations for the stills and find the foundations for the big tanks and distillate tanks already completed, also office building, water lines, and also find several car loads of materials on the grounds and more coming. This big river refinery, when fully completed, will have a capacity of FOUR THOUSAND TWO HUNDRED BARRELS per day, and in less than four to six months the main trunk pipe line will be completed to it clear through from Northern Indian Territory and also running through the very heart of the great Kansas oil fields. It will then be no longer possible for the oil trust to cheat the producers out of their oil and $\frac{1}{3}$ beyond every man who has enough independence to say that right must win. They all look alike to the Western citizen, and the time is now far distant when justice will prevail in these oil fields and the same medicine be meted out to both alike. Uncle Sam company presents a solid front for success supported by a strength that cannot be broken down or beaten back. Just as well get on the right side to-day and send down $50.00, $100.00 or $1,000.00 and help a good cause to succeed more rapidly, and at the same time secure stock that will increase in solid values in the next two years to FIFTEEN TIMES its selling price offered to you in this announcement. $1,000.00 draft or check send immediately after reading this will secure you FIVE THOUSAND shares, par value $5,000.00, and the chances are one hundred to one that the stock will be selling at par in less than a year. About one-third of the big river refinery is now shipped, and with the present rapid development this refinery will be ready to refine oil in one hundred days.



Mammoth bridge across the Arkansas river at Tulsa, I. T., where work commences in ten days on Uncle Sam Refinery No. 3.

About three weeks ago the Oil Trust made a threat at the oil producers of the Indian Territory if they did not meet in Kansas City or somewhere else and bring influence to bear on Attorney General Hadley of Missouri to cease prosecution of the Oil Trust that they would boycott the Indian oil fields. Immediately thereafter the Uncle Sam company made a proposition to the Commercial club of Tulsa to build Uncle Sam refinery Number THREE at Tulsa. During the last week negotiations have all been closed, and work will commence in ten days on the foundations. Specifications for one refinery have been mailed to Eastern builders, and the steel will be put onto the grounds just as quick as it can be hauled from the manufacturers. The Tulsa Uncle Sam refinery will start fully first with a capacity of THREE HUNDRED BARRELS every twenty-four hours and will be increased to SIX HUNDRED BARRELS daily in ninety days from July first. Distributing stations will be located in every principal city in both Oklahoma and Indian Territory and a refined oil line built to Fort Smith and the refinery increased until when fully completed will have a capacity of TEN THOUSAND BARRELS per day. The man or men who think the Uncle Sam company is going to stop with a small capacity will see his mistake inside of two years. Don't wait until Uncle Sam has TEN THOUSAND stockholders and a MILLION DOLLARS cash back of it and until it increases its capacity to over EIGHTEEN THOUSAND barrels of oil per day, and until it has the trade of the Central West, and then expect to buy this stock even at $3.00 per share. Remember the stock is being sold. Every day now the completion of the main oil line and Tulsa big refineries and pipe connection will be marching nearer success. Now is the day for you to act. Either mail draft or check to-day or write or wire for full particulars. The Sam company has at Tulsa one tract of TWELVE ACRES also a block on the river front right at the foot of these bridges, besides TWENTY-SEVEN TOWN LOTS. This property was furnished by the citizens of Tulsa. Besides this the company holds an option on three acres more. The company will have a river outlet for small barges from Tulsa four months out of the year, and there are some of the largest gas wells in the West in and around Tulsa. A gas line runs within three hundred feet of where the company will commence work. There is oil on every side of Tulsa for from thirty to fifty miles. The most of the production is very high grade, worth 15 to 20 cents per barrel above other oil. The field has only been scratched, and by a little development a production of several thousand barrels per day can be secured in a radius of five or six miles from the refinery location.



Laying Uncle Sam Pipe Line Across Neosho River.

The above picture was taken near Neosho Falls, Kan., about two weeks ago, as the Uncle Sam pipe line men completed the pipe line across the river. At this point it is just about sixty miles due north of Cherryvale. Since then about four miles more of the main trunk pipe line has been completed. Completion of this pipe line to the Missouri river will make this company independent and free. Better send down a hundred dollars or so and help the good work along. This company is making a square fight, as can be proven from the books. Money invested goes to buy more pipe and more refinery material. Every day more pipe line will be completed until the company has over 300 miles in main trunk lines and laterals to the different oil fields.

Write or Wire for Further Particulars and Pictures and Reports of the Oil Fields and Refinery.

Space will not permit us to enter into further detail relative to the giant strength of Uncle Sam company. However, the company has complete reports and several pictures of the oil fields and the refinery work which we will be glad to send to you. You should not delay a single hour after reading this announcement until you write for more full particulars or remit for your stock, as the stock is going to be sold. Hundreds of investors have paid this price for the stock several weeks ago. It may be advanced any day and you had just as well secure some of it as to let some one else secure what you want.

Uncle Sam Company Should Build Up to a Daily Capacity in Two Years of 18,000 Barrels Per Day

This company does not intend to even try to make one-half of the wrongful profits being stolen by the methods of the present oil trust; however, there can be great profits earned without working a hardship on any one. This shall be the policy of Uncle Sam. You can depend on a square deal if you join our band and help the good right along. There is no reason why Uncle Sam, with the three oil fields and refineries from the Arkansas to the Missouri, cannot in a very short time build up to over EIGHTEEN THOUSAND barrels of crude oil daily. The company will grow very fast in a very few months and then the stock will all be sold and will grow in value by leaps and bounds while you sleep. The time to get in is now. We wish to state further that it is probable for this stock to go past THREE DOLLARS per share. At any rate the future is a bright one and worthy the consideration of any business man.

Will Benefit the Citizens of the Central West

The oil trust, through a few slick tongued orators at the oil fields, have repeatedly misrepresented the value of Kansas and Indian Territory oil. They get interviews into newspapers by deception and knock the Uncle Sam company and every other independent enterprise, but the people are getting onto them and the time is not far distant when Kansas and Oklahoma will be too warm a place for them. Better join our band to-day and thereby help the true interests of home industries and home people as against those who would barter the rights of home people away.

Can You Afford to Turn Down an Investment in This Growing Enterprise?

As you will notice by the following quotations on stock, as many shares, when sold, will pay for so many rods of main trunk pipe line. It is very important to complete this pipe line, and a special effort will be made to have it completed by the time the big river plant is ready to receive oil. Of course, if the line is not entirely completed the company will use tank cars from the nearest railroad station to the end of the completed pipe line, and make the big pipe line a big payer from the word go—every mile of pipe line completed knocks off that much freight. We think that we can certainly pay for every mile of this pipe line each month, and we base our calculations on the results from the past, when the company was not over-burdened or strong as it is to-day. The offer stock is as follows, and following each quotation is the number of rods of pipe line your remittance will enable the company to buy:

$1,320 will pay for one mile of the main trunk pipe line, and buys 7,000 shares, par value	$7,000
$700 will pay for over 1-2 mile, and buys 3,500 shares, par value	$3,500
$500 will pay for nearly 1-2 mile, and buys 2,500 shares, par value	$2,500
$300 will pay for nearly 1-4 mile, and buys 1,500 shares, par value	$1,500
$200 will pay for nearly 1-6 mile, and buys 1,000 shares, par value	$1,000
$100 will pay for over 1-12 mile, and buys 500 shares, par value	$500
$50 will pay for ten joints, and buys 250 shares, par value	$250
$20 will pay for four joints, and buys 100 shares, par value	$100

MONTHLY PAYMENT OFFER.

In addition to the Uncle Sam company selling its treasury stock at the above cash prices, the company also makes the following monthly payment offer, so that investors of limited means can secure part of the present allotment before a big advance occurs, which is certain to come. Offer is as follows:

5,000 shares,	$50 cash,	6 monthly payments	$150 each
3,000 shares	$90 cash,	6 monthly payments	$90 each
2,000 shares,	$60 cash,	6 monthly payments	$60 each
1,000 shares,	$30 cash,	6 monthly payments	$30 each
500 shares,	$15 cash,	6 monthly payments	$15 each
250 shares,	$7.50 cash,	6 monthly payments	$7.50 each
100 shares,	$3.00 cash,	6 monthly payments	$3.00 each

SPECIAL OFFERS.

For a few days the company will sell stock in Fifteen Thousand (15,000) lots—par value $15,000—for $2,800 cash.

This amount of money will pay for considerably over two miles of main trunk pipe line. Where a club of men go together the company will locate all lots directed in amounts of 100, 500 and 1,000 share certificates—just as directed.

SPECIAL INSTALLMENT OFFER.

Fifteen thousand (15,000) shares for $500 cash and six monthly payments of $400 each. The chances are ten to one that long before you have the six payments made the value of your stock will have increased double, and be selling at close to 60 cents per share, if not higher.

In Conclusion.

The charter name of this company is "The Uncle Sam Oil Company." Its authorized capitalization is TEN MILLION SHARES. Par value, one dollar each. Every share of stock draws the same amount of dividends as any other share. The officers of the company are: James Ingersoll, President; J. H. Ritchie, Vice President, and H. H. Tucker, Jr., Secretary and Treasurer. These men also constitute the Board of Directors. All the stock of the company has been sold for cash or its equivalent from the start. You cannot buy a single share from a single one of the above named officers under $1.00 per share. In fact, their stock is not for sale at any price. The management is the same now as in the beginning—the old guard are in the traces working harder than ever. This stock is offered for sale and being sold to buy pipe line and machinery for the river refinery. When you invest in this stock your money goes into the enterprise to make the very stock you buy more valuable. The company is in touch with over TEN THOUSAND investors by special letter report. This announcement will appear in the principal and influential papers in the United States—will be read by over TWENTY MILLION PEOPLE. The company is a straight, legitimate enterprise—one that is already a far greater success than even the most enthusiastic expected on the start. References—Montgomery National bank, People's National bank, and Cherryvale State bank, all of Cherryvale, Kan. The company has several pictures of the refinery at Cherryvale, and different parts of the oil fields which it will send with other information to investors who wish further information. The company is well advertised and has so many investors that, without a doubt, the stock will soon be sold, and investors would do well to not delay in securing the stock they want, as the company is one of great merit, and the price of the stock, with the assets back of it, offers every man an investment that he must admit is good, and far above the ordinary proposition. Every day you never have an opportunity again to invest with a company like this. It was born of necessity, on account of the black list by the oil trust of certain producing properties in the Cherryvale oil fields. It is backed by influential men in both state and nation, and if you join our band, now over five thousand strong, you will be treated fairly, and, we sincerely believe, will secure stock now at twenty cents per share, or one-fifth of its par value, that will will go to par in less than a year. The company realizes that it must offer a great investment and great inducements to raise money as fast as we need it, but will make it all back in a few months with main trunk pipe line and river refinery completed. We solicit your investment in good faith, and the statements made herein we can back with proof.
